PENNSYLVANIA SPEAKER VOTE FAVORS SNELL

Wins 18 of Delegation's Votes Against 12 for Tilson.

VICTORY IS CLAIMED BY LATTER, HOWEVER

Michigan Republicans Are to Meet Today to Rally Around Mapes.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The acrid battle between John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, and Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, for the Republican leadership of the House, went another round yesterday.

The Pennsylvania delegation in the House, the largest G. O. P. aggregation in that body, held a meeting and voted on nominees for Speaker, with the following result:

Representative Snell, wealthy Potsdam cheese manufacturer, 18 votes.

Representative Tilson, Tennessee-born lawyer, who settled in New Haven after attending Yale, 12 votes.

Representative Henry W. Temple, of Pennsylvania, erstwhile professor of history and political science at Washington and Jefferson College, 1 vote.

Tilson Cheered by Result.

Mr. Tilson said that he was cheered by the Pennsylvania vote. His New York opponent, Mr. Snell, Mr. Tilson said, had predicted that he (Mr. Tilson) would get only two votes from the Keystone organization.

When the Republicans hold their conference next Monday, Mr. Tilson predicted, he will be the choice for Republican Speaker.

That Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, will be the Democratic choice for Speaker is now a foregone conclusion. Only one fight looms so far as the Democrats are concerned, and that has to do with the office of floor leader.

For a while it looked like the Southern Democrats had agreed that the floor leader should be a Northern Democrat. Three Southerners—McDuffie, of Alabama; Rankin, of Mississippi, and Byrns, of Tennessee—all withdrew from the race, leaving only two avowed candidates, both of them Northerners—Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, and John J. O'Connor, Tammany man, of New York.

Michigan Delegation to Meet.

Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, announced to the Associated Press yesterday, however, that he was considering waging an active campaign for the floor leadership.

Thus the prospect of a fight between the North and South is renewed.

The Michigan Republican delegation in House will meet today, determined to make the most of the apparent split in the Republican ranks. It will seek to have Representative Carl E. Mapes, of Grand Rapids, named party leader as a compromise between the two Eastern candidates.

Other delegations from the Midwest are planning to take advantage of the situation by sponsoring "favorite son" candidates.

Reason for G. O. P. Battle.

To the uninitiated the fight between Tilson and Snell seems silly. Why, they ask, should two men battle over the Republican nomination for Speaker when it is a virtual certainty that a Democrat, Garner, will be elected Speaker?

On paper, the standing in the House as of today is Democrats, 218; Republicans, 214; Farmer-Labor, 1; vacancies, 2.

With the Republicans facing what would seem to be certain defeat in the organization of the House, it is difficult for the average person to understand why two influential members of the Republican party should now be fighting for what would seem to be the empty honor of being the Republican nominee for Speaker.

As outlined in The Post yesterday, victory for Mr. Tilson means nothing more than retention of what he has

Woodcock to Quiz Western Dry Chief

Charge Suspended Man "Bought" Job Causes Colorado Trip.

(Associated Press.)

A report that a Colorado dry agent, recently suspended, was appointed by a deputy administrator upon the promise of a loan of money moved Director Woodcock yesterday to a personal investigation.

The Federal enforcement chief decided to start late last night for Denver. He will make direct inquiry into the administration of John F. Vivian in Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, and Arizona.

Henry Dierks is the agent in question. He is now facing a charge of murder, for his part in a scuffle that resulted in the death of Milford G. Smith, Englewood, Colo., youth. He was suspended and will be dismissed from the service.

Before Mr. Woodcock decided on a personal visit he had received demands for investigation both of the Dierks case and of Vivian's office.

Baker Looms as Head Of Virginia University

Former War Secretary Is Reported Tentative Choice for Post.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

Newton D. Baker, a possible Democratic candidate for President, may throw aside his prospect of party leadership and become the president of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, Va.

From his home in Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. Baker told The Post last night that the post of president of the Old Dominion university had not been offered to him and that "it would be most indelicate" for him to discuss what consideration he might give to the offer when, and if, it is formally made.

Selection of a president of the university is in the hands of the rector and board of visitors who have named a special committee headed by Benjamin F. Buchanan, of Marion, Va., as chairman, and of which Lewis C. Williams, of Richmond, Va., is secretary, and Virginius R. Shackleford, of Orange, Va., is a member.

Despite the silence with which members of the board have surround-

ROADHOUSE SLAYING STIRS U.S. VICE QUIZ

Justice Department Agents See Mann Act Gang Feud in "Bandit" Attack.

Baltimore, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—The Federal Government reached out into Maryland today to determine what, if anything, a national vice ring had to do with the attempted massacre at the Colonial Tea House, Bladensburg, Monday morning.

Two Department of Justice agents conferred with Baltimore police in an attempt to link two rival white slave organizations with the "fake robbery" of the tea house, and then left for southern Maryland to continue their investigations.

For more than two years there have been reports of organized vice operations in Maryland. It started last year with a raid on a roadhouse on the Baltimore-Washington boulevard, in which a score of persons were arrested. At that time it was alleged the women arrested were the product of an Eastern white slave ring.

Officials today declared the shooting at the Bladensburg tea house, disguised as robbery, was merely a gang attempt to wipe out opposition. Fourteen patrons of the tea house were lined up against the wall and a withering gun fire directed at them. One was killed, five seriously wounded.

The Department of Justice agents were directed to the case on charges that the Mann act had been violated in connection with the Southern Maryland vice houses.

Yesterday in response to allegations by Judge Robert Moss, of the Circuit Court, ten presentments were returned by the Anne Arundel County grand jury alleging vice, gambling, graft and bribery. Two former police magistrates, several policemen and officials of the sheriff's office were named in the presentments.

It was charged that the raids on the roadhouses between here and Washington a year ago were the outgrowth of a white slave ring, extending from Boston to Washington. No one was convicted in that case.

Baltimore detectives, called into the case by Bladensburg authorities, questioned the wounded persons in Casualty Hospital, Washington, as Philadelphia police threatened to release two men held there in connection with the shooting.

Two Men Ordered Released.

The two men held in Philadelphia in connection with the Bladensburg, Md., roadhouse shooting were ordered released yesterday and fugitive warrants were issued in Washington against three of the wounded persons after authorities had gathered further details of the gun battle which killed one person and wounded five.

The two Baltimore detectives have learned that John J. Barlet, one of the injured, fired the first gun in the battle, they said yesterday. Bar-

ARMS CUTS SOUGHT BY BORAH FOR IDLE

Senator Declares Nations Have Flouted Treaty of Versailles.

(Associated Press.)

Europe was told over the air last night by Senator Borah, of Idaho, that the pledge of the Versailles Treaty for disarmament has gone unredeemed. He called upon the public to use the "lash" on their governments to force armament reductions at the conference at Geneva in February.

Borah's blunt words were addressed directly to Paris to a gathering of peace delegates from Europe. He spoke over an international radio hook-up which carried the voice of the chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee to Europe for the first time and throughout the United States as well.

Referring to the controversial security pledge urged by Premier Laval of France, he said, "In considering security let us not rely alone upon armaments." He continued:

"The first line of defense for every country is not the navy nor the army nor both, but the physical and moral well-being, the contentment and the happiness of the loyal citizen.

"While millions are on the verge of starvation, growing restless and ugly, nearly $5,000,000,000 is being expended annually for armaments, and from 80 per cent to 85 per cent of all taxes extorted from the people go for war purposes. All this is another name for slow but inevitable suicide.

"I do not contend that armaments alone can solve our great economic problem. I do contend that it will aid tremendously for the betterment of conditions. We can all fight, therefore, for this cause, knowing that we not only make less probable future wars, but that we are helping to relieve an immediate situation, an economic condition in many respects more cruel, more remorseless, more pitiless than war itself."

Viscount Cecil, of England, speaking from the Paris meeting, preceded Borah over the radio. William Hard, newspaper correspondent and radio speaker, introduced the two statesmen.

Reading the pledge of the Versailles treaty of peace for disarmament, Borah said it had been applied only to the defeated nations of the world.

"Thirteen years have passed," he added. "The armaments burden is greater than ever before in time of peace. The outlook is dark with misgivings. The cause has become enmeshed in stifling and sterilizing technicalities, made the plaything of international politics, used particularly as an opiate, while governments extract more money from taxpayers, until at the present time an atmosphere of doubt and uncertainty envelops the whole scheme of disarmament. The pledge in the peace

Horde of Grandi's Guards Drop Disguises as He Sails

Most Elaborate System of Protection Ever Set Up for New York Visitor Functions to Last Minute as Feted Guest Boards Ship.

New York, Nov. 27 (U.P.)—Dino Grandi, smiling happily behind his square-cut Assyrian beard, boarded the S. S. Augustus today and sailed away, unconscious of the fact that behind him a horde of window washers, taxi drivers, bellboys, hotel clerks and spaghetti merchants were stripping off their disguises and becoming plain clothes men again.

The most thrilling chapter in New York's frantic official efforts to protect her guest from cranks, radicals, anti-Fascists, international plotters and spies was written so ably that not once did the Italian foreign minister know that every second person he saw on his visit here was a detective.

Now that Grandi is gone details of the amazing story may be revealed.

Detectives lurked on roofs and along sidewalks. They loitered in lobbies and loafed at theater entrances. They sat in the orchestra at the opera and shadowed him at private clubs. They hid behind desks and chairs and divans, behind posts and palms and potted rubber plants. They mingled with anti-Fascists and gave ear to rumblings among Communists.

In the guard that constantly surrounded Grandi in all his waking and sleeping hours there were members of the bomb squad, of the radical squad, of the international crime squad. They spread themselves on

RIOTERS HALT PARIS SESSION ON DISARMING

LORD ROBERT CECIL COLLAPSES ON STAND

Herriot Vainly Asks Quiet; Woman Pacifist Stirs Crowd to Fury.

Paris, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—A riot in which the speaker's stand and furniture were smashed to pieces tonight broke up a meeting of the international disarmament conference.

Demonstrators in the audience howled and hissed at Alanson B. Houghton, former United States Ambassador to London, and other speakers attempting to address the meeting. Lord Robert Cecil, the noted British peace worker, collapsed in a chair on the rostrum.

Men and women shouted and fought in the great Trocadero auditorium, which is one of the largest halls in Paris.

Paris Police Helpless.

Edouard Herriot, former French premier and chairman of the meeting, which is attended by 100 delegates from 40 different countries, vainly attempted to halt the demonstration, but his efforts had no effect.

Police stationed around the hall were helpless when they attempted to intervene. Chairs and boxes were wrecked, the speakers' platform was broken down and pacifist signs were destroyed by the rioters, who surged past the rostrum waving bloody handkerchiefs at the distinguished guests from all parts of the world.

The meeting had been tense from the beginning. Mr. Houghton was repeatedly interrupted and could hardly make himself heard above the hisses and catcalls. He delivered his speech twice in an effort to command attention.

Borah Broadcast Drowned.

A radio broadcast of Senator William E. Borah's speech from Washington also was drowned out.

The disorder became intense when M. Herriot attempted to introduce Mme. Louise E. Weiss, foremost French pacifist. The crowd roared its disapproval of the peace speeches and would not hear her.

The shouts quickly developed into fist fights among pacifists and the hecklers, and the auditorium was soon in wild confusion.

Earlier the conference had adopted a resolution urging the League of Nations Council to uphold the anti-war treaty by forcing Japan and China to cease hostilities in Manchuria. Then Mr. Houghton attempted to speak.

War Costs Are Cited.

"Two-thirds of all the money raised for taxation today pays for wars—past and future," Mr. Houghton said. "While industry languishes and unemployment grows and bread lines lengthen, we are spending $5,000,000,000 a year on naval and military purposes.

"We who pay the bills must now seriously consider the need for a substantial measure of disarmament."

Bulkley Sees Democrats Of Ohio Backing White

(Associated Press.)

The belief that Ohio Democrats will go to the national convention pledged to Gov. White, of that State, was expressed yesterday by Senator Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio.

It is Bulkley's understanding that neither Newton D. Baker nor Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, will enter the State primary. He reported, in response to the direct question, that Roosevelt has considerable "latent strength" in the State.

Bay State Governor Wants Smith in '32

Ely's Secretary Denies That He Favors Ritchie as Candidate.

Boston, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Dewitt C. Dewolf, secretary to Gov. Joseph B. Ely, today said Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was favored by Gov. Ely for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Dewolf was questioned concerning rumors that Ely himself might be a candidate for the vice presidential nomination on a ticket to be headed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland. Dewolf denied the rumors and said:

"The governor has entertained not only Gov. Ritchie but Gov. Roosevelt of New Yoork and former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, but above all these is former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and Gov. Ely will be with Smith if he is a candidate."

Walker to See Mooney At San Quentin Today

San Francisco, Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Mayor James J. Walker of New York will go to San Quentin Prison tomorrow to visit Thomas Mooney, convicted with Warren K. Billings of the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing here. Mayor Walker said they would confer "as lawyer and client."

The trip will be made on the yacht Rejoice, owned by C. E. Blanchard, San Francisco investment broker. The mayor expects to arrive at the prison shortly before noon.

U. S. HOPE OF EARLY SETTLING OF MANCHURIA DISPUTE FALLS AS JAPAN DRIVES ON CHINCHOW

Long-Awaited Offensive Brings Armies Within Striking Range.

HUGE CHINESE FORCE IS FACING INVADERS

Nippon Government Says Its Troops Have Accepted Order Not to Attack.

(United Press.)

The long-awaited Japanese offensive toward Chinchow began yesterday morning and early today the advance guards of Japanese and Chinese forces were less than 15 miles apart in South Manchuria.

The Japanese government, at Tokyo, announced its army in Manchuria had been ordered not to attack Chinchow and that the commander at Mukden had accepted the order.

Grave danger of a clash continued, however, due to the positions of the two armies along the Peiping-Mukden Railroad, some 30 miles north of Chinchow. The Japanese forces were reported to number around 1,400, with reinforcements en route, and the Chinese were estimated at 23,000. Japanese said 50,000 Chinese soldiers were concentrated at Chinchow.

Japanese warships steamed along the Chinese coast south of Chinchow, ready for possible action.

Fighting continued around the Japanese concession in Tientsin.

Tokyo, Saturday, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—A Rengo dispatch from Mukden today said Japanese troops along the Peiping-Mukden Railway had withdrawn to Hsinmintun under express orders from the Japanese government.

"The situation at Chinchow is more reassuring than at any time during the last few days," said Baron Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, upon being informed that Secretary of State Stimson at Washington was apprehensive over the situation in Manchuria.

Force Heavily Munitioned.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—A Japanese expedition, embracing all arms and heavily munitioned, moved southwest from Mukden toward Chinchow today with the avowed purpose of expunging the last traces of the Chinese regime from the map of Manchuria.

(A spokesman for the Japanese war office in Tokyo was quoted in dispatches received about the same time as the above as saying that the Japanese troops had been ordered to halt their advance at the half-way point of Yangkuantaitze and would be returned to Mukden.)

At nightfall the vanguard consisting of at least one armored train

Hinkler Reaches Africa From Brazil

Aviator Completes First Flight of Kind in Light Airplane.

Dakar, French West Africa, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Bert Hinkler, Australian aviator who won international recognition for flights over Asia and Europe, landed on the African coast today after completing the first west-to-east solo flight over the south Atlantic Ocean.

Hinkler left Natal, on the northeast tip of South America, yesterday in a 90-horsepower monoplane. He overcame stormy weather over the 1,600-mile ocean route and landed at Bathurst, British Gambia, with less than an hour's fuel left. It was the first transatlantic flight in a light plane.

Later, he continued northward along the coast to St. Louis, Senegal, in French West Africa. The flight from Brazil to Bathurst required approximately 22 hours. Hinkler required only two hours to fly from Bathurst to St. Louis.

LaGuardia Voices Ship Board Threat

Impeachment Mentioned as Result of Loan on Car Ferries.

(Associated Press.)

Representative LaGuardia, of New York, last night coupled a charge that the Shipping Board could not "honestly" award a contract to the Seatrain Transporting Co. with a threat of "an impeachment, an indictment or a removal."

The contract called for a loan of $2,400,000 to the company, representing 75 per cent of the construction cost of two new car ferries to operate with its present vessel between New Orleans and Havana. As LaGuardia completed a letter of warning to the board on the grounds that the company is British controlled, it was said at the board that the loan had been granted.

The Postoffice Department recently awarded a mail contract to the Seatrain Co. on the condition that two ships be built. LaGuardia said, "The specifications were so drawn that only this particular company could bid."

Japan's Act Menaces League Peace Efforts

Chinese Delegation Refuses to Accept Revised Inquiry Plan Until Peril of Attack Upon Chinchow Is Removed.

Paris, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—The advance of the Japanese army toward Chinchow, apparently in defiance of the Tokyo government's orders, threatened tonight to wreck the League of Nations' arrangements for restoring peace to Manchuria.

The Chinese delegation to the League Council was understood on high authority to have refused to accept the league's revised peace resolution until the menace of a Japanese attack on Chinchow is removed.

The resolution, providing for evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria and a commission of inquiry to investigate the underlying causes of the controversy, was redrafted today to meet Japanese requests and then approved by the council of twelve when it met at 4 p. m. Japan and China are not represented on the council of twelve.

The league leaders predicted "the gravest consequences," if the Japanese occupy Chinchow and force the Chinese troops to retreat via Tientsin, where the Japanese and possibly other foreign concessions might be endangered. Such a move might easily involve troops of all foreign nations with concessions at Tientsin, they said.

The fact that British and other neutral military observers are now in the Chinchow area was believed likely to lessen the danger of a Japanese attack on the city. Advices from neutral observers, however, told of Southward Advance of Legions Held to Break Assurances.

AMERICAN PROTEST EXPECTED AT ONCE

Action May Be Taken Under Nine-Power Pact; Recall of Envoy Suggested.

(Associated Press.)

Hope that Japan intends to restore the captured province of Manchuria to Chinese sovereignty without long negotiations diminished rapidly in Washington last night as the Japanese invaders launched a new thrust at Chinchow.

The southward march of the Japanese legions violates directly an unqualified assurance given the American Government at Tokyo only three days ago. Japan is moving on this last remaining Manchurian stronghold fully aware that the development will be regarded here as casting serious doubt on the validity of her repeated pledges against permanent aggression in Manchuria.

A swift American protest is expected to go forward. Its exact form has not been determined and the action taken may be agreed upon beforehand in conferences with the League of Nations.

May Withdraw Envoy.

Withdrawal of diplomatic representation from Tokyo has been suggested.

Whatever steps are decided upon probably will be taken under the nine-power treaty, in which Japan specifically agreed to respect the integrity of China.

Secretary Stimson revealed that only three days ago both the civil and military authorities of Japan assured the United States in the most direct terms that no advance on Chinchow was contemplated. The assurance was in reply to an American inquiry which expressed deep concern lest such a campaign might be attempted.

The apprehensions of the Washington Government last night rose to a critical pitch of expectancy as a Japanese expedition, heavily equipped, moved toward Chinchow in disregard of American representations and the Japanese pledge. State Department dispatches threw no light on the situation.

Reason for American Concern.

The American concern arose from two sources. It is feared, on the one hand, that Japanese control of Chinchow, a south Manchurian crossroad of communications, would be a serious blow to any exercise of Chinese control over her war-torn province.

Furthermore, a Japanese attack following closely on Tokyo's promise of restraint, would go a long way toward convincing the American Government that Japan meant to take Manchuria completely, in violation of all her international covenants.

This is not the first time Washington has had reason to look questioningly on Japanese activities since the Manchurian advance began on September 18. From the beginning, Tokyo has assured this government she meant no aggression, and proposed to make only advances necessary to defend her interests.

City After City Taken.

Yet one Manchurian city after another, some of them hundreds of miles from the Japanese railway zone, have fallen under Japanese assaults. Every time Japan has expressed regret, and said it wouldn't happen again. At first, officials were given the impression that the military party, which is not under complete control of the civil government, simply had run amuck. But the Japanese promise of three days ago bore the explicit assurances of both civil and military authorities, and until yesterday it had been felt here that real progress was being made toward peace.

On Monday last, when first news reports of a possible attack on Chinchow reached here, Stimson informed the Japanese that American patience must reach a limit some time. He declared a march on Chinchow just now would do much to break down the structure of conciliation being so tediously erected at the Paris conferences.

On Tuesday, Baron Shidehara, the Japanese foreign minister, replied

ROBERT AMES FOUND DEAD; INQUIRY BEGUN

Stage and Screen Star Dies in New York Apartment; Autopsy Ordered.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Robert Ames, whose portrayal of juvenile roles on Broadway won him stage fame and a screen career, was found dead today in his hotel suite under circumstances which led authorities to order an autopsy.

Dr. Eugene E. Marcovici, who was summoned after the 42-year-old actor's body was discovered late in the afternoon, said he believed a hemorrhage of the bladder, traceable to a kidney disorder, was the cause of death.

An inquiry by police developed several hours after the finding of the body. They said that Ames' body, nude except for a silk dressing gown over his shoulders, was lying in the doorway between the bedroom and living room when a chambermaid entered the suite. Six whisky bottles, some of them full, were in the suite, police reported, and about 100 sleeping powders were in a box in the bedroom.

Dr. Marcovici expressed the belief that Ames had died during the morning.

An assistant from the medical examiner's office directed the removal of the body to the morgue for an autopsy.

Two detectives who visited the suite reported "an investigation is being made pending the outcome of an autopsy." The sleeping powders also were ordered analyzed.

Last night Ames saw his father and Allen Fagin, brother of Ina Claire, the actress, in his suite. Fagin called at the hotel tonight and immediately telegraphed Miss Claire word of Ames' death.

Friends said Miss Claire was to have left Hollywood, Calif., yesterday for New York, but found she was unable to do so. Ames telephoned her from the hotel three times yesterday. He and Miss Claire were understood to be considering appearing in a play of only two characters called "Interview," which Tom Van Dyke proposed to produce.

Ames had dinner Wednesday night with Miss Claire's mother, who lives in Port Chester, N. Y. She said he appeared in good health then.

After dinner with his father and Fagin last night, police learned, the trio went to the Grand Central Terminal, where the actor's father boarded a train for Hartford, Conn. Fagin

I. C. C. TO HEAR RAIL POOLING PLAN TODAY

Roads Propose to Consider Each Line as Separate Entity for Aid.

The Interstate Commerce Commission today will hear arguments on the pooling plan proposed by certain railroads as a substitute for the plan outlined by the Commission in response to the railroads' application for higher freight rates. Several important railroads have not joined in the plan. Roads that favor the plan propose to make material increases in certain groups of rates and to pool the gains for the purpose of making loans to lines that are not able to pay interest on their bonds. The commission's decision on the proposed rate advance contained a strong intimation that the roads would be expected to consider each system united by common ownership and control as a single entity, but the roads are proposing to ignore this intimation and to treat each line that makes an operating report as entitled to obtain funds from the pool.

It is contended that effect of this plan would be to enable certain railroads which, in efforts to enlarge their systems, have made bad investments, to carry these investments, in part at least, at the expense of other systems that have no brought-up unprofitable subsidiaries.

One effect of dealing with separate operating companies instead of systems will be that a large share of the money obtained from the fund will go to foreign railroads, notably the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways. In the latter case the benefit will go to the taxpayers of Canada, at the expense of the taxpayers and freight-rate payers of the United States, it is maintained.

Statistics of railroad operations in recent years indicate no railroad in New England could obtain anything from the fund except the roads that are owned and operated in the interest of Canadian carriers.

Another example is that of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, located in the upper peninsula of Michigan and northeastern Minnesota, the whole of the stock of which, with about two-thirds of its bonds, belong to the Canadian Pacific. Under the plan which the commission is to consider, this company could obtain part of the pooled funds and use the amount to pay current interest on its bonds, two-thirds of the amount so contributed going to the Canadian Pacific.

Among articles upon which rates are proposed to be increased for the 31 Indictments Smash Plot To Spirit Aliens Into U. S.

17 Lawyers, Consular Employes and Other "Inside" Workers Cited in New York Investigation Which Started Four Months Ago.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—A huge conspiracy, which resulted in a steady, illicit parade of aliens into the United States, was believed by Federal officials to have been smashed today against 17 lawyers, consular employes, and members of the immigration and naturalization forces.

The indictments grew out of an investigation begun four months ago by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, assisted by Murray W. Garsson, special Assistant Secretary of Labor.

The inquiry spread to Chicago and other lake cities, where indictments already have been returned.

Medalie refused to estimate how many aliens had been smuggled into the country by the alleged conniving of the 17 men, but 60 aliens questioned by the grand jury admitted they were "clients" of the indicted group.

Three separate methods of violating the immigration laws were disclosed by the investigation.

Harold Van Riper, New York lawyer, who was admitted to practice in Washington, D. C., is charged with "inventing fictitious landing records for his prospective citizens" in a manner which will not be revealed until his trial.

Benjamin Friedlander, New York lawyer, now a fugitive from justice under indictment for forgery and grand larceny, is charged with en-

BURMESE AUTONOMY DELEGATES CONVENE

Gayly Dressed Leaders Hear Prince of Wales' Speech; India Parley Today.

London, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Far off the road to Mandalay, the political leaders of Burma, clad in fanciful silks and redolent of exotic scents, met today to begin the formulation of a constitution which will make Burma an autonomous province within the British Empire. The muffled boom of Big Ben, tolling the hour of assembly, might almost have been the tinkling bells of a pagoda far away in the East as the 23 delegates gathered in the robing room of the House of Lords to hear the opening address by the Prince of Wales.

In their shining skirts and jackets of pink, mauve and red, with gay bandanas tied in great feminine bows about their foreheads, these strangers brought Kipling's poem to London's door.

There was one woman delegate, Miss May Oung, her raven hair dressed in a bizarre coiffure which looked not unlike an inverted flower pot.

The federal structures committee of the Indian round table conference brought its sessions to an end tonight, leaving India's constitutional future a matter for "further conference and consultation."

In his farewell address to the members, who had devoted 55 consecutive sessions to the Indian problem, the chairman, Lord Sankey, endeavored to relieve their despondency by saying a federal India was not only possible but probable.

Great Britain must retain control over India's finances, Lord Sankey said, because a change in India's constitutional relations with the United Kingdom which involved a sudden severance of the financial link between the two countries would disturb public confidence and therefore place the new Indian government at a grave disadvantage.

The first plenary session of the full round table conference will open tomorrow. No fewer than 41 speakers have applied to Lord Sankey for permission to be heard, but it was thought likely only the more representative delegates would be given a chance to talk, as the government wished to dispose of what Mahatma Gandhi described as the "extinct corpse" of the conference by Tuesday and pave the way for the conference on Burma.

Gandhi, disappointed but not despondent at what he regards as the failure of the conference to settle the Indian controversy, made his final plans to return home. He will leave next Wednesday for Villaneuve, Switzerland, to spend a week with Romain Holland, his biographer, before leaving for Venice on December 10 to embark for Bombay.

"Yes, the Churchillians have won, but their victory may only be at a terrible cost," he said, referring to the adherence of Winston Churchill.

"India's millions will now go through another purgatory of suffering to reach their goal of liberty," he added. "No army, no armored tanks, no airplanes, no machine guns can frighten them."

VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY MAY SELECT BAKER

officials and board members that Mr. Baker has been made the tentative choice for the post, although members of the committee insist that nothing has been done formally.

The board met last week and is to meet again on December 21. One of the members of the selection committee expressed the opinion last night that it was unlikely that the question would be settled at that meeting, either.

However unsettled the matter may be and whatever the outcome, it is known that even the most enthusiastic of the promoters of Mr. Baker for president of the university are desirous not to do anything which might embarrass him politically, directly or indirectly.

Mr. Baker, it is said by those who are anxious that he take the position, will accept the offer except for unforeseen developments. Born on December 3, 1871, in Martinsburg, W. Va., where his family moved from Virginia after the Civil War, Mr. Baker shortly will celebrate his sixtieth birthday anniversary.

A lawyer, Mr. Baker has won not only political distinction, but enough of worldly goods to meet his prospective needs, and, it is said, suffering from impaired health, has promised his family he will not permit himself to be lured into the strenuous activities incident to a campaign for the Presidency, even if he felt sure his party would nominate him in a year in which Democrats have high hopes of victory. Mr. Baker's doctors are said to have told him that to do so would be dangerous, and his loved ones have combined to persuade him against undertaking the task of a candidate for President.

Acceptancy of the presidency of the university would mean that Mr. Baker definitely has turned his back on a political career which has been colorful enough. His first public office was that of city solicitor of Cleveland, although before that he had been private secretary to Postmaster General Wilson. He held the office of city solicitor for ten years, from 1902. In 1912 he was elected Mayor of Cleveland and his administration won wide attention. He was appointed Secretary of War by President Wilson in 1916 and it was under his administration that the War Department functioned in the World War.

HUNGER MARCH PLANNERS TAKEN AT WHITE HOUSE

Underwood & Underwood.

Members of the Washington arrangements committee for the National Hunger March even failed to get good service yesterday from police who broke up their attempts to picket the White House. They had to wait half an hour in the rain for the patrol wagon which broke down between the Third Precinct Station and the White House.

WHITE HOUSE FOOD PARADERS ARRESTED

Police Seize 14 Who Display Pleas as Leaders Ask Meals Dec. 6.

While four of their representatives sought to gain admission to the White House offices to ask that food and lodging be provided on December 6 for the "national hunger marchers," another group of fourteen were arrested when they tried to demonstrate in front of the Executive Mansion.

Headed by Herbert Benjamin, of New York, who, police say, has been arrested in Communist demonstrations in other cities, the group of four appeared at the executive offices shortly after 2 o'clock. White House police denied them admission when they insisted upon talking with President Hoover.

Woman Among Paraders.

Benjamin, spokesman for the four, said he represented millions of unemployed and insisted upon talking with the President regarding arrangement of accommodation for 1,500 hunger marchers of the National Unemployed Councils which, he said, will arrive here on December 6. The marchers, he said, will urge before Congress the passage of unemployment insurance legislation.

Another group of fourteen, including one woman, appeared in front of the White House. They pulled placards from their clothes and started to parade. Police, headed by Lieut. Frank Varney, of the Third Precinct, threw a cordon about them and ordered them to remove the placards.

They refused. The policemen tore the signs from them. The signs read: "Mr. Hoover, We Demand Food and Lodgings for the Hunger Marchers!" "Mr. Hoover, You Have Money for Entertainment of Fascist Assassin Grandi!" "We Demand Food and Lodging for Representatives of Employe and Unemployed!"

One Man Resists.

Only one of the group resisted. He was subdued by a policeman. He gave his name as William Phillips, 19 years old, of 1337 Seventh street northwest, and has been arrested here on several occasions during demonstrations, police assert. The prisoners were herded into a patrol wagon and taken to the Third Precinct station. As the police patrol moved off, the group sang the "Internationale," a Communist song. They were charged with parading on Federal property without a license.

In addition to Benjamin, those who sought admission to the offices were two colored men and Sadie Van Veen, of New York City.

The local committee of the "Hunger Marchers" has applied to the District Commissioners for permission to conduct a tag day today and tomorrow to pay for the lodgings of those expected here on December 6 and 7. Benjamin said that permission has not yet been granted.

Statement by Benjamin.

The statement Benjamin sought to read to the President said, in part:

"We have addressed to you as Chief Executive the demand that these spokesmen of the toiling and suffering masses shall be provided with food, lodging and place of assembly at public expense. We have charged you with responsibility for arrangements to provide them with an opportunity to secure a hearing in Congress.

"You have unhesitatingly expended large sums from public funds for the entertainment of foreign diplomats who are hated and despised by the masses in their home countries as brutal and tyrannical oppressors. You have done this despite the protests of large sections of the citizenry of this country."

Those arrested will appear in court today. Benjamin said they would be left in jail, because the amount of bail wanted for their release would be too much expense. They will plead their own cases in court.

Cotton Belt Fighting Hard To Lure Prosperity Back

Heroic Efforts Made in 11 States to Restore Health to Principal Industry; Most Have Already Arranged for Crop Cut Next Year.

Editor's note—No cross-section of the present economic outlook is complete without a picture of the cotton belt. King Cotton, like other monarchs, has been less secure on his throne since the war, but he still is a power, and his condition, sensitive to world-wide changes, in turn reacts decisively upon a large section of the United States. Raymond Clapper, United Press Washington correspondent, reports on his observations in that section in the following dispatch:

By RAYMOND CLAPPER.

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press.)

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—All energies in the South are being devoted to restoring King Cotton to normal health. His depressed condition is delaying economic recovery in a large geographical section of the Nation and the leaders in the eleven cotton States are tackling their problem heroically with a willingness to take any dose of bitter medicine necessary to recovery.

For this reason, business conditions in Southern cities are dependent on further developments. When the South cuts down its cotton yield to a point commensurate with the demand, cotton farmers will have money to spend and business will profit. To this end representatives of ten of the cotton growing States have agreed to seek to cut next year's acreage in half.

North Carolina, which has not yet agreed, already has cut 28 per cent in the last two years, according to U. Benton Blalock, president of the American Cotton Cooperative Association. Georgia has reduced steadily over the last decade. Some other States, however, notably Texas, have run up their yields so much that the effect of curtailment in other States has been nullified.

The only solution as it appears to cotton men is for all States to join and reduce in the same proportion. This effort, attended with many difficulties, is nevertheless the most significant and constructive thing being done in the entire field of raw commodities, and the far-sighted spirit behind it reflects a degree of long-view intelligence which is the real hope of the South.

However, the South alone can not do the job. Cotton is dependent on world conditions far more than wheat, for instance. The South grows more than half of the cotton grown in the world. More than one-half of it must be sold abroad. About one-fifth of the cotton spindles of the world are in the United States. The remainder, abroad, make or break the American cotton price. Therefore, the cotton farmer plowing with his mule in Alabama, is directly concerned, though he may not realize it, with the reparations negotiations of statesmen in Europe.

Part of the improved business feeling in the East was attributed to the recent rise in cotton prices. That rise was not sustained. Prices are still some 40 per cent under the low quotations of last year. Farmers are holding an usually large portion of their crop except where the sheriff and the bill collector force them to sell. In Alabama officials believe about half of the crop is still being held on farms. Oklahoma growers estimate about 35 per cent is being held there. Texas reports about 24 per cent still being held. Riding on the train through Oklahoma, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia, the traveler sees many fields of cotton still unpicked—farmers seeing no profit in selling now, are taking their time.

The combination of low prices and holding back of the crop, has consequently held back money from Southern trade centers. While fall business has increased somewhat, it is not up to the seasonal expectation. Warm weather also has delayed retail buying. Surplus labor is reported in most localities. Cotton pickers, and other seasonal workers are being released.

But with that the worst of the South's story is told. The South is fighting. It is active in inducing new textile mills and other industries to move South. General business is on the aggressive. The South has learned persistent salesmanship. In many places the Southerner is a good match for the Yankee.

In Florida, railroads and Miami apartment house owners are cooperating on low-priced combination rates covering transportation and a two or three months' stay in Florida at the lowest cost in years.

At the Coca-Cola offices here—which are run with the efficiency of a Ford plant—officials said sales volume appeared to be running about the same as last year. Depression has not affected this business. But it is only because this concern, with the most expert advertising organization, is persistently tickling the thirst public. It knows of only twelve soda fountains in the United States which do not serve its drink. It has put out 200 service men to teach fountains how to mix better—though not bigger—Coca-Colas. Even the bellhops in the South seem to be more aggressive salesmen for their contraband wares than in the North.

A fair volume of building and State highway and bridge contracts has added to employment here this month.

ROBERT AMES IS FOUND DEAD IN NEW YORK; PROBE IS BEGUN

said he then asked Ames where he was going and the actor replied:

"I'm going back to the hotel. I have a date with one of my former wives."

Ames, Fagin said, did not mention which of his four former wives he meant, and police did not know whether the meeting took place. A telegram sent from Hollywood, found in the actor's room, read:

"'Darling, I am necessarily delayed. "INA."

The last of three calls Ames made to Ina Claire in Hollywood was put through at 2:30 a. m. today.

Several photographs of Miss Claire and other young women were found in the suite.

With the sleeping powders, the assistant medical examiner took for analysis a full bottle of whisky, a partly empty bottle and a small quantity of sediment found in the bottom of a glass in the bathroom.

Achieved Fame in 1921.

A native of Hartford, Conn., Ames had spent the greater part of recent years on the Pacific Coast, appearing in films. His first outstanding Broadway success was achieved in 1921 when he played in "Nice People." Later he was cast opposite Francine Larrimore in "Icebound," Owen Davis' Pulitzer Prize play. His last important New York engagement was with Alice Brady in "Seed of the Brute."

The screen claimed him in 1925 when Cecil B. De Mille made him an offer to leave the stage. "Three Faces East," "The Trespasser" and "Rebound" were some of his film vehicles.

Divorce dissolved each of Ames' four marriages. Two children, a son, now 22, and a daughter, 19, were born of his marriage to Alice Gerry, of Fall River, Mass., in 1908. Two years after their divorce he was married, in 1917, to Frances Goodrich. This marriage was dissolved by divorce in 1923 and Ames was wed to Vivienne Segal, musical comedy prima donna.

About a year after divorce separated the actor and Miss Segal he and Miss Muriel Oakes, New York and Greenwich, Conn., society girl, were married in Waukegan, Ill., in 1927. She obtained a divorce in Los Angeles in 1930.

Hope Is Expressed In Sickness of Mix

Physicians Optimistic for First Time in Illness of Cowboy Actor.

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Tom Mix's physicians reported tonight that the veteran cowboy actor had a "very satisfactory day" in his desperate siege with peritonitis. "We hope," they said in a bulletin at 7 p. m., "to be able in twelve hours to report a more definite improvement."

While they still ventured no prediction as to whether Mix will survive, the physicians, Drs. R. Nicholds Smith and Gurn T. Stout, allowed themselves to be understood unofficially as being optimistic for the first time in the case.

San Francisco, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Stormy weather today delayed the flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles of an airplane carrying a third shipment of bacteriophage, a serum being used in attempts to save the life of Tom Mix, screen actor. It was sent by train.

MRS. OWEN AT DESK AFTER WIDE TRAVEL

Florida Representative Covered Record Mileage During Recess.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen (Democrat), Florida, returned to her office yesterday with a large-sized record for distance covered during a congressional recess.

Since March 4, when she helped finish up the last Congress in traditional style by singing "Pack Up Your Troubles," Mrs. Owen has traveled extensively in Europe and intensively in America.

With a party of young people, including her son, Bryan, and daughter, Helen, she took a freighter to Copenhagen. Then came a trip by motor trailer through Denmark, Prussia, Saxony and Bavaria, and a flight across the Alps to Italy. She saw Scandinavia by train and passenger boat, and returned home with no attempt to calculate a diversified mileage.

A 1,500-mile political auto tour of her 550-mile long district followed—62 speeches scattered from Jacksonville to Key West in exactly one month.

This particular trip was topped by an 8,000-mile lecture tour for the purpose of financing a trip to Washington next spring for one boy and one girl from each of eighteen counties in her district—another yearly event.

On this trip the southernmost stop was New Orleans, the northernmost, Duluth, Minn.; the westernmost, Tulsa, Okla.; the easternmost, Toronto, Canada—42 addresses in seven weeks.

This recess rambling found Mrs. Owen in motion on every variety of equipage from the most ancient to the most modern.

"In Copenhagen we pedaled around the parks on bicycles, though our caravanning was done by modern auto trailer," said Mrs. Owen. "We saw Nurnburg in an old-fashioned horse-drawn buggy behind a fat coachman. My little daughter had never ridden behind a horse step-dancing before.

"We took one flying boat that sat on the water like a duck, and the passengers went in through a trap door in the roof.

"I am sure I've ridden this autumn on every known variety of train and bus and down in Macon, Ga., I took a trip with Amelia Earhart in her autogyro."

Sofia Students Battle Police.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Fighting in the streets occurred today when students, demonstrating in a protest against the treaty of Neuilly, signed twelve years ago today, stoned the police and smashed windows of the Jugoslavian Legation. The treaty of Neuilly, signed on November 27, 1919, ceded a slice of Bulgarian territory in Macedonia and Thrace.

TREATY NAVY DRIVE STARTS NEXT WEEK

Naval Affairs Chiefs of Two Houses Will Confer on Construction Bills.

(Associated Press.)

The congressional drive to put $1,000,000,000 worth of new naval craft on the seas will speed up next week.

At that time, Senate and House committee chairmen will pool their ideas for an assault on President Hoover's efforts to reduce the new navy budget.

Chairman Hale, of the Senate naval affairs committee is drafting a bill which would authorize construction of as many ships as the London treaty allows. Representative Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, who likely will head the House naval committee, intends to introduce an identical measure.

Hale will discuss his bill next week at a luncheon with Vinson and Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, chairman of the last House naval committee.

Britten and Hale agreed, before Democrats obtained a mathematical superiority in the House, to work for a treaty Navy. Vinson also believes the London treaty established the smallest Navy the United States could have and be able to defend itself.

The Hale bill probably will provide for gradual construction and include submarines, 1,500-ton cruiser-aircraft carriers and cruisers, destroyers and other ships, as well as complementary aircraft.

There appears unanimity among ranking Democrats and Republicans in the House committee in favor of this program.

Vinson is considering whether the committee should go into the dispute between the President and the Navy League.

U. S. BEGINS MANN ACT PROBE IN NEARBY MARYLAND REGION

let is charged here with being a fugitive from justice in Maryland, where he is charged with the murder of Grover Amick, the dead man, according to the warrant issued in Washington Police Court.

While the five holdup men were going from room to room, rounding up the patrons of the house, Barlet escaped outside, and entered the kitchen by a door behind the bandit gang. He fired at one of them, it is said, and the bandit turned around to return the fire. Amick was in the zone of fire between the two and was killed. When Barlet opened fire he was joined by Charles Leavitt, manager of the house, and also one of the wounded. These two are believed to be the only occupants of the house doing any shooting.

U. S. May Detain Pair.

Nicholas Tronco and Cisberto Renzuli, who were held by Philadelphia authorities for Maryland police, were ordered released yesterday by Chief of Police J. J. Crowley. Chief Crowley said, however, that he understood the Department of Justice had entered detainers against the two in an attempt to throw further light on the white-slave traffice in Eastern States.

Two agents of the Department of Justice talked to Baltimore police yesterday and then returned to Hyattsville, where the evidence uncovered in the shooting case was outlined to them. They are the ones who phoned the Philadelphia office of the department, asking that Renzuli and Tronco be held for questioning.

The three wounded being held at Casualty Hospital on fugitive warrants are Barlet, charged with murder; Mrs. Verne Edwards, charged with being an accessory, and Thomas Simone, of Philadelphia, charged with assault with intent to kill on Leavitt. The warrants will be served on the three as soon as they are well enough to leave the hospital, where they are being held under heavy guard.

Philadelphia Police Irate.

Release of the Philadelphia suspects followed a complaint understood to have been made to Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, by Philadelphia authorities. Police of the Pennsylvania city were reported to be irate because none of the investigators of the shooting at the Colonial Tea House had come there to question the men being held.

The five women and two men being held in the Hyattsville Jail as witnesses were released yesterday on bond posted by Norman Dudrow, of Hyattsville, a professional bondsman. He put up bail totaling $7,700.

The girls were met at the door of the jail by men with cars, who carried them away. Two of them are understood to have gone to Baltimore, while the others remained in Hyattsville. They will be called back on December 4, when a coroner's jury will see the shooting reenacted in the same room in which it occurred.

Questions Wounded Persons.

Detectives Cornelius Roche and William Feehley, the Baltimore men whose assistance in the case was asked, revisited the old colonial mansion yesterday, but without result. Later, accompanied by the Justice men, they visited the injured at the hospital and obtained sworn statements. They do not plan to come to Hyattsville today, they said last night.

So far the anonymous person who called Constable Andrew Gasch and offered to identify the bandits has not phoned again. Constable Gasch last night asked the newspapers to tell the man that he was anxious to hear from him again, and that he would be protected if he would phone.

All the persons held on bond will have a preliminary hearing on December 9, it was said yesterday by Alan Bowie, State's attorney. It is understood that Samuel Kushner arranged for bond for the others after he had secured his own release.

PANTAGES CLEARED OF GIRL'S CHARGES

Jury Finds Theater Man Guiltless of Attack on Young Dancer.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Amid tumultuous scenes, in which courtroom spectators joined in the joy of a family, Alexander Pantages, theater multimillionaire, was acquitted today of charges of a criminal attack upon Eunice Pringle, 19-year-old dancer.

The verdict of the jury, announced at 10:33 a. m., after nearly 65 hours of deliberation, came two years after Pantages had been convicted at the original trial and was granted a second trial by the State supreme court. The jurors, joining in an opinion of disbelief of Miss Pringle's story, said they had arrived at the verdict last night, but decided to "sleep on it."

As John Williams, jury foreman, read the verdict, Pantages and his wife broke into tears. Spectators, shouting wildly, leaped on top of their seats and hats were thrown into the air. The court rapped loudly for order. It was several minutes before bailiffs could control the crowd.

The 59-year-old showman was overcome by emotion. His wife, turning to the spectators as they surged about the couple, said:

"This is the happiest moment of my life. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but truth will out. I'm too happy to say more."

From the day of his arrest, August 9, 1929, Pantages claimed that Miss Pringle had conspired to blacken his character because of refusal to buy her stage act.

Wooden Fences Voted For Parking Inclosures

Upon recommendation of Maj. D. A. Davison, acting Engineer Commissioner, the District Commissioners yesterday voted to amend the police regulations so as to permit the erection of wooden fences of colonial design on public parking spaces providing they do not exceed 3 feet in height.

Heretofore, regulations have permitted enclosing of such parking by fences of open iron or ornamental or woven wire of approved type. The Commissioners, however, must approve all designs for the wooden fences.

THE above picture, taken in 1908 in the rear of the Lafayette Square Opera House, which is now known as the Shubert-Belasco Theater, depicts a portion of the cast of the play "About Thebes," which was given for the benefit of the Junior Republic, an organization which established summer camps for the poor and destitute children of the city. The cast embraced the cream of the social registerites of the city who presented the production for an entire week before a most distinguished audience. The play was written by Mrs. Alice Clifford Barney.

A reminiscent eye would distinguish the gentleman on the extreme right as Marvin Thompson; the Terrible Turk leaning against the palms on the top row as Dr. Alfred Hopkins; as Charles Harris, the Eastern potthe divine on the extreme lower left tentate squatted in the middle foreground as Ali Khali Khan, the Charge de'Affaires at the Persian Legation; the gentleman standing in the second row right as Robert V. Fleming, now president of the Riggs National Bank.

Among the notables to attend the opening performance were President and Mrs. William Howard Taft, together with members of the Cabinet, and high officials of the Diplomatic Corps.

PRATT SAYS BUTLER PROTEST IS 'PIFFLE'

Ranking Navy Officer Denies "Desk Admirals" Blocked Marine as Chief.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy's ranking officer thinks charges of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired, that "swivel chair" admirals blocked his promotion to commandant of the Marine Corps are "all piffle."

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, was the first official to take cognizance of Gen. Butler's remarks in a magazine article.

Asking, "Who are these 'desk admirals,' anyway?" Admiral Pratt said all the admirals he knew either had just come in from sea duty, or were about to go to sea. He could not think of a single one, he said, who would fill Gen. Butler's description.

"After all, admirals don't make appointments," Admiral Pratt said, in asserting he could not see what they had to do with blocking the fiery Marine Corp's general's promotion.

Admiral Pratt added he was not trying to "pick a quarrel" with Gen. Butler, whom he said he admired.

"He is a great fighter," he said, "and, though I don't know him personally, I have a very high regard for his abilities. He has a record to be proud of."

Philadelphians to Ask Navy for Butler Tablet

Philadelphia, Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Efforts were started today to bring to Philadelphia the bronze tablet honoring Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, which was removed from the Navy Building in Washington to the marine post at Quantico, Va., at the order of the Navy Department.

William R. Nicholson, jr., secretary of the Butler memorial commission, said the aid of both Mayor Mackey and Mayor-Elect Moore will be enlisted in bringing the tablet here. He termed the action of the Navy Department as a "most unfortunate and grave mistake."

Opposition Faced By Mrs. Caraway

Late Senator's Friends Are Rallying to Support Her Nomination.

Jonesboro, Ark., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—A reported movement to nominate a man for the United States Senate office now held by Mrs. Hattie S. Caraway will be bitterly opposed by Democratic leaders of this part or Arkansas and constituents of the late United States Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, it was announced today.

Mrs. Caraway's present appointment expires on January 12, when a special election will be held. A poll of the Democratic State central committee showed that 20 of its 32 members favored Mrs. Caraway. There has been a decided movement, however, to sidetrack the nomination of Mrs. Caraway, Charles Frierson, of the Craighead County central committee, said today in calling a "Mrs. Caraway" mass meeting here tomorrow.

Frank Pace, Little Rock attorney, has been gaining ground for the nomination, which will be made by the State committee December 1. Nomination would be equivalent to election.

Will Speak on Relaxation.

Thomas Robert Gaines will give the first of four free lectures on his system of mental and physical relaxation at the Masonic Temple at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Mr. Gaines is said to have successfully demonstrated his system in his courses for the Brooklyn Teachers Association, the New York City Police School and clubs throughout the country.

Advertising to Shout Reveille of Business

By JOHN J. DALY

GREAT tales of prosperity, unprecedented sales, a new awakening of customer appeal and the disappearance of red ink from ledgers are unfolded in a tract issued by the Commerce Department, a paper destined to prove the efficacy of the original American slogan, "It Pays to Advertise."

Once upon a time, as Emerson set it down, a man, if he made a better mouse trap than his neighbor, might find the world beating a pathway to his door—even if he lived in the woods.

Today, a man might make almost anything better than his neighbor, but if he wants to sell his product he must, perforce, let the whole world in on the secret.

It is the age of publicity and advertising.

* * * * *

A FIRM without a publicity agent is like a brass band without a bass drum.

Everybody fighting for recognition, the modest little man who sits back and waits for the world to discover his product—no matter what his line may be—is destined to grow old and die without gathering the emoluments of success.

Side-street showmanship is defunct. The new order insists upon a parade and then delivery of the goods.

It is what makes America a going concern.

A scientific market analysis shows that for every dollar spent in this country a dollar's worth of advertising has been sent out as a decoy.

* * * * *

IT may grate on sensitive souls to have advertising shouted at them over the radio, plastered on billboards, shown on the screen and spread over the printed page; but the pageantry of press agentry is as glorious as the march of the Crusaders of old.

It keeps the world moving, if nothing else, and provides handsomely for all concerned.

Now that the Government has taken official recognition of results obtained by the use of advertising and publicity, it is natural to expect that the backward brothers of commerce and trade will get aboard the band wagon, start tooting their horns and send the calliopes cavorting around the countryside.

* * * *

Then, watch the rapid return of prosperity. With all hands entered in the game, half the populace making products and the other half calling attention to them, such a din and roar will be sounded that peace and quiet will disappear forever from the land. The great god of salesmanship will be set upon its throne and the public will come from near and far to worship—and to buy.

Shout it, do not whisper! In this age, lung-power counts. The man with a megaphone is infinitely better equipped than his rival who gets stage fright at the sound of his own voice.

The moral is, if you have something to sell, tell it to the folks. To make sure they can hear, shout down the opposition. Silence, once thought golden, no longer glitters. Even a preacher must let it be known where he is going to preach. An actor who would play "Hamlet" must first get a press agent to say something about Shakespeare, but more about the Thespian. It is the answer to the question, To be, or not to be?

HORDES OF GRANDI'S GUARDS RELAX AS STATESMAN SAILS

roofs and in niches behind construction equipment and temporary ladders.

Women operatives were at work with pistols neatly cached in handbags. A "window cleaner," high above the crowd at the custom house, carried his revolver in his pail.

When Grandi stepped from his hotel to the official automobile that was always at his disposal, a secret alarm was sounded. Unknown to him a second car, crammed with "gentlemen about town," strangely armed for clubmen, followed. At the same signal, all traffic was turned away from his route. And occasionally, by peculiar coincidence, an automobile would suddenly crowd a suspected car to the sidewalk, just in case——.

The armed, uniformed forces were there, too, of course. Two thousand policemen lined the short distance from the Battery to the city hall when he made his pilgrimage to the little old colonial building where the statue of civic virtue holds his pretended guard. They stood with their backs to Grandi's procession and their faces to the sidewalk. Incidentally, they stopped one man who, with a cry of "assassin!" attempted to break through the lines.

Broad - chested, double - breasted bluecoats, shoulder to shoulder, made a wall for Grandi to pass when he left his hotel. No one with a bundle in his hand or under his arm could come within 100 yards of him. Two floors in the Ritz-Carlton were occupied by guards during Grandi's visit.

At the pier, when he sailed today, the same activity was manifest. For hours before the sailing, which was scheduled for 3 p. m., and which took place half an hour later, detectives searched the ship for stowaways. Relatives and friends desirous of seeing voyagers off on the Augustus were denied the mixed pleasures and tears of a last farewell. No passes were issued for the docks.

A hundred stalwart uniformed men swept the Grandi party aboard, dispersing all curious gatherings of citizens within a radius of half a block. But once aboard the steamer even their strength was insufficient to drive away throngs of his fellow passengers who formed a flying wedge and shut the foreign minister even from the view of newspaper reporters who were caught in the swirling mob.

And then the whistles blew and the tugs puffed, the gangplank was hauled in and the Augustus swung out into the stream, and the uniforms marched away and the "loungers" and "stevedores" and "ship officials" went home and pulled off their false whiskers and went down to the station house to report.

The Grandi guard was the most elaborate ever accorded a New York visitor. From time to time newspapermen attempted to learn what was behind it. What threats had been received to cause the police department to take such extensive precautions?

The answer was that there were no specific threats except from the usual few from cranks. But because of the economic depression and its attendant unrest and because New York's large Italian population embraces many anti-Fascists, the police department decided to spare no expense in protecting its visitor.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Gov. Pinchot today sent a telegram to Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, at New York, telling him that under the Pennsylvania constitution he could not grant his request for a pardon for Orlando Spartaco, of Philadelphia.

Spartaco was sentenced Wednesday by Judge Harry S. McDevitt, Philadelphia, to serve two years in jail for inciting to riot. Spartaco leaped on Grandi's automobile and shouted "Down with Mussolini. Down with Grandi. You are murdering our Italian youth." Yesterday Grandi wired Pinchot asking that he pardon Spartaco.

The governor's reply stated that he was turning the Grandi telegram over to the State board of pardons.

Shrinkage of Securities Lowers $75,000 Trust Fund.

An estate of $51,965.16 was left by Samuel Ganss, who died November 3, the filing of his will for probate yesterday showed.

In his will Mr. Ganss directed that $75,000 be held in trust by the Franklin National Bank for the widow. Securities which made up the entire estate shrunk in value so that at the time of his death the estate was worth many thousands less than $75,000. Two daughters, Jeannette Luchs and Flora Kaufman, were each given $2,000.

The bank and Mrs. Ganss were named executors.

MANAGERS DEFEND FARM BOARD DEALS

Benefit Worth Cost, Cotton Chief Says; Senators Get Wheat Figures.

(Associated Press.)

Two Farm Board field generals yesterday defended their tactics on the wheat and cotton battle fronts.

E. F. Creekmore, $75,000 a year general manager of the Cotton Stabilization Corporation and the American Cotton Cooperative Association, told the Senate agriculture committee the farmers' benefit from stabilization was worth its cost.

Before the same committee, George S. Milnor, $50,000-a-year general manager of the Grain Stabilization Corporation and the Farmers National Grain Corporation, testified to the financial success of the cooperative movement.

Meanwhile, another demand for abolition of the board came from Senator Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio. On his return to the Capital yesterday he described the board's stabilization operations as a "dismal failure."

Would Transfer Functions.

He added that he would like to see the cooperative activities continued, but said that function of the board could be transferred to the Agriculture Department.

Creekmore not only defended the cotton stabilization operations but said the losses suffered in cotton and wheat—now estimated on paper at $184,000,000—might have been recovered quickly had the Farm Board had the financial strength to take advantage of the present situation. He also welcomed investigation of the Farm Board proposed by the American Cotton Shippers Association and urged that it include the cooperative association and the cotton shippers.

Milnor, a typical business man who said he was 50 but didn't look it, revealed many of the operating secrets of the two grain corporations. He said the paper losses from grain stabilization operations had been $110,000,000 instead of $102,000,000 as indicated by a statement submitted by Chairman Stone of the Farm Board Wednesday.

He testified that the Farmers' National Grain Corporation now holds 12,184,000 bushels of wheat and has made a profit of $2,418,300 in its two years of operation. It was the first time any figures had been made public to indicate the financial success or failure of the cooperative movement under the agricultural marketing act.

$332,000 in Dividends.

The Farmers National, Milnor said, has an authorized capital stock of $10,000,000, of which $682,000 was paid in on October 31. At that time the corporation owed the Farm Board $16,185,000 and private commercial banks $2,194,000. The witness said he is paid $50,000 a year by the Farmers National, but that formerly $36,000 of his salary came from the stabilization corporation. Before he took his present position his income varied from $10,000 to $33,000, he added.

Questioned by Chairman McNary, of the committee, Milnor said the Farmers' National Corporation relies on money from the Farm Board to carry on its operations. Any profits it makes go back to the producers, through the cooperatives which are its stockholders. It has paid $332,000 in dividends, so far, all of which went to pay off capital stock notes.

J. M. Chilton, vice president of the Farmers National, Milnor said, gets $32,500; W. I. Beam, treasurer, $30,000, and Henry W. Collins, in charge of Northwest operations, $25,000.

In addition to its holdings of wheat on October 31, he said it had 179,000 bushels of durum wheat, 1,079,000 of oats, 908,000 of barley and 83,600 of rye.

Believes Hoover's Charges.

Milnor was questioned by members of the committee about President Hoover's charges of "bear" operations on the grain markets to discredit the Farm Board. At first he said he had heard rumors, but did not know their source.

Pressed further, about whether he thought there was any foundation for them, he said:

"I'm inclined to think there was."

He said there had been a great deal of speculation on the grain market since the board ceased its stabilization operations.

Second-Hand Garb Of U. S. Wins India

Britain Loses Lead as the Provider of Used Clothing.

(Associated Press.)

Fashion and business note—Mahatma Gandhi's countrymen are partial to second-hand clothes from the United States. This includes almost everything but pants. It is not that the Indian doesn't like the cut of American-made trousers, but he has little use for them, no matter where they are made.

Three or four years ago the Indian liked British styles in second-hand garments, so much so that he bought about 71 per cent of his supply from England, as compared to 29 per cent from this country.

The Commerce Department yesterday, however, gave its word that the figures were reversed for the year ending March 31. The United States sent $428,000 worth of discarded garments to India during the period.

Snow Makes Debut, But Soon Vanishes

Night Planes Are Menaced by Ice Formation on Their Wings.

Snowflakes made their seasonal debut early yesterday morning, but it was a brief and ineffectual appearance for after only a few minutes they changed to sleet and rain.

The rain which has continued intermittently ever since will end early today, the Weather Bureau believes. The heavy misty condition of yesterday will continue.

Weather conditions have been hazardous to night airplane flights by causing ice formation on the wings of airships. Verne Treat, transport flier, arrived at Bolling Field yesterday morning with 100 pounds of ice on his craft.

Minimum temperatures will remain about the same over the weekend, the weather forecaster said. The thermometer will not go below 35 degrees.

U. S. DEFICIT NEARS $1,000,000,000 MARK

Bacharach Renews Demand for Higher Taxes on Large Incomes.

(Associated Press.)

Another increase in the Federal deficit—now fast approaching the billion dollar mark—gave impetus yesterday to the congressional study of means to make revenue equal with expenditures.

Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, a Republican leader of the ways and means committee, which must originate tax legislation, voiced again his program calling for higher rates on large individual incomes, estates, a gift tax and sales taxes on nonessentials.

At the White House and the Treasury as well, much thought was given to the problem. President Hoover is to transmit to Congress in a little more than a week his recommendations for dealing with it.

The deficit yesterday stood at $813,377,093 for the first 147 days of the fiscal year. The entire last fiscal year produced a deficit of $903,000,000.

"$1.65 Out for Every $1 In."

Representative Bacharach in his radio address said the Government was now in the position where every time it took in a dollar "it finds itself obliged to pay out $1.65."

To remedy this situation, Bacharach recommended, first, "considerable increase in rates on net incomes of over $100,000 with relatively smaller increases on net incomes of between $20,000 and $100,000 as may be made necessary by our revenue requirements."

Next, he proposed a new emergency estate tax over and above the present rates, on which the 80 per cent credit for taxes paid States would not be effective. To preclude escape from estate taxes, he would apply a tax on gifts.

Bacharach Estimate of Yield.

"In addition to the wealthy class, there is one other class who are able to pay somewhat increased taxes," Bacharach said. "This class is composed of those who can afford to buy the luxuries or nonessentials of life.

"Our past experience with sales and excise taxes indicate that such taxes might be considered on jewelry, theater tickets, bank checks, soft drinks, sporting goods, fur coats, patent medicines, perfumes, cosmetics and candy."

Bacharach has estimated his tax program would increase revenue by $750,000,000. He opposed any additional taxes on corporations and said further burdens on business should be avoided at this time.

President Hoover Taking No Part in Selection of 1932 City.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover intends to leave the selection of a city for the next Republican national convention strictly to the national committee and is not taking sides for any one site.

White House officials yesterday made it a point to deny published reports that the Chief Executive was lending his influence to the selection of Cleveland.

It was said officially that Mr. Hoover is not taking any part in the selection of a site for the convention, since he feels this is a matter for the Republican national committee to decide.

Ritchie Is Spared Radical Outbreak

Police Diplomacy Averts Threatened Demonstration at Club.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, unmolested by a threatened radical demonstration, tonight spoke unofficially to the University Club here, escorted to and from the club by a detail of city police.

For the first time in history, Gov. Ritchie had a guard instead of an escort, and it was entirely unneeded. The guard was detailed by the Central Police Station, and through diplomacy of its commander, Sergt. Joseph Zaruba, no action was necessary.

When Gov. Ritchie arrived at the University Club more than twoscore members of a radical organization were awaiting him. Sergt. Zaruba spoke to them, advising they present any application to the governor in his regular business hours, rather than in a public demonstration. The small gathering dispersed, and the executive entered the club, scarcely aware any move had been made.

HOKE SMITH, LEADER IN GEORGIA, IS DEAD

Cleveland Cabinet Member Was Twice Governor and Senator.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Hoke Smith, for many years a dramatic and dynamic figure in State and national political life, died here today at the age of 76.

Secretary of the Interior under President Cleveland, twice governor of Georgia and twice United States senator, the venerable statesman passed away at his home after a long illness. Physicians abandoned hope for his life last night when his condition took a sudden turn for the worse.

Mr. Smith first attracted attention in a political way at the age of 20, when he was made chairman of the Fulton County (Georgia) Democratic executive committee. This started him on a career which took him in successive steps to some of the highest political posts attained by any Georgian.

Purchased Atlanta Journal.

Born at Newton, N. C., September 2, 1855, Mr. Smith prepared himself for the legal profession. His interests broadened, however, and in 1887 he purchased the Atlanta Evening Journal, becoming president and editor.

A year later he projected the paper into a fight which contributed toward seating him in the President's Cabinet. He was made Secretary of the Interior, and at the time was one of the youngest men ever to grace a President's Cabinet.

He surrendered this office after a time to return to his practice of law here and to supervision of the Atlanta Journal, but was subsequently swept into the political light through a whirlwind campaign for governor, which he won.

Political Fight Develops.

In the meantime, he sold the Atlanta Journal and prepared to devote himself to the practice of law after concluding his term as governor. The panic of 1907 and internal political upsets intervened, however, and brought on a political fight, which is still discussed in Georgia.

Joseph M. Brown, member of the State Railroad Commission, refused to follow Gov. Smith's wishes and was ousted. Political enemies of Smith immediately backed Brown for governor and a heated campaign was waged. Brown won, using the slogan, "Brown and Bread," and for the time being Smith retired from the scene.

Toward the close of Gov. Brown's term, however, a challenge was issued to Smith to run again and he did, stumping the State and resorting to the oratorical powers of which he was a master. He received 97,000 votes—compared with 93,000 cast for Brown.

But twelve days after his inauguration for a second term as governor, United States Senator A. S. Clay died and the Legislature elected Smith to succeed him.

Fought Wilson on League.

In 1915 he was reelected to the Senate, but found himself opposed to the views and policies of President Wilson in the League of Nations controversy. Later his name was offered in the presidential primaries in this State, but he lost the fight and a year later was defeated for the Senate.

In 1883, Mr. Smith married Miss Birdie Cobb, of Athens, Ga., and four children were born of the marriage. They are Mrs. Ronald Ransom, Mrs. Callie Smith May, Mrs. Spotswood Grant and Marion Smith, all of Atlanta. All were present when their father died.

Mr. Smith's first wife died in 1919 and in 1924 he married Miss Maisie Crawford, of Cordele, Ga., who survives.

Gov. Richard B. Russell, jr., today ordered the flag on the Capitol to fly at half mast for 30 days and said State offices would be closed during funeral services, yet to be arranged. He appointed as a guard of honor all living former governors, justices of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals and other State house officers.

Crisp Expects Georgia To Support Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

Representative Crisp expects Georgia to be solidly behind Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, for the Presidential nomination and election.

Interviewed upon returning to his office at the Capitol, the Georgian said his state likes Roosevelt's ideas. As to Roosevelt opposition to prohibition, Mr. Crisp laughingly added, "Well, we're not saying much about that."

Rites for Film Star To Be in Cathedral

Lya De Putti Dies After Career Arrested by Foreign Accent.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Lya de Putti, Hungarian film star, died early today, ending at 32 a vivid career in which success was arrested at full bloom because she spoke English with an accent.

Solemn high requiem mass will be celebrated in St. Patrick's Cathedral Monday morning as her funeral service. Whether she will be buried in America or in her native land had not been decided late today.

Miss de Putti died in the Harbor Sanitarium, where she was taken a week ago with a bone lodged in her throat. Blood poisoning followed upon an operation. Pneumonia complicated her condition. The last sacrament of the Roman Catholic Church was administered to her at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She was unconscious for 24 hours before she died.

17 IN DRY LAW CASES FACE PLOT CHARGES

Charles County Prisoners Told of Indictment at Hearing in Court.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27.—Expecting a preliminary hearing before J. Frank Supplee, United States Commissioner, seventeen residents of Charles County today were informed on their arrival before Commissioner Supplee that they had been indicted on a charge of conspiracy to violate the dry laws and would be required to post bond with the clerk of the United States District Court pending trial.

A total of $70,000 bail was posted by the men and they were released. No date for the trial has been set. It is said that Federal officials are seeking a number of defendants not yet apprehended.

Others Surrender Selves.

Nine of the defendants were arrested on November 10 at Waldorf by a group of ten dry agents and seven deputy United States marshals who went there in automobiles from Baltimore. Arraigned the next day before Commissioner Supplee they were released on bond for a hearing yesterday. On the day of the arraignment three more defendants surrendered, and since then five more have been arrested or have surrendered.

On Monday the Federal grand jury returned an indictment against the men charging them with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws by manufacturing, possessing, transporting and selling liquor.

The conspiracy is alleged to have started in 1927 and continued to the present time. It was said to have been discovered while dry agents were making a sustained drive in southern Maryland last December, and special agents have been working on the case since then. The investment in stills, trucks, and other machinery was estimated to be in excess of $100,000.

Men Posting Bond.

Those who gave bond today were: J. Louis Groves and Paul C. Robinson, $10,000 each; Raymond Beavers, Emery Lee Bowie, Dadie Embrie, G. Roscoe Robey and Levi Hicks, $5,000 each; Ernest Wedding, George Hunt, Anderson Trotter, Tommie Willett, Fulton Willett, Theodore Hawkins, Sidney Thomas, Archie Willett, Ben F. Bowie and Robert Lee Garner, $2,500 each.

The defendants are represented by John F. Mudd, of La Plata, Md., and Robert Carman, of Baltimore. Milton H. Talkin, assistant United States attorney, is in charge of the case for the Government.

Dawes Is Boomed For Second Place

Republicans of Midwest Believe Curtis Will Run for Senate.

Chicago, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—A quiet but determined campaign among Middle Western Republicans is under way, the Daily News said today, to nominate Ambassador Charles G. Dawes as the running mate of President Hoover in 1932.

The principal obstacle to the plan would be to convince Ambassador Dawes that he should reenter active politics, but the News said partisans of the President proposed to appeal to the former Vice President to permit placing his name in nomination. On his last visit Gen. Dawes expressed a desire to return to private life early in 1933, the year of the Century of Progress Exposition, to which he has devoted much time.

The movement to nominate Dawes was predicated on the belief of "close friends to the President" that Vice President Charles Curtis would seek return to the Senate from Kansas next year, the News story said.

Hoover and Allen Confer On St. Lawrence Plans

(Associated Press.)

Former Senator Allen, of Kansas, now special counsel on the State Department's negotiations with Canada over the St. Lawrence waterway project, conferred upon plans for the seaway yesterday with President Hoover.

On leaving, he would say only that "real progress" is being made.

Miss Ferguson's Rites to Be Today

Daughter of Federal Trade Commissioner Will Be Buried From Home.

Funeral services will be held today at her former home at 1624 Eighteenth street northwest for Miss Margaret Ferguson, daughter of Garland S. Ferguson, member of the Federal Trade Commission. She will be buried in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Miss Ferguson, who was 22, died in Cleveland Wednesday, after an operation for a heart ailment. She was taken to Cleveland two weeks ago to be under the care of a specialist in heart troubles, when her condition became worse. A severe attack of pneumonia about eighteen months ago was the base of the trouble, it was believed.

The dead girl is survived by her parents, a sister, Miss Sallie Ferguson, and a brother, Garland S. Ferguson, 3d. Her father is a member of the Trade Commission.

SMUGGLING COMBINE IS BELIEVED BROKEN

tering into an arrangement with Howard Yarden, Alexandria Bay (N. Y.) boatman, whereby yardmen met groups of aliens at Rockport, Canada, loaded them onto his ferryboat, took them across the St. Lawrence and landed them in the United States for a toll of $50 each.

The third method, involving the alleged connivance of clerks in the Government service, was uncovered after Medalie had received information Albert F. Borrelli and Edward Burns, naturalization clerks at Ellis Island, and Simon Rothberg, immigration clerk at the barge office, were in constant communication with steamship agents and immigration consultants.

The third method was used, officials said, to provide papers for aliens who never had been in the country before and therefore were barred; for aliens who had entered illegally as stowaways or deserting seamen; and for visitors who had overstayed their permits.

The system was to search the records for an alien with a similar name whose description tallied fairly well with that of the ring's "client."

R. W. Child's Father Dies at Boston Home

Boston, Nov. 27 (U.P.)—Horace Walter Child, 79, father of Richard Washburn Child, former Ambassador to Italy, died at his Back Bay home today.

Child was a native of Millbury. His wife, the former Susannah Messinger, of Worcester, also survives him.

Death Plot Is Laid To Miners' Union

Witness in Harlan Trial Tells of Clandestine War Councils.

Mount Sterling, Ky., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Tales of clandestine meetings at which miners were alleged to have plotted death to "the law" in Harlan County, were added today to the mass of testimony on which the State hopes to send W. B. Jones, Evarts mine union officer, to the electric chair for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Jim Daniels, one of four men slain last May 5 in a fight between miners and deputies near Evarts. The prosecution seeks to refute Jones' claim that the deputies fired on a peaceful group of idle miners.

John Lester, former merchant and taxicab driver, told of a miners' meeting in an Evarts theater the night before the fight. At this meeting, he testified, plans for the clash were made. He said Jones had a prominent role.

"Don't shoot at their bodies," Lester said Jones remarked. "Shoot at their heads." Lester said Jones explained that the officers were "well breastplated."

Man Dies on Eve of 10-Year Term.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—James A. Connolly, St. Paul securities dealer, who was recently sentenced to 10 years in Atlanta Penitentiary for mail fraud, died in the Federal house of detention of acute indigestion last night. Connolly, sports patron and former police reporter for a Minneapolis paper, was acquitted in 1922 of disposing of the $1,200,000 loot of Gerald Chapman, New York mail truck robber.

I. C. C. TO HEAR ARGUMENTS ON RAIL POOLING PLAN TODAY

benefit of the pool are anthracite and bituminous coal, which are used both for domestic purposes and as basic commodities in industrial production. It is also proposed to raise rates on lumber of all kinds, pulp wood, coke, iron ore, pig iron, phosphate rock (used in agriculture for fertilizer), fresh vegetables and other products of agriculture, brick, cement, lime and substantially all building materials and all fertilizers.

A protest has gone up from agricultural and coal-producing industries; holding that there can be no justification for taxing those interests by higher rates, unless such rates are needed to support the roads by which the particular shippers are directly served. The plan proposed is to impose these taxes and to send the proceeds to distant portions of the country to support railroads with which those who pay the additional rates have no connection. As bond interest is made the basis of distribution from the fund, the road which has the largest volume of bonds in proportion to its total capital will be the largest beneficiary of the plan. It is contended that this is a premium upon reckless financing.

Bad Financing Cited.

Opponents of the plan hold that the loans should be based upon systems rather than upon separate operating railroads. Some systems have been enlarged through the use of holding companies and in ways which the Interstate Commerce Commission has declared to be in violation of the Clayton act, and in contempt of the commission's authority under consolidation provisions of the interstate commerce act.

If the individual companies which constitute systems so made up are permitted to receive aid from the pool, the holding companies which are claimed to have acted in violation of law will escape responsibility for financing their subsidiaries. This relief will be at the expense of other railroads and of shippers who object to the extravagant acquisition of unprofitable roads. It is said that no system in the Eastern territory is unable to take care of all the corporations of which it is composed.

Privately Owned Lines Aided.

One railroad which might borrow from the fund, if the plan goes through in the form in which it has been presented, is the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, entirely owned by the United States Steel Corporation, and another is the Chicago & Illinois Midland, which is entirely owned by the Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago.

If individual railroads are allowed to obtain aid from the fund without regard to their system of affiliations, the result will be that some systems will be aided at the expense of others and the shippers over those systems, opponents of the plan hold.

On the other hand, if systems of affiliated railroads are regarded as units and railroads owned by great industrial corporations are excluded as borrowers, there will be, it is said, in the whole region north of the Mason and Dixon Line and east of the Mississippi, only one railroad which can go to the fund and demand aid. This is a small line in Pennsylvania—and the maximum amount which it could borrow would be less than $20,000.

It is contended that most railroads in danger of default are held as integral parts of systems that are amply able to take care of all their needs.

Capital Motorist Robbed in Virginia

Victim Charges Two Men Took His Clothes, $150 and Automobile.

Fincastle, Va., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—W. Griffin, of Washington, D. C., was reported to have been robbed of his clothing, $150 in cash and his automobile by two unidentified men, who left him by the side of the road about 8 miles east of Roanoke, at a late hour last night. He was discovered by Will Calhoun, of the Coyner's Spring section, who notified Deputy Sheriff O. D. Lemon, of Fincastle.

According to Deputy Lemon, Mr. Griffin claims to have taken two strange men for a ride following the V. P. I.-V. M. I. game in Roanoke. His suspicious aroused, he told the officer he offered the pair $150, but that they refused to be satisfied with the money alone.

Deputy Lemon said examination of Griffin failed to reveal injuries to his person. Officers are continuing their investigation of the case in an effort to establish identity of the strangers.

Death Ordered in Treason Case.

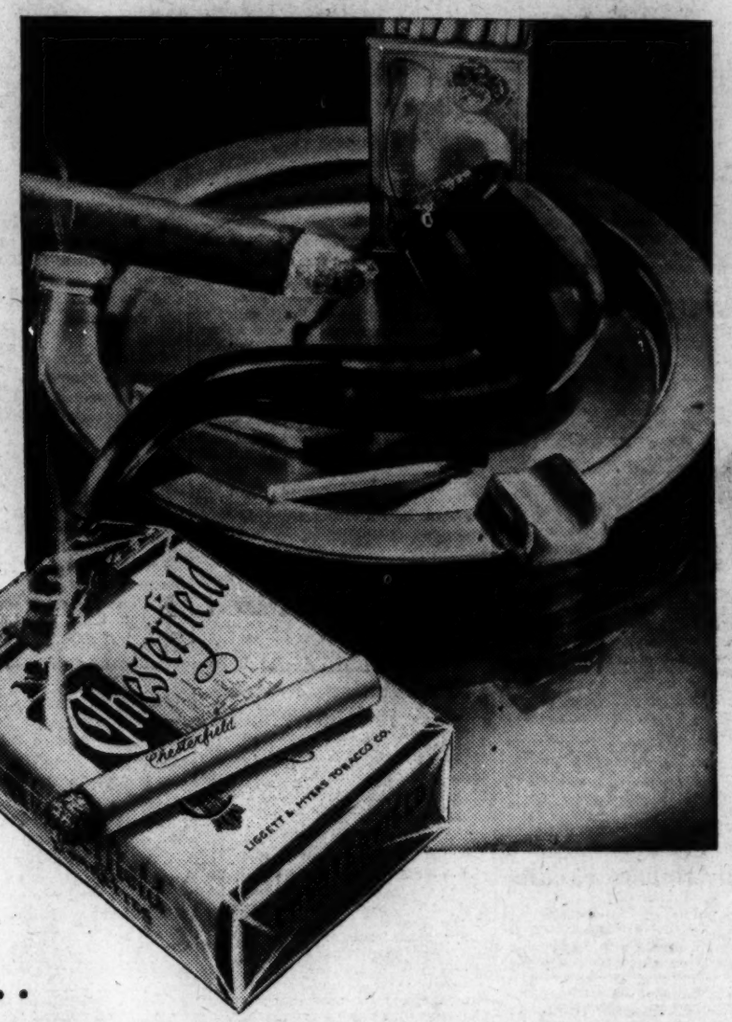
"I'll stand by it!"



"I'll stand by tobacco... in good times, in hard times... all kind of times... it helps a whole lot!

"I GREW up with tobacco. Mostly I smoke cigarettes now—but I've smoked plenty of cigars, and pipes, too. And I never got anything but good from tobacco in any form—pipe, cigar, or cigarette—and that goes for every smoker I ever heard about.

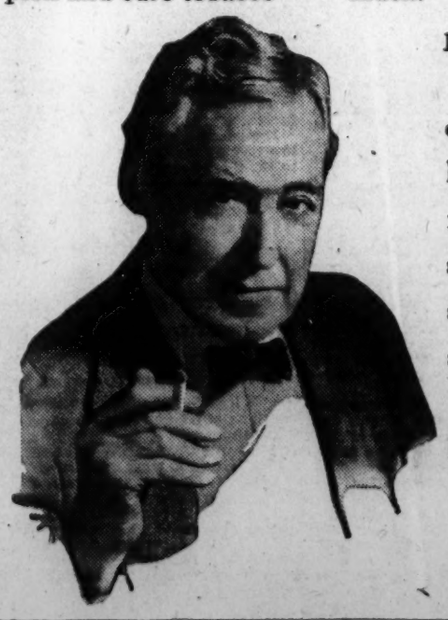
"Why, I remember as a boy, way back, how the old folks in the fall used to pick and cure tobacco from a little patch they'd raised, and save out the best for their own smoking. And my father fought all through the war, and lived to be ninety.

"He'd certainly appreciate what we get today, though. Just think about these CHESTERFIELDS of mine—fine tobaccos from all over the world, and cured and blended just so; you couldn't get anything purer, or milder. Cleanest factories you ever saw, too—never a hand touching the cigarettes . . . everything up to date.

"A big improvement over the old ways . . . reckon that's why I like CHESTERFIELDS so much. I notice most of my friends get a lot of pleasure out of them, too.*

"But what I started out to say was, you can always depend on tobacco, no matter how things are going. Probably there was never anything in the world that meant so much to so many people, and cost so little, as tobacco—whatever way they smoke it.

"Yes, sir—I'll stand up for tobacco as long as I can strike a match!"



*NOTE. In the sections where tobacco grows and where people know tobacco, Chesterfield is usually the largest-selling cigarette.

Old Faith Hymn To Be Dramatized

Petworth Methodists Will Close Series Tomorrow Evening.

Petworth Methodists will hold their concluding service in the series, "Living Messages From Old Hymns," tomorrow evening, when the hymn, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," will be given a dramatic interpretation. Three young women, members of the congregation, will take part in the drama. The pastor, the Rev. Robert Louis Wood, will preach an appropriate sermon.

This series has not only drawn large congregations to the evening services, but it has attracted attention outside of Washington. Letters have been received from a number of ministers in other cities, asking for information on the plan followed in arranging the unique service.

It is a significant fact that the so-called evangelical churches of this this city have taken up a service of song as part of the evening worship program. The singing of the old, familiar hymns before the preaching service seem to have what Mr. Wood calls "a heart warming impulse."

Brahmanism Topic Of Dr. Z. B. Phillips

Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, will continue the course of lecture sermons on the general theme "The Development of the Doctrine of God and Immortality as Revealed in the Great Religions of the World" and the special subject of the sermon tomorrow night will be "Brahmanism."

This is the second sermon of the series.

VENERABLE COLORED CHURCH CELEBRATES

Second Baptist, 83 Years Old Tomorrow, to Have Birthday Service.

One of the oldest colored congregations in Washington is the Second Baptist Church, of which the Rev. J. L. S. Holloman is pastor. Tomorrow it will celebrate its eighty-third birthday. That will make its founding date back to 1848, fourteen years before the slaves in the District of Columbia were freed.

There were not many exclusively colored churches in Washington prior to Mr. Lincoln's inauguration. The Presbyterians had one, known as the Fifteenth Street Church, which had white pastors down to a period after the sectional war. Since then it has had colored ministers.

In Washington in those far-off days there were not a great many so-called freedmen, and most of the slaves worshipped in the churches attended by their masters. This probably accounts for the limited number of strictly colored congregations.

Farther South, as this writer well knows from long historical research, in every city and large town there was one or more churches dedicated to the worship of the colored people alone. They were generally called African churches, or "the African church;" and in Richmond, Charleston and Mobile, to mention but three cities, they were the largest churches in seating capacity and in membership in those communities.

All the great antebellum political gatherings in Richmond met in the African Church, because it would hold more than 2,000 persons. Stephen A. Douglas made a notable speech in that church in Richmond, and the last public speech made by Jefferson Davis as President of the Confederacy was delivered in the same auditorium.

As pastors of these antebellum African churches the most eloquent white ministers in the South were chosen. When the great and justly famous Democratic convention met in Charleston in 1860, Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts, attended the service at the African Church, sitting with other white persons in the gallery, thus reversing the rule that obtained in the white churches. The preacher was the foremost Presbyterian minister in the South, a man of great spiritual force and splendid eloquence. It is related of Butler that as he sat spellbound under the preacher's eloquence and witnessed the respect and dignity with which the colored people listened to the sermon and the unction with which they responded to it, he melted into tears and wept aloud. When the colored ushers passed the plate he emptied his pockets of every cent he had.

I have read in several places the history of that remarkable church, and of some of its remarkable members, and I dare say that there never was in all the land a more spiritual or influential congregation of Christians, white or colored.

Some one should gather up the memorials of these churches and of such churches as the Second Baptist and Fifteenth Street Presbyterian here and put them together in a book. It would not be the least interesting book that has ever been written.

For the anniversary service tomorrow, the Rev. Mr. Holloman will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion; and, in the afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a platform meeting at which three speakers will appear. The day will close with a mammoth anniversary sing.—D. R. B.

Rev. G. E. Schnabel to Lecture.

Tomorrow evening the Rev. George E. Schnabel, minister of Albright Evangelical Church, will deliver a travel sermon "From the Jordan and Beyond to the Plains of Sharon." The lecture will be illustrated with a series of color slides.

CHURCH IS FORMING VISITATION GROUP

Luther Place Chorus Choir Organized and Will Sing at Evening Services.

The Every Member Visitation Committee of Luther Place Church will be completed tomorrow with all records broken in the number of visitors working, the number of people visited, the number of systematic givers recruited and the number of members enlisted for activities in the auxiliaries of the congregation.

A chorus choir has been organized under leadership of Charles A. Whitten, which will be featured in the evening services. Mr. Whitten, a graduate of Carthage College and the Carthage College Conservatory of Music, was a member of the a cappella choir of that institution. He also was soloist of the Mendelssohn Choir. In the new Luther Place Chorus Choir many promising young voices have been enlisted. Their purpose is to make a thorough study of Lutheran music, its history, development and methods of presentation.

This new choir will not displace the quartet choir led by Walter Humphrey, which will be heard at the morning services and will also be featured on special occasions. Mr Humphrey has been bass soloist at the First Congregational Church under the late Prof. Bischoff and also bass soloist of the Church of the Covenant.

The membership building program of the church is gathering new impetus with the approach of the Advent season. The group which will be received on the Sunday before Christmas will be known as Luther Place Memorial's Christmas Gift to the King. There will be a roll call of the various groups received during 1931, and with new members standing the group to be received will march down to the chancel to be welcomed by Dr. Rasmussen.

A church, 70 per cent of whose members have been members for less than 20 months, presents problems that ordinary congregations do not have to face. The knitting together of all these new members, tying and cross-tying them into the congregational life calls for unusual leadership and fine devotion. The Rev. Frank H. Clutz, assistant pastor, has been assigned this task. He is laying off the whole city and all of its environs into districts—for the congregation has spread out as far as East Falls Church, Kensington, Four Corners, Hyattsville, Congress Heights and Alexandria—and will put workers in charge of each district to organize the members.

Dr. Edwards to Preach To Calvary Methodists

Dr. John R. Edwards, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach tomorrow morning at the Calvary Methodist Church, on Columbia road.

Volunteer Commander Will Preach at Mission

Lieut. Col. Frank H. Wise, regional commander of the Volunteers of America, will preach at the services at the Volunteer Mission, 471 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A RAILROAD DOLE.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will hear argument today for and against the plan proposed by certain railroads to pool the returns from freight rate increases and lend the proceeds to individual railroads in needy circumstances.

This plan as it stands proposes to penalize thrift and reward improvidence. It is in essence a dole, but not a dole to virtue in distress. Certain large railroad systems in flush times entered upon ambitious programs of expansion and bought subsidiary lines which do not earn interest upon the investment. They are now asking that the taxpayers, through increased freight rates, shall provide the money to keep afloat these superfluous and unprofitable subsidiaries. Why do not these systems finance their own subsidiaries?

Some of the systems owning unprofitable subsidiaries are owned in Canada. It is proposed to compel American taxpayers to furnish money with which to support feeble lines owned by Canada and Canadians. In the first instance the benefit would go to a foreign government, and in the other it would go to foreign taxpayers. The victims would be American consumers of coal, fertilizer, lumber, agricultural products, and building materials.

As the loans are to be made for the purpose of enabling railroads to pay interest on their bonds, it is evident that the railroad which has been most extravagant in issuing bonds will profit most by this increased tax upon the public.

If the Interstate Commerce Commission should conclude that it is necessary to bleed one set of railroads to invigorate others, part of the evil of the proposed dole would be avoided by basing it upon railroad systems and not upon individual roads. The systems which have absorbed individual lines, sometimes by questionable methods condemned by the commission, should be compelled to meet the consequences of their extravagance. If the unprofitable roads held by them are permitted to borrow cheap money from the pool the systems will be actually rewarded for their improvidence and speculation.

The great railroad systems of the East are able to take care of their obligations, including the obligations of weak subsidiaries held by them. None of these systems should be permitted to palm off upon taxpayers the obligations of unprofitable subsidiaries. Nor should any of these systems be required to impose increased freight rates to be devoted to the rescue of unprofitable individual roads in remote parts of the country.

The Interstate Commerce Commission intimated in its rate decision that in making the proposed advances each system of roads held under a single control should be treated as an entity. But the railroads now proposing the lending pool are ignoring this wise suggestion and are endeavoring to set up a plan whereby unprofitable roads owned by big systems shall be financed by the public in the form of increased freight rates.

This is robbing from the prudent rich to reward the poor for their improvidence. It is socialism applied to railroads. No Treasury dole, taking the working taxpayer's money to support willful idleness, could be more vicious in its basic principle.

AUSTRALIA OUSTS LABOR.

After holding power for a little more than two years Australia's Labor government, overthrown in Parliament, faces a test at the polls. Indications point to a decisive defeat, although it is not expected to be as overwhelming as that suffered by the Labor party in Great Britain. The extent of the revolt against Prime Minister Scullin is shown by the fact that his downfall was accomplished by the disaffection of members of the extreme left in the Labor party.

No question of differences with the British government is involved in the present change, since both Labor and Conservative elements are on good terms with England, and the movement for cooperation within the British Commonwealth of Nations has general support in Australia. Mr. Scullin's defeat, curiously, comes after more active opposition to some of his policies had passed. Apparently it is the result of the general British and colonial Conservative sentiment.

The recent attempts of Premier Lang, of New South Wales, to repudiate bonds of that state threatened for a time to damage Australian credit generally, but the Federal government paid the interest on the New South Wales bonds that were in default for a few months. Unfavorable reactions soon caused Premier Lang to abandon his threats.

With the proroguing of Parliament many measures under consideration will now await the outcome of elections that have been called for December 19. Evidence that business interests, which have opposed pending industrial measures expect a victory for the anti-Labor forces is seen in a decisive advance on the stock exchanges. It appears more than probable that Australia next month will follow the lead of England with a return to Conservative rule. In both countries the socialistic experiments of the Laborites have produced disastrous results and retreat to more practical policies is necessary.

PREMIER LAVAL UPHELD.

Premier Laval has been given a vote of confidence by the French Chamber of Deputies. His margin of 45 votes was not large, but it indicates that M. Laval will be permitted to go ahead with the negotiations designed to relieve Germany under the Young plan. The stand he took in the debate makes it extremely unlikely, however, that the total reparations debt of Germany will be reduced.

Danger that Premier Laval would be ousted from leadership in the Chamber of Deputies seems now to have passed. Apparently the deputies are satisfied with his explanation of his conversations with President Hoover. They have given him a vote of confidence not because he obtained any concessions through his visit to Washington, but because he refrained from giving anything away. M. Laval insisted that whatever future action is taken to relieve conditions in Germany must come within the limits of the Young plan. Beyond that he admits that nothing tangible came out of the American visit, although he lays considerable stress upon the elimination of misunderstandings.

So far as an actual reduction of reparations and war debts is concerned, it seems to recede farther into the realm of impracticalities each week. M. Laval has promised the French Parliament that he will agree to no cut in German reparations unless there is a corresponding reduction in the war debts owed by France. But no further pruning of the French debt to the United States can be expected, because the adjustment was made on "capacity to pay," and France has greater capacity to pay than ever before.

M. Laval holds the key to the reparations situation. But he can not go beyond the limits fixed by sentiment in the Chamber of Deputies any more than President Hoover could give assurance of congressional action on the subject of war debts. The burden of reparations is fastened upon the German people by the wish of French people. If France should agree to a temporary postponement of the conditional payments during the depression period it is as far as she can be expected to go.

ITALY AND DISARMAMENT.

The ostensible purpose of Foreign Minister Grandi's visit to the United States was to expound the Italian view of disarmament. In that he has succeeded well. His conversations with President Hoover were of a strictly private nature, but his addresses in New York have conveyed to the public in no uncertain terms the attitude of the Fascist government on this important subject. The American people can not doubt the sincerity of Italy's desire to see the armaments of the world limited and then reduced.

Signor Grandi's theory of security has a special appeal. He considers security a result rather than a condition of disarmament. Any nation demanding absolute security before beginning to disarm would have to develop greater military strength than any potential enemy or any combination of enemies. The result would be an armaments race and a total lack of security.

The element of confidence is also involved. The first step to allay mutual fear and mistrust, says Signor Grandi, is to reduce the armaments that have given rise to those attitudes. So long as the nations remain armed to the teeth they will have little faith in the peace treaties, in arbitration and other means of settling international disputes. They will base their hopes for security on military force.

It is impossible in this age for any nation to attain absolute security through military force. No nation is strong enough to hold out against all potential enemies. France, for example, can not hope to keep Germany suppressed indefinitely by force of arms. Maintenance of huge armies in France will probably give rise to greater armies in central Europe at some future time. On the other hand, an all-around reduction of war preparations should relieve the tension and allow other forces that make for security to come into play.

There is a happy medium between armaments that are so formidable as to threaten the peace of the world and facilities of national defense that make aggression on the part of other countries dangerous. The Italian and the American viewpoints in this respect seem to coincide. At the coming conference in Geneva both will be found seeking the way toward security through a world-wide reduction of arms that will not jeopardize national defense. The substantial identification of Mussolini's views with those of President Hoover on this subject is the most important result of Signor Grandi's visit.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

This is the season of the year when it is frequently wished that more real literary talent might be devoted to the production of books for the young. Too many mediocre books for children are published. Two prominent authorities have recently voiced this complaint. They are Prof. A. I. Gates, of Columbia University, and Mrs. Hugh Straus, chairman of the book committee of the Childs Study Association of America. They believe that much of the fiction for children pretends to be true to life, but is not. This misleading material has had the unwholesome tendency of stimulating young imaginations and expectations for things that are not realized in life.

The best children's books have been probable and true to life. They do not deal with exaggerated boy heroes that "do or die," or "grin and bear it," or heroines' confessions and confidences. Such books as "Treasure Island," "Little Women," "Alice in Wonderland" and "Captains Courageous" are stories which children universally enjoy. The unpardonable sin in a child's book is dullness, according to Dr. Gates, for it is during their formative years that children learn the joys of reading.

At present there is a great lack of generally humorous books for children. The chief reason for this is the difficulty that adults have in determining what will strike a child as amusing. Many modern books sell because of their attractive illustrations. Publishers often avail themselves of the new processes of color reproduction to sell inferior stories. Such illustrations are expensive, so it often happens that when a publisher is forced to pay a high price for the text he economizes on the illustrations. Thus the best material frequently is not accompanied by the best pictures. Children usually prefer bright colorings to pastel or deep shades, but it is urged by the book committee that such colors be used without resorting to conflicts with reality, such as pink trees and green pigs. Childish imaginations do not require stimulation by distortion of either reading matter or pictures. The opening for merit and originality in this field offers as great an opportunity as may be found in the higher realms of literature.

HOKE SMITH.

As governor, senator, Cabinet officer and a distinguished member of the legal profession Hoke Smith carved out for himself a notable career. Though born in North Carolina, he early became intimately associated with the business and political life of Georgia. His parentage combined New England with the South, and this may account for his breadth of view, his tolerance and his statesmanship, which raised him to national prominence.

Hoke Smith was twice Governor of Georgia, and served two terms as United States senator. He was Secretary of the Interior in the Cabinet of President Cleveland. His counsel was valued by both parties. While in Congress he was one of the acknowledged leaders and he took prominent part in the formulation of many important measures. He was an eloquent and convincing speaker, who always commanded attention on the floor of the Senate.

Following his senatorial service Mr. Smith engaged in the practice of law in Washington, and while he did not give up his Georgia residence, he spent much of his time here until recent illness forced his retirement. His advice continued to be sought until the end. Hoke Smith was a credit to his State and a useful citizen who served the Nation well.

Mexico wants damages for the killing of two Mexican youths. It looks to us as if Uncle is the one who always pays.

The report that Government employes are being forced to "love their brothers" has aroused the ire of Couzens.

Golf is the favorite sport of politicians, says a writer. Moreover, they always keep their eye on the ball.

Patriotism is going without a dinner to buy a ticket for a dance given to help feed the unemployed.

The drys should demand an investigation of that postoffice deal with the twine-makers.

KEEP SOBER

From the Saturday Evening Post.

Now that the activities of Congress bulk large once more, there is a general and earnest hope that this body will display sobriety in its actual lawmaking, if not in its discussions. Specifically, we mean that sound national progress will be impeded if the idea prevails that all economic ills can be cured by legislation. It is natural for a legislator to favor legislation; that is his bread and butter, breath of life, stock in trade. Nor is there any sense in railing against legislation as such. A vast amount of it is required in cities, States and Nation, merely to carry on the ordinary public business. Appropriations have to be made and all manner of legal provisions kept abreast of changing conditions.

But most of the necessary legislation is prosaic, matter-of-fact work, and wholly lacking in publicity value. It is a process of adjustment, of straightening out and of bringing up to date. This type of legislation waves no magic wand, provides no cures and creates no headlines worth the name. It does not pretend to exercise depressions or banish unemployment; it wholly lacks dramatic values. Thus, other kinds of legislation are sure to be advanced in nearly all sessions of Congress, especially in those which coincide with trying times, large, mouth-filling schemes which somehow give the impression that here at last is the answer to the wishes and hopes of the multitude.

To be quite specific, we do not believe that Congress can provide employment by rhetorical speeches, denunciations of industry, bills introduced into committees, long-winded hearings, or even in any large measure by appropriations from the public treasury. Certainly history, from the time of the Romans down, indicates that disaster follows the efforts of governments to guarantee or furnish everyone with a job and a living. That is something which the people must do for themselves. At times they succeed and at times they fail. To say that the government owes every man a living is merely passing the buck, because governments have no magic to do what the people which make them up are unable to perform.

Unemployment is world-wide, the result of complex and far-flung forces, which have not suddenly come into existence, and so can not be dealt with quickly or by short-cut legislative medicine. Vast dislocations of production and consumption started by the war, world-wide strains, abuses and movements of the whole mechanism of money and credit, extreme revolutionary upheavals or political convulsions in several continents—these do not respond to bills or resolutions in Congress. Against the effect of such conditions the American people are fighting their way courageously. In such fashion they will eventually come through, but not by resort to any too-good-to-be-true legerdemain, falsely advertised by Doctor Quack as devoid of pain and cost.

POST HASTE.

Lindbergh would not make a good politician. He gets peeved when he can secure clearances by just signing his name.

Let's see, what is it that Tilson and Snell are fighting to get from a majority of the House minority?

The preliminary conference is warned that disarmament must come or war within ten years is inevitable. Better move it up; nobody is scared of a war ten years off.

Judging from the husky-looking advance guard of representatives who have arrived in the Capital, we might just as well quit saying the Democrats will "probably" organize the House.

Occasionally something happens to recall how many other kinds of trouble China has on hand besides the Manchurian affliction.

Gandhi is getting to be a chronic complainer like Smedley Butler. The difference is that the mahatma is resigned to his fate, while the general resigned to fight.

Sing Sing boarders enjoyed a turkey dinner, a football game, movies and a radio program on Thanksgiving. Dan Webster must be right that "liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint."

At least Russia doesn't get mixed up in the Manchurian row this winter, when she couldn't do anything about it if she wanted to.

The November optimism prize goes to the man who thinks France will agree to putting Germany's private debts ahead of reparations.

Seeing how useful majority rule is in the House, Democrats are attacking with new vigor the two-thirds rule that has defeated so many good men in national conventions.

If Sol Bloom has his George Washington restage that dollar-throwing stunt it will assure a good crowd—on the other side of the Potomac.

PAUL HUDSON.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE OLD AND THE NEW WAY.

Time was when a maiden had promised to wed
And the question was settled, she blushingly said:
"Before we can say when the wedding will be,
Remember, my darling, there's father to see!"
And so the next evening a stammering lad
Went in to encounter a frozen-faced dad.

The father pretended he knew not at all
Why the nervous young fellow had dropped in to call.
He sat there and eyed him from head down to toe,
And waited the speech which somehow wouldn't flow.
He took off his glasses and grunted: "Well!
Young man have you come here with something to sell?"

They had painted the father as someone to fear.
With tales of his temper they'd poisoned his ear.
Both mother and daughter had hinted of him
That he was an ogre, ferocious and grim.
Till it took all the courage a young fellow had
To walk in and get the consent of her dad.

Today things are different. Each love-making lad
Who enters the house scares the life out of dad.
He knows if he raises his voice to demur
An elopement is something that's apt to occur.
And he knows against marriage 'tis vain to protest,
So he bows in submission and hopes for the best.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: My father was the bravest and most unselfish of men. While he lay dying of cancer, longing for the merciful oblivion that would end his suffering, he wrote letters of praise and gratitude as a final service to the loved ones whose welfare had been his one concern in life.

He was wise enough to know that remorse would increase the burden of our sorrow, and the letters were designed to comfort us when we accused ourselves of doing less for him than we might have done.

Your one great sorrow came before you were old enough to multiply it by vain regrets and you, therefore, have yet to learn one of life's most bitter lessons.

It is a lesson I would spare you if I could, for it is learned in bitterness and tears and remembered in the lonely hours of sleepless nights.

Few who live and love escape it, except those selfish and self-satisfied creatures who feel no obligation to make life pleasant for anybody except themselves and therefore acknowledge no responsibility and feel no remorse when they make others miserable.

No matter how thoughtful and kind you are to those who depend on you for happiness, your conscience will trouble you when they are gone. Month after month it will remind you of things you might have done to give them pleasure—things you would have done if you had known how little time remained to serve them.

You can't escape regret for things left undone, but you can guard against the cruel remorse that tortures those who remember unkindnesses they never can undo.

I suppose it isn't possible for an imperfect human to live intimately with other humans equally short of perfection without occasional moments of vexation and resentment. There is much to bear and often there is little patience to bear it.

But you can school yourself to live each day as you would if you had no hope of another—to speak and act as you would if your loved ones were leaving for some distant land tonight—and thus you can store up memories that will comfort every grief. There is balm for sorrow only when you feel no need of forgiveness. Love, DAD.

Proper Tax Policy.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

What have the people a right to expect from this new Congress in the way of tax legislation? First, that the additional taxes should be levied in a manner to bear least heavily on business and industry as they are beginning to recover from the depression. For anything that would retard this recovery would add to unemployment and work to the injury of all. Second, the burden should be equitably distributed, not only as a matter of justice, but with regard to its revenue-producing possibilities. An attempt to make a single class bear a disproportionate share of the burden would defeat its purpose.

The remedy, say some political economists—the accent is on the adjective—is to jack up the income tax rates and make the rich pay more. Mr. Mellon has presented some striking figures to show the diminishing returns from excessive surtaxes. Capital is diverted from productive business enterprises to tax-exempt securities. The expansion of industry is curtailed. On this point President Hoover said to the veterans at Detroit:

"Whatever the arguments made, I do not wish you to be misled by those who say that we only need to tax the rich to secure the funds which we require. We must face the absolute fact that the rich can be taxed to the point of diminishing returns and still the deficit in our ordinary and necessary expenditures would not be covered upon a basis even of the utmost economy. Those who work in the fields, at the bench and at the desk will be forced to carry an added burden for every cent of our expenditure."

Where, then, shall the Government obtain its needed additional revenue? The consistent productivity of the excise taxes points the way. The most promising proposal yet made is for a selective sales tax applying to luxuries.

Where "Uncle George" Stands.

Fargo (N. Dak.) Forum.

A great deal more space was devoted to the program of Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, for the coming session of Congress than its news value merited, for there is nothing surprising about having him announce that he is agin' the administration. That has been his perennial shibboleth. There is no element of suspense as to what position he will take. If a Republican administration is for something, "Uncle" George is against it, and if the administration is against something, he is not for it. To find out just where he stands in respect to any Republican administration, find out first where the administration stands. Back in 1920 he wasn't with Harding in the election; in 1924, though he didn't join the La Follette movement, he sulked in his tent and refused to help Coolidge; in 1928 he went over to Smith completely, and in each of these elections, Nebraska gave its electoral votes to the Republican candidate.

Luxuries and Necessities.

Boston Transcript.

Senator Smoot's proposition for luxury taxes naturally raises discussion as to what is a luxury and what a necessity. Who shall make the classification? One man's luxury, we may say, is another man's necessity. A dress suit for evening wear is not intrinsically a necessity—certainly not for the man who never has occasion to wear one. Clothes are a necessity; a "boiled shirt" is not. Yet in the life and practice of thousands of men, the dress suit is much more a necessity than is a pair of overalls. A white collar is not a necessity for a man who works all day in a foundry and drags himself home to bed at night; but it is a necessity to his brother who works in an office and has to keep up a "respectable" appearance. Mr. Smoot includes automobiles among his luxuries; but is a farmer's motor truck a luxury in the full tide of the twentieth century?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Children of Americans in Russia Who Are Attending Russian Schools Are Not Wanted Back in the United States.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By a recent news dispatch from Moscow we are informed that the commissar of education in the U. S. S. R. has very magnanimously decided to form a school for the children of Americans now employed in Russia.

As though it were not harmful enough for the parents themselves to lose their patriotism; they also want to sow the seeds of unrest and rebellion against everything worth while in the undeveloped and impressionable minds of their offsprings.

The natural result, of course, will be that upon returning to this country, instead of respecting our laws and Government, these young Communists will, in turn, poison the minds of all with whom they come in contact.

Child physical cruelty, of which we hear so much of late, is horrible enough; but a perverted and distorted mind is surely even worse.

Life is futile and empty if one has nothing to work for, no ambition, no hope of happiness, and last but not least, no religion.

However, the type of American who would condescend to aid Russia, realizing that the United States does not recognize their prelent despotic form of government, can not be expected to be solicitous of his child's future welfare.

Therefore, we can only hope that these atheistic young Communists will remain in the U. S. S. R. permanently; only we know they won't, since that would not serve the purpose of the Soviets.

Says Liquor Question Will Split Republican Party as Well as Democratic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Like most of your editorials, the one entitled "Splitting His Party," with John J. Raskob as the splitter, is accurate; i. e., it is accurate as far as it goes. But you did not mention the fact that this question would split the Republicans, too, and would gain several votes of Republicans for each vote of a Democrat it would lose. Also, most of the losses would be in States which the Democrats will carry anyway, viz., the Southern ones.

Your correspondent, Mr. Beauchamp, of Dallas, seems to think Gov. Smith's religion played a small part in his defeat. Hoover carried Virginia by 24,463. Two years later, Bishop Cannon tried to marshal the same voters against Pollard. Liquor was still an issue, religion was not. The Cannon entry was beaten by a majority of approximately 75,000, the largest in Virginia's history. So it will be in North Carolina, as the drys are attacking the tobacco industry, the greatest in that State. Nor will the South risk a force bill, which their wet Northern confreres once saved them from by a scant margin.

Mr. Beauchamp says that referenda on prohibition have usually favored the drys, but cites no figures. There have been 13 State referenda, in 11 States. Adding the totals, results were: Wet, 5,677,388; drys, 3,172,265; wet majority, 2,005,123; per cent wet, 61; dry, 39; more than three-fifths. I will give official figures by States if desired.

Wants a Real League of Nations Capable of Preventing International Racketeering.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I agree absolutely with your recent editorial stating that the League of Nations is too weak a thing to deal with great crises like the one in Manchuria.

But is The Post enough of an anarchist to believe that the world can allow Japan or others like her to seize territory at will and so create new Alsace-Lorraines to breed new wars?

Clearly the only alternative to international anarchy and racketeering is international organization. The action taken by the United States in the Manchurian crisis has shown that polite and isolated protests are futile.

Obviously we need a vigorous League of Nations with which the United States will and can cooperate. I hope The Post will advocate this—unless it approves international racketeering and anarchy. WILLOUGHBY WISE.

Says Every Effort Was Made to Naturalize Aliens in the Army During the War.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In answer to Mr. M. Lucas, who in his letter states that neutral aliens were not given an opportunity to become citizens of the United States during the war, I wish to state that, to the best of my recollection, every effort was made in the Army to naturalize aliens during the war. From personal experience I also know that quite a number of neutral aliens refused to become citizens of the United States during the war, when citizenship was offered to them without cost and regardless of their length of residence in the United States.

Cites Example of Exorbitant Price Charged When Work Was Offered a Carpenter and His Assistant.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My home needed repairs badly. I sent for a carpenter to give me an estimate. He would not give me a figure for the entire job, but said he would do the work, if I furnished the material, for $10 a day and his helper to receive $8 a day. They want work! My salary is $5.83 a day, including Sundays. On account of sickness, my annual and sick leave have been exhausted, and I am trying to do the job myself on Saturday afternoons. I did not donate three days pay to help those who "want work." MARYLAND DEMOCRAT.

GEN. MAH IS TRYING TO RE-FORM FORCES

Loser in Nonni River Battle Has About 8,000 Men; but No Supplies.

By FREDERICK KUH.

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press.)

Hailun, Manchuria, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, who boasted two weeks ago that he would defend Taitsihar "to the death," was found at his new headquarters today, his Chinese army virtually destroyed, his confidence gone and his supplies almost exhausted.

In sharp contrast to the commander who directed almost 30,000 soldiers along the Nonni River front, Gen. Mah is now attempting to reorganize the army that was crushed by the Japanese before Tsitsihar.

Gen. Mah arrived in Hailun several days ago and established headquarters at the government building. Hailun lies north of Harbin on the Halun River.

Will Obey Marshal Chang.

"My future movements depend on instructions from Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang," he said, referring to the ousted ruler of Manchuria. "My forces stationed around Taian, Kosh-an and Hailun are between 8,000 and 10,000, but I am utterly without supplies."

Gen. Mah took substantial funds from the Heilungkiang Bank at Taitsihar, but he said he was without munitions and that his source of supplies had been cut off. He is in constant wireless communication with Marshal Chang at Peiping.

"The Japanese have not advanced north of Taitsihar, according to my information," Gen. Mah told the United Press correspondent.

He was questioned about the possibility of the League of Nations intervention to halt fighting in Manchuria, but said that he believed his fate would depend more on the Japanese activities around Harbin.

Northward Flight Likely.

"My future depends on whether the Japanese decided to control Harbin directly or indirectly," he said. It was obvious that he was not able to resist further at present and probably would flee further northward if his forces were attacked again.

Meanwhile, the Japanese troops have been evacuating Taitsihar. About 1,500 left for the south yesterday.

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 27 (U.P.). Julius Rudy, Soviet general manager of the Chinese Eastern Railroad, today refused to transport 500 armed Chinese police over the railroad to Tsitsihar. They had been ordered to Tsitsihar by Chang Ching-Hui, new civil administrator.

It was understood Moscow had ordered Rudy to remain neutral and refuse permission for either Japanese or Chinese military to use the road.

ARMS CUT DEMAND RADIOED BY BORAH

treaties goes unredeemed. Instead of being reduced, armaments have been increased to an alarming extent.

"When governments meet as a body to deal with disarmament, taking them as a whole, they are not for disarmament and never had been. The only hope for the cause, a cause which in some measure is the cause of civilization itself, lies in an aroused, well-organized and well-directed public opinion.

"Another conference is near at hand, and if anything is to be accomplished, it will be accomplished because the public is using the lash. Governments will do nothing unless driven by public opinion, not a mild, pliable public opinion, but a public opinion vibrant with uncommon zeal and spurred on by an indignation commensurate with the injustice of the present program.

"When this conference convenes in February, there will be in the leading nations of the world from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 unemployed. If we include dependents, it is safe to say that at that time some 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 men, women and children will be facing hunger and nakedness, with only the uncertain hand of charity to save them from starvation. One of the great contributing causes of this intolerable situation is the ever-increasing burden of armaments."

LOSS OF ZUNI SHEEP IN STORM IS FEARED

Tribes Would Be Destitute; 500 Indians Still Are Stranded on Mesa.

Gallup, N. Mex., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Searchers for 500 Zuni and Navajo Indians, whose fate is locked behind high snow drifts covering the mesas of Northwestern New Mexico, today feared the storm which has exacted a known toll of seven lives also has struck at flocks of goats and sheep, main wealth of the redmen.

Known casualties among the Indians were reduced to seven today by information received by Superintendent W. A. Trotter, of the Zuni Indian Agency, that two of the Indians reported dead are alive but in a critical condition from exposure.

Unable to breast the deep snow, at least 25,000 sheep and goats are known to be snowbound in the area. Superintendent Trotter said disaster threatens unless the snow melts sufficiently in the next two days to release them.

Bureau to Get Appeal.

Word was received here that Superintendent John G. Hunter of the Navajo Agency at Fort Defiance, Ariz., 80 miles northwest of here, will appeal to the United States Indian Bureau in Washington for relief for the Navajos of his jurisdiction.

"There have been heavy sheep losses throughout the reservation," Hunter said, "and it is impossible to avoid further great losses. It means that the Navajos can not survive the winter without help. There is absolutely no forage and the flocks are dying from starvation and cold."

The Navajos and Zunis own about 500,000 sheep. About 25,000 are still on the high mesas, caught there before their herders could take them off the summer ranges.

Two of the Indians previously reported dead were discovered today to be the mother and father of a family of five, found unconscious by a relief party. Their three children were frozen to death.

Relief Parties Delayed.

It was feared it would take relief parties of horsemen until tomorrow or next day to reach the 500 Navajos on the Cerro Alto and Santa Rita mesas where they have been camped in temporary quarters while gathering the autumn harvest of pinon nuts.

From Ramah, on the south side of Cerro Alto mesa, came reports that stranded Navajos are killing their horses for food.

The Zuni Agency is overcrowded with more than 600 Navajo storm refugees and more are arriving hourly. Superintendent Trotter was forced to make a rule today that Navajos will be permitted to stay only 24 hours, be given food and started on the road to their homes.

The rule, designed to conserve the Zuni food supply, was made to apply only to Navajos in good physical condition and whose homes are in accessible regions.

JAPANESE BEGIN OFFENSIVE TO DOMINATE MANCHURIA

filled with troops had stopped at Yangkuantaitze, a few miles east of Tahushan and 66 miles from Chinchow, following an encounter with a Chinese armored train from which the occupants fled in disorder.

Drive Declared "Necessary."

Gen. Honjo's headquarters, in announcing the offensive, said it was launched because of the "dangerous situation in Tientsin and the attitude of the Chinese military."

This statement led authoritative circles to conclude that the Manchurian offensive was only part of a larger conflict which might involve North China proper in what would virtually be a Sino-Japanese war.

Japanese headquarters declined to state the expedition's size or destination, but well-informed quarters expected it would drive at least as far as Chinchow, seat of what is left of Marshal Chang Hsuen-Liang's government, in an effort to destroy Gen. Yung Shen's army.

Six trains composed of South Manchuria Railway stock moved southwest along the British-mortgaged Peiping-Mukden Railway and it was estimated they were carrying at least 10,000 men.

Reports from Japanese correspondents accompanying Maj. Suzuki, the commanding officer, on the march indicated the Chinese were dynamiting railway bridges in the path of the advancing expedition.

Tsitsihar Almost Deserted.

The first half of the Mukden-Chinchow route traverses an almost unbroken plain, covered at present by a light snow, extending as far as Tahushan. The Chinese general intends to make his principal stand at the Tailing River, a broad, swift stream half filled with ice with wide sand flats on either bank, which would expose the attacking force to the defenders' fire.

It has been learned that the entire Japanese command at Tsitsihar, totaling 5,000 men, is moving southward gradually to join the drive on Chinchow, leaving a lone regiment to guard the walled city which was captured earlier on another front.

Published reports that Japanese airplanes had bombed Chinchow during the day were flatly denied by a spokesman for the Japanese headquarters.

Tokyo (Saturday), Nov. 28 (U.P.). Official and press advices from Tientsin today said Americans and Europeans had escaped harm in fighting between Japanese and Chinese troops. Reports that foreigners had been killed were denied.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tokyo, Nov. 27.—Japan's thrust at the last Chinese stronghold in south Manchuria has been stopped, it was announced today, and she has agreed to the creation of a neutral zone between there and the Great Wall of China—both with conditions.

A spokesman for the war office said orders had been relayed to Japanese troops advancing in a southwesterly direction along the Peiping-Mukden railway not to proceed farther toward Chinchow, and they probably would be withdrawn to Mukden. The advance guard had reached a point approximately half way between the two cities when the orders were issued.

It was made plain, however, this concession was with the reservations that the Japanese army would not be harassed by bandits, renegade soldiers and other disturbing groups which have been nipping at its flanks in recent days. A large force of Chinese soldiers was said to be centered at Chinchow and a sanguine encounter had been feared.

Neutrality Zone Promise.

The Japanese government promised to observe the zone of neutrality except in the event of a serious clash between the opposing armies at Shanhaikwan, Tientsin or Peiping, all south of the zone, in which case the right to transport reinforcements through the area was reserved.

These decisions apparently were made in view of the League of Nations resolutions to restore peace and the Chinese government's offer to withdraw its troops from Chinchow to avoid the danger of another conflict, proving a neutral zone was established.

Of equal influence was the warning issued by a government spokesman that the cabinet of Premier Wakatsuki would resign if the war office permitted its Manchurian forces to attack Chinchow. Such an offensive would be contrary to the government's wishes, it was said, and would mean the army had got beyond its control.

On the other hand, if the situation at Tientsin does not improve, reinforcements must be dispatched from some nearby point such as Shanhaiwan, Port Arthur or Dairen, it was said. The cruiser Yakuno already has been ordered to the scene from Sasebo.

The day was replete with conferences between Emperor Hirohito and Foreign Minister Shidehara, between the emperor and Chief of Staff Kanaya, and between members of the cabinet and officials of the war office. Complete harmony in upholding the government's policy was said to have been attained.

PENNSYLVANIA DELEGATION FAVORS SNELL FOR SPEAKER

Minority Leadership.

Ordinarily, whoever is nominated for the speakership in a minority party is always made floor leader of the minority party in the House. This has always been true. At least, it was true in the case of Mr. Garner. In the last Congress he was nominated for Speaker by the Democrats, but the Republicans, with a majority of 100 votes or so, put over the late Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, for that position. Thereupon, Mr. Garner became the leader of the Democrats in the House.

The prospect is that whoever is nominated by the House Republicans for Speaker will be the floor leader of the Republicans in the next House.

Tilson's friends say that it would be a real political tragedy should he lose out in his fight for the speakership nomination. When he became the floor leader of the Republican party, Mr. Tilson gave up all his important positions on House committees.

Tilson's Statement.

Thus, if he should lose out in the present fight, the most he could expect would be positions on minor committees. It would mean, in effect, his political eclipse.

The Pennsylvania delegation argued for two hours and a half yesterday over supporting Snell or Tilson.

While Snell got eighteen votes against twelve for Tilson, the latter claimed that the vote was a victory for him. Representative Tilson issued the following statement:

"The result in the Pennsylvania conference was exactly what we forecast.

"The campaign of Mr. Snell has apparently been based on the idea that the large States can be combined to give him control of the Republican party in the House. Having used every means to line up the members of that delegation for Mr. Snell and with the backing of the powerful Philadelphia organization, the best Snell could win by was 18 to 12, with 1 vote for Mr. Temple.

"That this was not what was expected by Mr. Snell is indicated by the fact that he gave out a statement just before the Pennsylvania conference started that I would receive only two votes.

"With the 12 votes from Pennsylvania I can count more than 100 for me at the Republican conference on Monday morning."

Chinese Army Rally Point Is Strategic in Manchuria

Chinchowfu, chief city of the "panhandle" region of southwestern Manchuria, 146 miles southwest of Mukden, has been made temporary "capital" of the territory and a concentration point of Chinese troops under Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang.

"Situated on the narrow strip of coastline and on the only railroad which links China and Manchuria, Chinchowfu is one of the most strategically located cities in the Far East," says a bulletin from Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "For the Chinese it is the only open 'front door' to Manchuria.

"If the Chinese seek to check any further advance of Japanese forces in southern Manchuria at Chinchowfu they will be standing almost literally with 'their backs to the wall.' Chinchowfu is the first important Manchurian city beyond Shanhaikwan, where the Great Wall of China comes down to the sea or, to be more exact, to the Gulf of Chihli.

North and west of Chinchowfu rise the mountains and desert plateaus of Inner Mongolia. South of the city stretch the tidal flats of a branch of the Gulf of Chihli, the Gulf of Liaotung. Any one passing along the narrow coastal plain, therefore, would have to deal with walled Chinchowfu, astride the middle of it.

"Chinchowfu itself is a metropolis of about 80,000 population. Much of its newer part spreads beyond the ancient walled city, especially northward in the vicinity of the railroad terminal. Chinchowfu is also a junction point for a branch line into Inner Mongolia. Its extensive railroad yards include locomotive sheds, railway division headquarters, a hospital and storage warehouses. Between the station and the walled city are big military barracks. The provincial government office is temporarily located in the University of Communications, north of the tracks.

"In addition to its importance as a railway and military center, Chinchowfu also is a shipping point for the greatest fruit and cotton raising region of Manchuria—the nearby Liao River Valley. Shallow-draft boats may ascend a tidal river to its wharves to receive fruit brought by train and carts, but most of its water-borne commerce is carried on through the new harbor at Hulutao, with which Chinchowfu is connected by a spur railway line.

"Chinese authorities in Manchuria hope to make this port a rival of Dairen, in the Japanese concession of Kwantung.

"The growing of cotton centers mainly in Liaoyang, but the district extends westward to Chinchowfu, and most of the Chinese development of cotton raising is near the latter city. American upland cotton has been grown successfully and, although the region is no rival of the Nile or Dixie, it produces enough of the fiber to meet local demands.

"Chinchowfu itself is in about the same latitude as New York City and, while its winters are colder than New York, the thermometer leaps to the other extreme in summer.

"South Manchurian fruits, however, eclipse all other products of the district. This part of Manchuria is a great fruit belt of the Far East—extending from Chinchowfu on the west to Liaoyang on the east—and up the Liao River valley beyond Mukden.

"Fruit from southern Manchuria has both a fine aroma and flavor, because of favorable atmospheric conditions in growing and ripening seasons. Manchurian pears and grapes are especially prized in Chinese markets.

"The district along the coast south of Chinchowfu is the best grape-growing section. Products of this region have an advantage in export trade because they have thick skins and remain fresh longer.

"Chinchowfu is not exactly a new name to American newspaper readers and students of world affairs. In 1909 it was mentioned in connection with Secretary Knox's 'neutralization plan of Manchurian railways.' American and British bankers then had a concession for building a railway from Chinchowfu north to Aigun, on the Amur River, but nothing came of the concession when the 'neutralization plan' fell through."

PLENTY OF WORKERS FOR WOODPILE SEEN

Agencies for Transient Aid Pledge Shelter to All Found in Need.

There will be no lack of applicants for jobs at the municipal woodpile, George Adams, secretary of the District employment committee, was assured yesterday.

Cooperative measures were worked out with Mr. Adams at a meeting of the District committee for dealing with transients, including superintendents of the Central Union Mission, the Salvation Army, Gospel Mission and the Municipal Lodging House where hundreds of jobless men are cared for daily.

John S. Bennett, chairman of the committee, told Mr. Adams that the agencies would provide all labor required at the woodpile and in return would take care of every homeless man in the District who needs food and shelter. He declared he has not yet found one who was unwilling to work at the woodpile if given opportunity.

Taking cognizance of a public statement by Mrs. Mary Hayden, a graduate nurse, that men are being compelled to sleep in the parks of the city, the committee was authorized to inform the public that no need exists for such conditions.

There are ample facilities to shelter every transient at the four local agencies, Mr. Bennett pointed out, if they would take advantage of this opportunity. The Salvation Army, it was announced, is prepared to shelter homeless colored men as well as white men.

PARIS SEES EFFORTS OF LEAGUE WRECKED

wide movement by Japanese troops along the Peiping-Mukden Railroad, in which Britain has chief interests.

Aristide Briand, president of the council, had been informed by the Japanese government that Chinchow would not be occupied, but Briand again summoned Kenkichi Yoshizawa, the Japanese delegate, and asked him for another explanation.

The revised peace resolution contained few changes or modifications. It was not believed to have affected the United States declaration of support of the league action.

There have been strenuous efforts by Chinese to force the league to set a definite date for evacuation of Japanese troops, but it was not believed likely that such action would be taken.

AMERICAN PROTEST IS EXPECTED AT ONCE

there would be no move upon Chinchow. Orders to that effect, the reply said, had been issued to the command in Manchuria.

Stimson Manifestly Alarmed.

Making these disclosures yesterday to newspaper correspondents, who gathered about him in the audience room adjacent to his office in the State Department, Stimson declined to draw conclusions or comment otherwise. Manifestly worried, he retired again with solemn face to delve into the fast-accumulating official files under the troublesome heading of "Manchuria."

The question occupied almost the undivided attention of the department's highest officials yesterday. Their optimism over an agreement in the Paris negotiations became conditional upon events in Manchuria. They gave some attention, too, to the situation at Tientsin, but apparently regarded the outbreak there as collateral.

One reassuring note was struck in the day's official developments. The Chinese Legation announced the receipt of a cablegram from Chang Hsueh-Liang, former Manchurian governor, correcting a cablegram he had sent Thursday. In that cable, Chang had reported information that the Japanese emperor had granted Gen. Honjo, commander in Manchuria, permission to take over the entire province. Chang yesterday cabled his information was "incorrect."

Frank P. Lockhart, American consul general at Tientsin, reported details of fresh disorders near the Japanese concession borders in which the Japanese returned fire. He said "A very tense situation prevailed."

Vice President Departs for Chicago Visit; Mr. and Mrs. Gann Entertain at Epiphany Home Ball.

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS left yesterday for Chicago where he will spend the week-end with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kingsbury Curtis. He will return Monday.

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes will be entertained by the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley at dinner Saturday, December 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann, brother-in-law and sister of the Vice President, accompanied by a small company, occupied the Vice President's box last night at the ball for the Epiphany Church Home, given at the Mayflower. The ballrooms were decorated with palms, ferns and chrysanthemums in autumn shades. Over the box of the Vice President a huge American flag hung.

Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, president of the woman's board of the home, headed the receiving line and was assisted by Mrs. Ze Barney Phillips, wife of the rector of Epiphany Church; Mrs. Lester Wilson and Mrs. Eugene E. Sizoo to Pursue Topics on Europe

Speaks on England Tomorrow and on John Huss, December 6.

Having been asked to continue his Sunday evening lectures on conditions in Central Europe, Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, has consented to do so. He plans to discuss for the first two Sunday evenings in December the significant leadership of Central Europe. On December 6 he will have for his subject: "John Huss, the Martyr of the Reformation."

Huss was something more than a religious reformer and a theological scholar. He is regarded in Czechoslovakia (or Bohemia as it was) as a great national leader, and it is as such that he is most highly honored by those people. His writings did for the Czechs what Luther's did for the Germans—it fixed their spoken speech into a written language, which has not varied much through the years.

Every year at the birthplace of Huss near Prague an imposing national celebration is held, which is attended by many thousands of people from all over Czechoslovakia. It is considered the highest honor in the state to be invited to deliver that address. Dr. Charles Pergler, the dean of the National University's Graduate School, made the address two years ago, and he is the only Czech who ever resided in this country who has been so honored. Tomorrow evening Dr. Sizoo will speak on England.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

EARLIER in the week it was announced that the first performance from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera Company would be broadcast this afternoon during the presentation of "Elisir d'Amour," with Gigli, over a wide hook-up of stations. This broadcast will not materialize, owing to technical difficulties, such as the installation of bulky equipment at points where it will not obscure the view of the stage. The new parabolic microphones are about 4 feet in diameter; the placing of them where they would be concealed constituted a problem. It is now expected that the first Metropolitan broadcast will take place shortly after January 1.

Engineers have drafted tentative plans for a permanent set-up of microphones and control and observation booths in one of the upper tiers, which they believe will be satisfactory, and construction work will commence as soon as the plans are approved by the opera company.

The National Broadcasting Co. declares it will present the Metropolitan Opera to radio listeners as its own contribution to the field of radio entertainment rather than as a sponsored program. The company's representative declined to discuss terms of the contract, but he denied that a "fortune" was being spent to make possible the broadcast.

Although it will be several weeks before the arrangements can be completed, the services of Deems Taylor have been obtaind as narrator for the series of operatic programs.

The clarinet scholarship ensemble of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society will be heard when it makes its first public appearance at Carnegie Hall during the concert scheduled to be broadcast this morning (WMAL, 11 a. m.). This will be the third broadcast in the series for children and young people, under the direction of Ernest Schelling.

THE Dartmouth-Stanford football game, with Bill Munday at the microphone, is scheduled for WRC at 1:15 p. m. today.

Ted Husing will undertake a description of the Yale-Princeton game at 1:30 p. m. over WMAL.

The Notre Dame-Army game may be tuned via the WJZ network, starting at 1:15 p. m.

Representative John N. Garner (Democrat), of Texas, who will assume the Speakership of the House of Representatives in event his party is in the majority in the next Congress, will speak tonight (WMAL, 10 p. m.) over a national hook-up.

Children's fears will be analyzed by Harold E. Jones, psychologist, in a 15-minute lecture over WRC, at 8:30 o'clock. Edwin G. Nourse, sharing the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education period, will discuss agriculture in its relation to economic recovery.

ANOTHER State joins the country-wide hook-ups when two Montana stations become associates of the NBC tonight. They are KGHL, of Billings, and KGIR, of Butte. Senator Burton K. Wheeler will be the principal speaker. The special dedicatory program, featuring John L. Fogarty, Elizabeth Lennox, Lee Sims, Paul Whiteman, the Three Doctors, Cab Calloway and Coon-Sanders will be broadcast (11:30 o'clock, WRC).

The opening days of 1932 will mark the return to the air of "The Shadow." After an absence of six months, his "Your announcer is . . . the Shadow" will be heard in a new series of mystery dramatization.

Battles of the bridge tables will be aired in a new comedy and instruction series beginning today (WRC, 5:30 p. m.). The program is directed by Ruth McCloy, a newcomer to radio.

Giovanni Martinelli, tenor, scheduled to appear during the program at 9:30 o'clock over WRC, for presentation of the Atwater Kent foundation gold medal to Raoul Nadeau, barytone winner of the 1930-31 contest, has been called on to sing at the Metropolitan tonight, so the medal presentation has been postponed. The program will offer instead, Harold Von Emburg, tenor; Aileen Clark, soprano; Ed O'Brien, tenor, and a two-piano team, William Wirges and Frank Banta.

Incidentally, Aileen Clark is one of radio's newest stars. She is 24 years old and a native of St. Louis. She married shortly after going to New York and has a boy three years old.

"LA TRAVIATA" is the Chicago Civic Opera broadcast offering tonight, with Claudia Muzio, soprano, Charles Hackett and John Charles Thomas in the cast. • • • Listeners will be enabled to attend via the air the big agricultural fair when the International Live Stock Exposition opens in Chicago today during the National Farm and Home Hour. • • • The famed canary birds on Cheerio's program will sing an unnamed Donizetti selection as a prelude to the broadcast this morning, 8:30 o'clock, WRC. • • • Wilfred Smith, tenor, has chosen "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling" and a selection from "Rigoletto" for his contribution to the Gas Light program, directed by Rudolph Schramm, tonight. • • • Jack Smart, March of Time actor, celebrated his 29th birthday last night. • • • Marguerite Cromwell and Harold Veo have rehearsed five numbers for tonight's show, with the former singing "Was It Wrong?" and "Overnight."

A new feature will be inaugurated over WJSV tonight when Wilton Mendelsohn, 9 years old, described as a barytone, will be heard in a program with Audrey Fern Brown, child pianist. Audrey will play several piano solos of her own composition.

Leonora Speyer, the WJSV news notes continue, vice president of the Poetry Society of America and winner of the Pulitzer prize for poetry, will be presented at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

DID you ever figure how they got so much inside of a radio tube, wires and gadgets so small as to be almost invisible to the naked eye? Evidently this was in the mind of George Lewis, vice president of a large tube company, when he told a meeting of industrial engineers that the production of a radio tube parallels a tremendous industrial task in miniature.

There are 186 various spot welds in the final assembly of the tube. This would be sufficient to weld all steam and water pipe connections in the average home; or, in the marine field, to weld a mammoth anchor chain 93 feet long for one of the big ocean liners. In aviation, a complete plane, including frame and fuselage, could be securely welded with this large number of operations.

"It is hardly believable," says Mr. Lewis, "that this great number of welds are necessary in a small article like a radio tube. But fine wire and small parts are used which require a weld no larger than a pinhead."

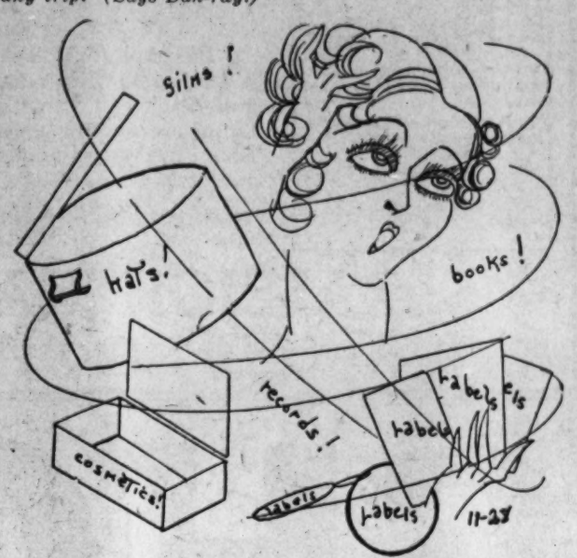
Jane Interprets the Mode

However hectic, planning and packing are half the fun of any trip! (Says Dah-ray.)



On Caribbean Sea, No. 27.

ALL the rush and bother of getting ready for a trip anywhere is only part of the fun. Anticipation and planning, really, are more than half of the fun—and then remembering is all of the fun all over again!

How often do we fail to appreciate a voyage until it is over! But that wasn't what I started to write about. What I wanted to chat a little about today was the planning for a trip.

Like everything else, you should plan your trip on paper. Only thus you will be sure that nothing is forgotten, neither of what you must take with you nor of what you must do before you leave. Take a pad and pencil, for instance, and write down all the cosmetics and little such things that you should buy, then buy from this list and destroy it. Then write down all the evening gowns you are taking, depending upon what sort of a trip it is, of course—and then add to your list of evening gowns the particular accessories you need for them. It goes without saying that you take all your handkerchiefs and stockings and things like that. What we have to make lists for, or of, rather, are the things that are not staples, consequently liable to be forgotten.

I can't stress too much the importance of making these lists. Here I am out in the middle of the Caribbean Sea this minute, and nary a magazine to my name—one of the little things I and the French-maid-who-is-Spanish and is chic secretaire and all the rest of 'em forgot! Otherwise I am catching up on sleep, swimming and sun tan, and can't complain—no, suh!

And it's precisely because I am on a cruise between New York and California, stopping at all points between, that I thought of writing something about preparing for traveling—to heighten the enjoyment and to enjoy for its own sake—the preparing, I mean.

And then, just because you really can't tell what day you might be taking such a trip, or even any boat trip at all, I just made you a leaflet which I call "Gangplank Romance" that you simply must send for! Here's a trip for a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Post, and all about the trip, too—what you should take to wear, what you should tip and how many people should be tipped, and a lot of hints about baggage and things which I know you will enjoy reading. Even if there isn't a sign of a trip on the horizon, you will enjoy reading about one—nor can you ever tell when some friend is going to take a cruise in southern waters, and will appreciate this leaflet no end.

Getting low on leaflet ideas again! If you have an idea for a leaflet that you would like to have me make up for you, why, just send it along, won't you? Pity me having to think of one a week and be a lovely lady to everybody, now won't you?

• • • •

Christmas is on the way and I'll tell you what, all the Christmas presents I am going to give are going to be made by my two little hands or my maid's rather—except those that I already have, either purchased during summer, sales, or on various journeys and put aside for gifts. Now is the time to start on those you make yourself, so better plan the things you are going to make and buy the material for them next week.

• • • •

Don't forget the lovely negligee that this week's leaflet tells you how to make! You can make this whether you have ever sewn anything in your life or not, and it would be a lovely gift, really something worth while. There are still a few leaflets left.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE explain about sunburn on newly planted maple trees.

ALICE G. W.

Newly planted shade trees are often injured by sun scald during the winter months. This may easily be prevented by wrapping the trunks loosely with burlap from the ground up.

Is it necessary to mulch rhubarb?

MRS. THOMAS F. S.

Yes, it is wise to heap manure about rhubarb plants, especially those which have been established for several years. Rhubarb is a gross feeder.

REDMAN G. L.

Yes, if they contain perennials or half-hardy annuals. This will prevent the plants' heating and starting to rot.

Please tell me how to care for lantana plants. I have seven varieties. Also, can I grow these plants from cuttings? MRS. J. A. E.

Keep a lantana plant in the sun and water it every day. If old plants, which have been growing in the garden, are brought indoors and placed in a sunny window they will continue to bloom all winter. The lantana can easily be propagated from cuttings. Water all lantanas once a day.

Can you explain why the last summer was hard on bearded irises? Mine for the first time were a failure.

MRS. FRANK K.

A great many complaints came from all places regarding the prevalence of rot among the bearded irises. This may have been due to the persistent moisture and heat.

Last year rabbits destroyed two newly planted maple trees. I have set out two more trees to take the places of the ones which died. Do you know of any way to prevent a repetition of last year's tragedy?

SARAH D. B.

Paint the trunks of the trees with a new preparation known as sulphonated oil. This remedy was discovered by Dr. R. B. Harvey, plant physiologist of the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station. Trees so painted are said to be avoided by rabbits and if in desperation they do gnaw the bark they quickly die. The mixture is prepared by heating linseed oil smoking hot and then adding sulphur. The oil should then be set outside and flowers of sulphur added. Use one part by weight of sulphur to nine parts of linseed oil. It is best to sift the sulphur into the hot oil, constantly stirring the mixture. This preparation will last longer than will the old-fashioned whitewash, which was so popular at one time to keep rodents away from young trees.

Are French marigolds apt to blossom in a window garden. I refer to plants which started to bloom in my garden in August.

MRS. PAUL W. L.

Yes, if kept in a southern window and watered daily.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to noon, from 3:10 p. m. to 3:40 p. m. and from 7:50 p. m. to 9:20 p. m. The danger hours are from 7:10 a. m. to 9:15 a. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:40 p. m.

The planetary aspects of November 28 denote success for constructive work but not for matters involving finance. All the signs favor engineers, mechanics and artists; they are inimical to interests of a purely monetary nature. Peaceable conditions will prevail in the home; marriages celebrated will be productive of happiness; engagements entered into will culminate successfully.

Children born on this November 28 will be serious students, and the insatiable curiosity that characterizes them in their early years will be symbolical of the thirst for knowledge that will keep them busy later on. Their horoscope denotes a well spent and useful happy life.

Born on November 28, you are not receptive to new ideas, and always think your way is the best. You are partial and biased, and can only see one side of a question. You can only look through your own eyes, and can never see through the eyes of others. In this way, you miss much of the variety and richness of life, fail to make friends and only succeed in gathering enemies.

You also are inclined to be changeable and restless. You base your actions more upon inward desire than outward influence. You are generous and kind-hearted, although very censorious of those who deviate from "the straight and narrow." You read a great deal and have a retentive memory. You are shrewd, without being cunning. You are determined and concentrated in your work, and patient in working out details.

Your mind is not sufficiently analytical to make you a good negotiator. In any conflict, you enter the fight with your mind already made up and never admit, even to yourself, that your judgment may be at fault. You can always justify your own actions—no matter how wrong they might be. You are, although constant, not very affectionate. Family and friends can both vouch for your loyalty.

Successful people born on November 28:

Frederick Almy, social worker.

John Barrett, counselor and adviser international affairs.

L. M. Garrison, former Secretary of War.

David Warfield, actor.

John W. Mackay, capitalist.

Suzanne Adams, singer.

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

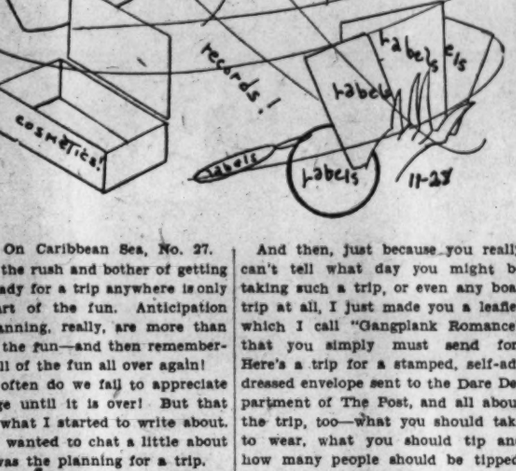
THE WORTHLESS ACE.

ACES and Kings are the ordinary symbols of power in the game of Contract Bridge—Aces because they control the first round of the suit, and Kings because, as second in command, they can usually be expected to account for a trick to the fortunate holder, regardless of whether or not the hand is played on the attack or defense.

There are deals, however, in which Aces must bow to deuces, and Kings take rank below the treys. These hands are of the suit type—that is, they should never be played at no-trump because the element of distribution overbalances the usual controlling factor of honor strength.

Take the hand below:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	2♣	3♣(1)	Pass
3◇(2)	Pass(3)	5♡(4)	Pass
6♡(5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The first indication that Aces and Kings were being quoted below par in this deal. An Overcall in opponents' suit is sometimes justified, even when holding as meager a supply of honors as North held in this instance. In support of a heart bid, North's hand is so strong that it is unnecessary to look for a better declaration.

2—Showing another biddable suit. There is no occasion for any jumping of the bids, as North's Overcall of the opponents' bid suit, after his partner had opened the bidding, is the equivalent of a Forcing Takeout, and neither partner is permitted to drop the bidding until a game contract is reached.

3—West's hand justifies a further bid, but he heeds the warning and hopes that even if his clubs are worthless, he may find a spade trick and perhaps a diamond to contribute to the defeat of a Slam contract by North and South if they embark upon it.

4—North's hand is not strong enough for a direct Slam bid, but does justify a Slam invitation.

5—Assured of no losing clubs by his partner's illuminating bid, knowing from his own holding there are no losers in spades, and now promised more than adequate trump support in hearts, South correctly bids for a Slam.

It is, of course, unnecessary to point out that the contract was made. In fact, an extra trick was scored as distribution had made of no effect West's strong honor holding.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question—How many tricks will 5 honor-tricks produce?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HANDLE WITH CARE.

DR. P. D. LAMSON apologizes to the physicians who read the Journal of the American Medical Association for an article in which he told them of a cure for poisoning.

No, reader, you are wrong in what you are thinking. There is no medical trust and there are no rules against curing your patient with one prescription or after but one visit. And you are also wrong, reader, who jumped to the conclusion that the doctor was apologizing to his fellow physicians for having let the secret out of the bag. You failed to guess the reason for the apology with two guesses and possibly several others.

The reason for it was Dr. Lamson's failure to warn his readers that his remedy might explode, and that, being explosive, the postal authorities might object to its going through the mails. The danger is not great, but we are getting a little jumpy about explosives. The remedy is benzoyl peroxide. This is a granular salt which can be ground into a powder and dusted on the eruptions, as Dr. Lamson told his readers, but he failed to tell them that grinding might cause the powder to explode or, if dusted on, it might catch fire if one used his dusted hands to scratch a match and light his cigaret.

In fact, both accidents have happened. This peroxide, like all other organic peroxides, is explosive and, like many of them, is inflammable. He has found it a most excellent remedy for poison ivy, stopping the burning and itching at once, drying the oozing and curing the eruption, and he advocates its use more than ever, but he warns us that it must be handled with care.

To spare the patient the danger of explosions and pain he advises that benzoyl peroxide be made into a lubricating jelly, using some glycerine and some greases as a base. If it is used as a powder it should be diluted with some neutral powder substance. He regards the ointment as equal to the powder in efficiency, as staying on the eruption better, and as being safer.

CHANGING OF HABITS

H. P. C. writes: I send you an advertisement of a cure for diarrhea which I clipped from a paper fifty years ago. I am now 80 years old. Now I read advertisements of constipation remedies, but never any of diarrhea.

1. Can it be that one-half century has changed habits, customs, and foods, and so has reversed the liability to bodily disorder in these particulars?

2. If so, what may be some of the obvious reasons?

3. Country people have told me that the ground corn meal sometimes sold in packages today is more refined in the process and is not as coarse as it was in former days, when it was sold in bulk. Is this one of the contributing causes?

REPLY.

1 and 2. Change in environment is one cause: in customs and habits, another. Fifty years ago much of the water and food was infected with bacteria capable of causing diarrhea. They were not overly clean and much of it was eaten raw. Now foods are cleaner and fresher, polluted water is avoided or sterilized milk is pasteurized, cooking is better done. For these several reasons, diarrhea and dysenteries have almost disappeared. The increase in constipation has been due principally to change in customs and habits; changes in foods have contributed.

3. The old style meal was more coarsely ground and contained more bran and germ. The product, as it is now marketed, is deficient in these, and, being so, contributes to the constipation problem.

Scarlet Fever Closes Schools at Strasburg

Winchester, Va., Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Public schools of Strasburg, Va., have been closed by order of the town health authorities on account of an outbreak of scarlet fever which has assumed epidemic proportions.

Dr. W. C. Ford, chairman of the Shenandoah County board of health, ordered that all persons under 16 years of age be excluded from public gatherings, and urged parents to keep their children away from crowds. The original closing order was for ten days, but will be extended unless the outbreak is brought under control, it was said.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

FIGHTING FAMILIES.

DEAR Frances MacDonald: My brain is in the worst turmoil and I don't know of any one to go to but you. It's drastic, terrible, horrible!

I'm only 20, have a brother 18 and a sister 11, mother's 44, dad 46. Right now they're having a terrible quarrel. Nothing unusual, it's always happening. In fact, it all came to a climax one hour ago—after all these years. I burst in and told him a few truths. All of our life we've never known what affection or love for one another was, always quarreling, fussing, selfishness. Why? Because never do we hear a kind word from either. Mother's a human wreck. There's always been turmoil and strife. Half the time dad can't work. Then he doesn't earn enough. I've worked four years. Finished my schooling at night. Now I'm going to college in the evening. Fortunately, I've always been popular, gone out a great deal and am a different person away from home, liked by most every one. One thing I've been sorry for, have let too many fellows kiss me. Why? Because I never had any affection at home. I've become more sensible now and stopped it. But what shall we all do—mother's hateful, dad's worse, and my brother and sister get along like cats and dogs. Today had threatened to leave. I mustered up courage and told him to get out. I'm a nervous wreck. I've cried and sobbed and have no control over myself. It's their fault. All my life I've heard them fuss and quarrel. What shall we do?

On top of all that there's a fellow who went with me last year for a while. He came to call a great deal and couldn't wait till we'd see each other again. Finally he told me it was best that we part. It was impossible to marry; in fact, even now it is (and I don't want to, as yet). I had to fight with myself a great deal to forget. For ten months we only saw each other at a distance, or at affairs. I would always be cold to him, hiding my feelings. Then we met at a club meeting and he took me home. Saw him for a while and separated with the same agreement. There's a strong physical attraction which both have for each other. I have allowed other fellows to kiss me, yet none affect me as he does. When I see him I always become very nervous. What is that? Is it love? I know from experience and he admits that this physical attraction is mutual, yet we haven't gone to the extreme. That's why he stays away. Now, Mrs. MacDonald, it's selfish to ask so much of you, but will you give me sound advice on both troubles? The former is much worse.

NANCY.

You are right in stating that the feeling you have for the man you mentioned, and your problem concerning him, are less important than the family problem. In fact, the former is caused by the latter. You are unstrung emotionally because of family conditions and are therefore easily upset, and might be a rather easy victim were you less intelligent than you are. My heart goes out to you. And there is a way. If your father does not accept your invitation to leave he will, no doubt, at least realize that he has at last grown children to observe his shortcomings, and this has caused many a petty tyrant in the home to mend his ways.

But far more important is the fact that you, as the oldest child, may make home much happier for your brother and sister by beginning to show an adult interest in them and ceasing to quarrel and antagonize them. You will understand as the years go on. So do not build up mountains of regret by unkindness to those whose place no one can ever fill. Begin to let them know how much you love them. Do little things to make them happy. Win their love and you will be happy, too. You know Kathleen Norris, famous and beloved novelist, brought up her six brothers and sisters. She was only 18 when she assumed that task. And my own dear mother postponed her marriage seven years that she might give her whole attention to five small brothers and sisters. When the youngest was 14, mother's wedding took place. When I asked her once how she could make such a sacrifice and risk losing her lover she answered that the children's love was far greater than any man's love ever could be, and that any man who could be "lost" was not worth finding. And so when the children were grown the man, who waited, built a house large enough to house them all, and was a father to them. And they worshiped mother all the days of their lives. They called her "pretty pussy" and adored her as she did them. And "pretty pussy's" children were taught to love each other as dearly as life. That is why your story and the picture that you draw seems so terrible to me. People who will so soon be separated by life and by death, people who should love each other, fighting like wild animals, killing each other by inches. It is a sin. And you can stop all that. You can be a loving mother to the younger ones and not only preserve their happiness but, incidentally, find happiness yourself in their love. Do it, dear. Spend on them some of the emotion that now finds outlet only in those kisses you so regret. You are too lovely a child to know regret; so guard your own sweetness in sweet "mothering." And write to me again.

CAPITAL YOUTH, 17, GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Siren Interrupts Pronouncement of Verdict by Court in Montgomery.

Alfred Aquilino's memory must have gone back to the long chase with screaming police which culminated in his arrest last spring as he stood before Judge Robert B. Peter in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday. Aquilino, alleged to have held up a sanitarium near Forest Glen, Md., is a 17-year-old Washington youth.

Just as Judge Peter intoned: "I find this travester—" the fire house siren across from the courthouse sounded, followed by the sirens of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department. The judge paused, unable to compete with the noise. Then he continued: "Not guilty of assault to murder, but guilty of assault and assault to rob."

Defense attorneys, Peter & Simpson, moved for a new trial, and the court set December 11 as sentence day, on which they could argue their motion.

Defense had presented precedents to show the Maryland law holds guiltless of assault with intent to rob any person who is collecting a debt, but the judge intimated that the precedents did not show that the right could be delegated to an agent.

Aquilino had claimed that he was trying to collect $100 allegedly owed to his father. In the course of his attempt he had fired two shots at William Wright, a visitor. This, he claimed, was in self-defense.

Several other persons convicted of crimes by the court were sentenced yesterday. Maynard Miles, colored, of Bethesda, who was found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Fred Oldfield, also of Bethesda, was sentenced to serve three years in the House of Correction. He told the court that Oldfield was chasing him, and that he stumbled over the stick and then picked it up and struck in self-defense.

James Thomas Bell, colored, convicted of second-degree murder in connection with the death of Leroy Gaines, was sentenced to serve twelve years in the Maryland Penitentiary; William Adams, colored, was sentenced to serve seven years for assault with intent to murder; Vincent de Paul Davis was sentenced to serve two years and six months on a charge of housebreaking and larceny and sentence was suspended in three other cases of larceny; Henry Wilson received a suspended sentence on charges of receiving stolen goods; Walter Benson, 20 years old, of Potomac, was sentenced to serve six years in the House of Correction on charges of arson, while his alleged companion, William Pier, 15, was given a suspended sentence and turned over to the county juvenile court; Walter Chun, colored, of Ken-Gar, was sentenced to serve four years for unauthorized use of an automobile.

Gaston Means Declares He Will Not Stand Trial

Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent, appeared in Montgomery County Police Court at Rockville yesterday and changed his bond of $600 to collateral of $180 on charges of assaulting an officer and disorderly conduct which arose from a dispute between Means and his wife in their Chevy Chase, Md., home a week ago. He is scheduled to appear in that court today to answer the charges, but has informed Frank L. Davis, clerk of the police court, that he intends to forfeit the collateral.

Means is alleged to have struck and knocked down County Policeman Webb Harsperger when the latter and Policeman Thomas McNeil went to the Means home in response to a telephone call that Means had threatened to kill his wife.

Jail Term Given Former Sergeant

Prisoner Was ChargedWith Attempt to Rob Home in Takoma Park.

Henrich Henning, 29, of Washington, former Army sergeant, yesterday was sentenced in Takoma Park police court to serve four months in the Maryland House of Correction on charges of assault and trespassing. Henning had been arrested earlier in the day while allegedly attempting to rob the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myra Wood Ochert, 3 Valley View avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Mrs. Ochert awoke yesterday morning to see the man in her room and began screaming. Mr. Ochert, who was in the house, hurried to the room and attacked the man. When Town Policeman Frank Lane arrived, he found Mr. Ochert choking the intruder across a kitchen table.

Henning is said to have admitted holding up a man near the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club in Arlington County, Virginia, and robbing him of $23. He also has been identified as the man who earlier in the morning entered the home of T. C. Bierents, Maple and Grant avenues, but was persuaded to leave after receiving food.

Trainmen Cleared In Deaths of Pair

Marlboro Coroner's Jury Finds Car Crashed Into Side of Engine.

A coroner's inquest last night in the Marlboro, Md., courthouse exonerated the crew of a Chesapeake Beach railway train of all blame in connection with deaths of a Washington couple who were instantly killed Thursday night when the auto in which they were riding crashed into the engine of the train at a grade crossing near Browns Station, Md.

The jury deliberated more than two hours before a verdict clearing the trainmen, R. C. Griffith, engineer, and Charles Long, conductor, was announced. The jury declared that no "fixed responsibility" could be placed, as the automobile crashed into the side of the train while attempting to cross the railway tracks.

The victims, Roderick Milstead, 30 years old, 212 B street southeast, and his fiancee, Miss Carrie Rogers, 33 years old, 214 A street southeast, were removed to the James T. Ryan undertaking establishment here to await funeral arrangements.

VIRGINIA MAY RESIST FEDERAL BUS WRITS

Motor Division Would Use Police Power to Control Unlicensed Lines.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—T. McCall Frazier, director of the State Motor Vehicle Division, today sought advice from the State Corporation Commission as to whether the State should assert its police powers and resist two Federal court injunctions prohibiting the division from interfering with interstate bus carriers yet unlicensed in Virginia.

One injunction applies to a bus line crossing the Virginia-District of Columbia line, and the other applies to a line crossing the Virginia-North Carolina line. The mandates were issued by Judge Luther B. Way, in the Federal Court of the Eastern District.

Mr. Frazier said he believed the State has authority at least to regulate the amount of traffic which may operate on its roads at any time, and without that authority interstate carriers could flood the roads without regard to safety. Applications of such carriers for licenses, he explained, must be deferred pending action by the Corporation Commission on parallel applications for certificates of convenience and necessity.

While the applications for license are pending, he said, the lines continue to operate, and obtained injunctions restraining the State from molesting them for operating without a license.

The Alexandria-Washington line's injunction was issued November 19, and that of the Wilkinson-Creagh Motor Express was issued November 17. Each was for ten days' duration and the State was given 20 days to file replies.

MAN HELD IN DEATH DECLARED ACCIDENT

Auto Victim's Brother Has I. F. Purnell Arrested as Coroner Clears Him.

After a coroner had certified accident in the death of Everett Croson, 68, of Navy, Va.; Irvin F. Purnell, 26, 138 Thirteenth street southeast, driver of the car alleged to have run down Croson on the Navy road, near Lee highway, late Thursday, was held on manslaughter charges yesterday by a Fairfax County justice of the peace.

Dissatisfied with the decision, Will Croson, brother of the dead man, swore out a warrant yesterday for Purnell, who was taken before Justice of the Peace Thomas P. Chapman at Fairfax.

Judge Chapman held Purnell under $1,000 bond for action of the grand jury at the January term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court. Bond was supplied by the youth's mother, Mrs. Mattie F. Purnell.

According to Purnell and his brother Richard, who was with him, Croson suddenly stepped out from the side of the road into the path of the car. Relatives of the dead man said he was walking down the road with some implements he was returning to a neighbor.

Croson is survived by eight children, Will and Everett Croson, jr., of Fairfax; John and Joseph Croson, of McLean; Mrs. Samuel Sisson and Mrs. Robert Beach, of Fairfax; Mrs. Ray Thompson, of Navy, and Mrs. Horace Kinnard, of Fauquier.

Former Commonwealth Attorney William Gloth, of Arlington County, and Attorney Bruce Green have been retained by Purnell.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A POCKET GUIDE TO MODERN FOOTBALL.

(Note—As the inability to follow and fathom the curious goings-on which take place on a football gridiron these days seems to be pretty general, a guide of some sort is called for. It is this department's belief that the game would be simplified if played by 22 officials and three or four football players, instead of 22 football players and three or four officials, but as this seems impossible the following key to what-goes-on-down-there is offered.)

* * * *

1. The spectator sees the "A" team punt to the "B" team. A player on the "B" team apparently gets ready to catch it but lets it bounce all over the lot. A member of the "A" team falls on it offside. The ball is then grabbed by an official and put in play in midfield in possession of the "B" team.

Explanation—Offside play by a left-end and Blue eyes. The ball goes to the "B" team. This makes the score 3 to 0 in favor of "A."

2. The ball is passed by the "B" team quarter back to his half back, who runs 65 yards through the entire "A" team for a touchdown. The crowd goes wild. The bands play victory songs, and several old grads swoon into great stacks of broken bottles.

Explanation—This was an illegal tackle. The umpire brings the ball back to midfield and gives it to the "A" team. It is now third down for the "A" team with 17 yards to go, on account of hurdling. This makes the score a tie.

3. The "A" team quarterback hurls a long forward pass which, so far as the spectators can see, is caught cleanly by one of his ends, who gains 56 yards before he is brought down. The ball is within 3 yards of the goal post and a touchdown seems certain.

Explanation—This means that two officials in white knickerbockers will rush out, blowing whistles and that the ball will be brought back to the starting point and given to "C" team, which plays at the bowl the following Saturday. It counts as a drop kick and makes the score 11 to 5 in favor of the Athletics.

4. A player on the "A" team standing on his own 10-yard line hurls a pass 48 yards to one of his own men. The pass is apparently intercepted.

Explanation—It counts as a completed pass and touchdown under the unnecessary roughness rule, the antihurdling regulation and the agreement with Geneva. All scores are vetoed and the game begins from scratch again.

* * * *

5. A player on the "B" team catches a punt (this is a most unusual thing in modern football) on his own 20-yard line and by brilliant dodging eludes the entire opposition and makes a touchdown after an 80-yard run. Nobody so far as the spectators could see got near enough to touch him.

Explanation—The ball goes to the "A" team for holding, illegal use of elbows and failing to register. It counts as a touchback for both sides.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

TINY TOT'S NEEDS.

The bloomer dress is ever popular with tiny tots of 2, 4 and 6 years.

Today's little outfit is so cunning. The fulness falling from brief shoulder yokes allows plenty of skirt freedom.

The bloomers have elastic inserted through upper and lower edges.

Style No. 505 takes but 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material with ½-yard of 35-inch contrasting for the 4-year size.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, New York City.

CHRISTMAS RECIPE PRIZE IS OFFERED

Special Award Will Be Made for Best Bill of Fare for Holiday.

Seasonable recipes feature the entries in the Saturday Food Page contests with the holiday season advancing into the home maker's limelight.

In order to encourage this attention to holiday menus a special book prize will be awarded each week until Christmas for the best recipe received for the Christmas bill of fare which contains the name of some article which can be puchased from some advertiser on this page of The Washington Post.

This contest is in addition to the $5 weekly prize and the book and honorable mention prizes.

GERMAN CHRISTMAS COOKIES.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

¼ pound Land o' Lakes butter
¼ pound powdered sugar
3 egg yolks, beaten
½ pound Washington self-rising flour (sifted)
3 egg whites, beaten stiff
½ pound powdered sugar
½ pound chopped walnut meats (M. B. Frazier)

Beat butter and sugar to a cream, then add the beaten yolks and, lastly, the sifted flour. Roll out one-half inch thick and cut out small cookies. Set aside. Whip the egg whites very stiff; fold in powdered sugar and chopped walnuts. Drop a small teaspoon of this meringue on top each cooky. Place on a cooky sheet and bake in a moderate oven until delicately brown. Too hot an oven will spoil the meringue. Rolled thinner, the dough will yield nearly 36 cookies.

Baking time—20 minutes or more.

MRS. M. J. MILLER.

2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening (Land o' Lakes butter, purchased at Sanitary Grocery Co.)
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2-3 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Sift flour; measure. Add baking powder and salt. Sift together three times. Cream shortening. Add sugar, a little at a time, beating after each addition. Add beaten egg yolks and mix well. Add vanilla to milk. Add this and sifted dry ingredients, alternately. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

SIXTY-MINUTE ROLLS.
(Honorable Mention.)

3 cups plain flour (Wilkins-Rogers Milling Co.)
1 cup sweet milk
½ cup water
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons Crisco
3 yeast cakes dissolved in ¼ cup cold water
Use extra flour for kneading

Scald the milk, add half cup cold water. To the well-sifted flour add salt and sugar, mix in the shortening same as for any dough, mix with yeast and liquid to a good firm dough, knead smooth (about five minutes); put in warm place. In twenty minutes mash down, another ten minutes and the dough will be ready to make into rolls. Knead just enough to handle, shape into rolls, let double in size and bake in moderate oven 20 to 30 minutes. This will make about three dozen rolls.

MISS ALICE TUCKER.

CHOCOLATE FLUFF PIE.
(Honorable Mention.)

1½ cups Washington flour (plain)
½ cup Crisco
About 4 tablespoons ice water

Sift flour and salt together, cut in Crisco and add enough ice water to hold mixture together. Roll out very thin, fold over three times, and roll again very thin (this makes the pastry very flaky). Line pie plate with this pastry and bake a delicate brown, then fill with the following mixture:

(Custard Filling.)

1 cup evaporated milk (Sealect)
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon gelatine
3 tablespoons cold water
3 eggs
1 cup whipping cream
1 large square of chocolate (grated)

Mix evaporated milk, water and nutmeg and heat all in double boiler, then pour this mixture over the beaten yolks of the eggs, to which has been added the sugar and salt. Return mixture to fire and cook until thickened (about the consistency of thick cream). Stir constantly. Now add the gelatine, which has been soaked in the cold water for five minutes, stir in the vanilla and set aside to cool. When custard is cool and beginning to set, beat with Dover egg-beater until light, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour this fluffy mixture into the previously baked pie shell and set in electric icebox (or some other equally cold place) just long enough for filling to set, then spread with the slighfly sweetened whipped cream, and sprinkle top with grated chocolate.

All ingredients were purchased at the Piggly Wiggly Store.

Frankfurter Is Called Only One Not Now Selling at Higher Rate.

"The only meat which is not as low in price as it was 20 years ago is the frankfurter," a meat dealer on the Washington market said this week. "In all my 21 years of selling meat at this stand I have never known meats in general to be so cheap.

"In the last 20 years the hot dog's popularity has grown tremendously. I sold them for 7 to 10 cents a pound when I began my business, but now their lowest price anywhere is 10 to 12 cents. The dime store lunch stands and the highway quick lunches have been responsible for the big demand and the higher price. The public demands a safe and good hot dog and therefore it costs a little more."

The most noticeable recent decline in meat prices has been in pork. The best of pork chops retail at 15 cents per pound, and a pork loin roast may be bought at the same price. Half or whole hams of average quality cost but 12½ to 15 cents a pound, while the choicest hams do not bring more than 18 cents a pound.

Huge Yule Supply Of Turkeys Seen

Many Live Birds Not Sold on Thanksgiving Are to Be Fattened.

Turkeys which were not sold on the Thanksgiving market because the weather was too warm for shipping, or because the consumer's appetite was not whetted to a holiday appreciation of the usual Thanksgiving food during the phenomenally warm November days, will be fattened and sold at Christmas time. Furthermore, poultry dealers prophesy the Christmas cost of turkeys will be lower, since the market will be better supplied with the bird than it was at Thanksgiving.

The lean and blue look of some Thanksgiving turkeys was due to the fact, one dealer pointed out, that poultry raisers were hesitant about fattening their turkeys with the weather continuing too warm for selling them. The real fattening process will begin with the first winter weather.

It is definitely expected by many poultry dealers that the cost of the Christmas turkey will be under 40 cents per pound, while the better class of Thanksgiving turkeys sold for more than that.

Roast Turkey, Chicken.

To prepare bird, singe carefutlly by holding over a gas flame, turning it over slowly. Then cut off neck close to the body. Loosen tendons 1 inch below leg joint. Place the point of a skewer under the tendons, pull out one at a time, then break off feet. Remove pin feathers, using a pair of large tweezers or strawberry huller. Remove oil bag from tail. Using a small poultry or vegetable brush, scrub bird very thoroughly inside and out. Dry carefully and rub inside of bird with salt. Place in refrigerator to become thoroughly chilled. Stuff with following or any favorite dressing:

MARKET MEANDERINGS

By MILDRED REED BUNDY.

Calling on an artist in his workshop the other day was fun. He was vastly entertaining. There wasn't any studio tea, nor anything else to drink. No works in oils, pastels or copper were in evidence, for this artist evolves edible creations, such as glorified cakes and pastries. He paints them and he sculptures them No flowers, birds or animals are beyond his ability. And the finished products are truly pictures, bas-reliefs, statutes ..* or what would you?

Twenty years or so ago this artist scoured pots and pans for another baker in New York City. Now he is in charge of one of Washington's best known pastry shops. He won international fame with a monumental cake that served 1,000 persons. He cherishes equally his fame with thousands of children for whom he has made candle cakes and with brides to whom he has furnished the perfect wedding cake.

He skillfully lettered "Happy Birthday, Boss" on a big chocolate cake—some boss should be well filled with fine cake by now—meanwhile giving considerate attention to a suave restaurateur, a newspaper reporter, several bakers and the telephone. Just as quickly a big white cake took on the artist's delicate blue and white tracings as it was prepared for a women's lodge banquet. On the order book near the worker of magic with sugar were promises of a dozen more cakes yet to be done that day—and it was then late in the afternoon.

"Two Mickey Mice" were what one of the above orders asked for. "Thanksgiving greeetings! Wish we could be with you!" was to be inscribed on another cake. "For Jane" (with eleven candles) was another order. "Sure, I'll make the mice and all the rest on time," the unperturbed artist said, and if the mice are as realistic as were some of his turkeys on Tranksgiving cakes, their recipient was delighted, for the pastry wizard goes in for realism, as do many other artists. He once made a life-size turkey of almond paste with apricot dressing so realistic that it was actually put upon the table and about to be carved as a real fowl before the server realized the difference.

From the pastry shop to the peanut shop was only a few steps, and more fun was to be had there. For the amazing peanut man who walks the Washington shopping district and brings ecstatic delight to the Capital's juniors stepped right into view and put on his walking costume. For all the peanut face this fellow seems to have, he is handsome, more than 6 feet tall, with big black eyes. All dressed up in the peanut suit, and with somewhere to go, he departed, bending the high upper half of himself very low to get through the front door.

They say that this peanut man idea had its origin in a sketch by a high school boy down in Virginia not so very long ago. A peanut planter who had started in a small way was pleased with the boy's suggestion for peanut-shaped boxes as containers. He paid the clever boy $20 for the idea. The planter is now a millionaire. And peanuts are reduced to two pounds for 25 cents, freshly roasted at the rate of 75 pounds every half-hour.

You may call a peanut a nut. Sorry, but you're wrong about it. Its a vegetable—on the authority of the manager of the nut shop. So is the cashew nut a vegetable. The cashew nut—or vegetable—by the way, is the best seller among the salted nuts, even at 75 cents a pound. Pistachio nuts from Syria are $1.10 a pound. The interesting Spanish pignolia, or pine tree nut, is only 60 cents a pound.

Miniature turkeys made of almond paste, butter cream, fruits and nuts, are alluring bits in a pastry shop on G street.

Grissins, or Italian bread sticks, so good with soft cheese for midnight suppers, or to go with salad or with Italian food, are only 10 cents a dozen on the fancy food market of Washington.

Grapefruit from Florida are selling in bushel baskets at a Seventh street fruit shop. The bushel baskets hold from 40 to 50 grapefruit and were tagged $1.75. At the same shop avocados sold for as little as three for 25 cents.

Chinese-Americans are frequent customers at the fish market. Usually their choice lies among shrimps, smelts, sea bass or squid, a market fish dealer said. Once a member of a Chinese noble family called at the market for shark fin. In due time the aristocratic customer's order was filled, for there is hardly any known sea food that the local fish dealers can not procure.

Strawberries, pears and plums made of almond paste, brightly colored, make a festive filling for the holiday bowl. The mock fruit sells at 60 cents for a dozen.

Bread Stuffing.

1 quart stale bread crumbs
¼ onion, chopped
¼ cup celery, diced
Liver, gizzard and heart chopped
2 eggs
½ cup strained tomatoes
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper, ginger and nutmeg

Soak bread crumbs in cold water and squeeze dry. Melt drippings in pan, add liver, gizzard; heat onion and celery, then bread and fry 15 minutes. Then add other ingredients and mix well. Cool and stuff into prepared turkey or chicken. Sew or skewer the opening, then truss the bird and return it to the refrigerator. This preparation may be done a day in advance. When ready to bake sprinkle salt over the bird and rub it into the skin. Dust with flour and lay strips of Fixed Flavor Star Bacon over the breast and legs. Place in a roasting pan and roast uncovered in a hot oven (550 degrees Fahrenheit) 20 minutes, cover, reduce temperature to 400 degrees Fahrenheit and allow 20 minutes for each pound, figuring the weight of the bird after it is cleaned and stuffed. Baste frequently with hot water and butter.

FLIERS ENTER FIGHT ON ISLAND COLUMNS

Forty Petition President to Halt Shafts' Erection as Air Hazard.

Forty transport and mail plane pilots entered the controversy over erection of two 200-foot granite shafts on Columbia Island, as approved by the Fine Arts Commission. In a petition to President Hoover to block the project they alleged yesterday that the pillars would be an ever-present hazard to flying.

The petition asks the President to disregard recommendations of the Fine Arts body in the interest of human life and property. Collision of a plane with the shafts would instantly kill occupants, and with planes on regular daily schedules, carrying many passengers in and out of Washington-Hoover Airport, the chance of a tragedy is too great to ignore, the pilots believe.

The aviation division of the Department of Commerce has branded the proposed columns as serious dangers to operations of the airport and say that they might have to close it to passenger traffic if they are constructed.

Conferences between aviation officials and Federal agencies active on Columbia Island, arranged through efforts of Lawrence E. Williams, chairman of the aviation committee of the Board of Trade, have solved all problems of flying hazard on the island with exception of the columns.

Petition of the fliers is addressed to Mr. Williams for forwarding to the President. Names on it are:

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

COLUMBIA

"THE CHAMP." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Frances Marion, with dialogue by Leonard Praskins, costarring Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper, supported by Irene Rich, Hale Hamilton, Roscoe Ates, Edward Brophy, Marcia Mae Jones and Jesse Scott. Directed by King Vidor. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is the extraordinary precocity of Master Jackie Cooper that establishes this subject as one of superlative appeal to all ages and all classes of theatergoers.

Fashioned upon the uncouth pursuits of those whose lives are interwoven with the prize ring, gambling, horse racing and a deal of surreptitious drinking, there would be precious little in "The Champ" to engage feminine attention were it not for the irresistible performance of one of the most remarkably gifted juvenile stars the cinema has produced. With him cast in the role of the youngster who idolizes his daddy, a fallen heavyweight champion, and will have none of the luxury proffered by his divorced mother, rewed to a man of wealth, not a woman in the house but will glow with the satisfaction of having her mother instinct whipped into a delightful state of agitation by the spectacle of the kid's devotion and final anguish, when "the champ" succumbs to a heart attack after winning his last fight, just to prove to his son that he could!

Fully half of the tremendous tug that this picture exerts on the heart strings is due to the perfect portrayal of a physical giant, but moral weakling, who loved his son with an overpowering passion that manifested itself in a gruff sort of tenderness and the perpetual goading of a guilty conscience, by Wallace Beery. His is the same sort of apologetic ingratiating, I-was-only-kidding part that he stamped with the hallmark of his genius as "Butch," in "The Big House."

The combination of these two, as father and son, in a story so perfectly blending comedy and pathos, represents a new high in sagacious showmanship and made-to-measure playwrighting.

It is, of course, customary to proclaim each juvenile actor in his turn the greatest the screen has known. It was done with Ben Alexander, with Wesley "Freckles" Barry, with Jackie Coogan and a long list of others, but in the case of young Mr. Cooper it really seems to be true. He never makes a mistake. In his present role he is confronted by a man's size task, which he performs with the elocutionary and dramatic surety and perfection of a veteran trouper, no matter what the mood or the requirement of the given situation. Any one who can resist the heartbreak of his final scene must wear his emotions under a thick protective layer of Bessemer steel!

While Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper are the sum and substance of "The Champ," supporting roles of importance are skillfully played by Irene Rich, as the remarried mother; Hale Hamilton, her husband; Roscoe Ates, "the champ's" stuttering handler and barroom associate; Edward Brophy, fight promoter, and little Jesse Scott, an ebony youth, in whose companionship Dink finds much solace when his adored dad is on one of his periodical binges.

If you insist on quibbling about such things, there is, to be sure, a deal of hokum in "The Champ," but it is agreeable hokum and in an extravagantly good cause, permitting Master Cooper, as it does, to enlarge upon everything that was best in what he did in both "Skippy" and "Young Donovan's Kid."

The supporting bill includes a Charley Chase comedy, "Skip the Maloo," just as sane as its title, a free translation of "follow the leader," which is a little more messy and a little less funny than some of the earlier vehicles for Mr. Chase's bizarre ebulliences have been.

The paramount Sound News is composed of many interesting subjects, among them the imposing pageant of King George V of England perpetuating a custom of seven centuries by riding through the streets of the British capital in a lumbering horse-drawn coach to open Parliament. If it is any comfort in this drizzly weather, they didn't have a very good day for it!

However, this "shot" comes along every year; no telling when you will ever see another "Champ!"

RIALTO

"FRANKENSTEIN." Universal picturization of the novel by Mrs. Mary W. Shelley, adapted to the screen by Garrett Fort and Francis E. Faragoh, featuring Colin Clive, Mae Clarke, John Boles and Boris Karloff. Directed by James Whale. Second week.

Offering unequivocal proof that gruesomeness and terror are dramatic elements that exert an irresistible appeal to a large segment of the theatergoing public, this fabulous story of a man-made robot, imbued with the power of movement, but no soul, enters its second week with house attendance records fairly within its grasp.

The fantastic narrative which the film unfolds is unique in literature and upon the stage. A young scientist fashions a human form from scraps of human bodies salvaged from graves, clinics or wherever they might be found, and by a perfected method of electric galvanism brings the weird and horrifying figure to life. Having incorporated the diseased mind of a dangerous criminal in the synthetic man he has created, havoc follows in the train of the scientist's achievement.

The great, gangling automaton strews the countryside with the hideous mementoes of his uncurbed savagery and finally dies upon a blazing pyre set aflame by the outraged villagers into whose tranquil lives he has brought such abject terror.

Here is a carnival of morbidity that is strangely and horrifyingly fascinating. There are woven into the play qualities that are unfailing in their purpose of riveting attention. This, of course, is largely due to the skill of Colin Clive, as the scientist; Mae Clarke, his betrothed; John Boles, their best friend, and Boris Karloff, as the monster who wreaks such havoc upon those who brought him into existence. Karloff's makeup is a masterpiece of blood-chilling realism.

The surrounding bill is in the nature of an agreeable antidote for the tense developments of the major feature.

FOX

"SURRENDER." Fox picturization of the play, "Azelle," by Pierre Benoit, starring Warner Baxter, supported by Leila Hyams, Ralph Bellamy, C. Aubrey Smith and Alexander Kirkland. Directed by William K. Howard. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Leila Hyams, a leading woman who has given a number of better than average performances in the past, and who is ever lively in appearance, steps right out in fast company here to share with Warner Baxter what laurels there are to be garnered. As a matter of fact, it seemed to this reviewer that Miss Hyams and C. Aubrey Smith both had a slight edge over the star, without in the least belittling Mr. Baxter's performance.

From this it may be gathered that "Surrender" offers an enjoyable bit of acting by a cast capable of carrying its collective burdens to the satisfaction of all concerned. The play itself is an attractive combination of love and war—with the bullets omitted from the war.

Adapted from the play, "Axelle," the film naturally features Axelle, niece of a German general whose four sons go forth in the World War. Axelle is engaged to the youngest and least fitted for such a struggle. During the first three years of strife, three of the four sons are killed, only Dietrich, Axelle's sweetheart, remaining. She in turn has been wooed by Capt. Elbing, in charge of a prison camp nearby, but has fallen in love with Dumaine, a French prisoner, sent to wire for electricity the out-of-date castle in which she lives.

Miss Hyams, as Axelle, is splendid throughout. Hers is a difficult role, with three men, one an enemy, seeking her hand, but she never falters. Mr. Baxter, in the part of Dumaine, is, as ever, likable, but the plot is built around Axelle, and to Miss Hyams fall the better portions of the action and dialogue.

C. Aubrey Smith, a veteran of stage and screen, here adds to his renown by impersonating perfectly that militaristic, Kaiser-like type of soldier, firm in his faith in the Fatherland and deaf to all thoughts of defeat. Ralph Bellamy, too, does a neat bit as the dapper German officer, marred by conflict, but retaining a grim sense of humor to the finish—which in his case is suicide. The armistice arrives at a timely moment, just after Dietrich (Alexander Kirkland) has freed Axelle from her promise, that she may wed Dumaine. Not very heavy but thoroughly enjoyable.

Les Stevens and The Diplomats, aided by the orchestra, in "Southern Rhapsody," present a delightful number to open the stage show. Southern songs, featuring river melodies, make up the overture with vocal solos scoring heavily. Andy Hamilton sings "Old Man River;" Johnny Ferrara does "Dinah;" Les Stevens warbles "River Stay Way From My Door" and George Bersch swings through "Chloe" in a manner that set toes tapping last night.

Exclusive views of the former Kaiser in his Holland retreat feature the Fox Movietone News, while Karl Dane and George K. Arthur are starred in a comedy called "Shove Off," which reached the height of something or other for its impossibility.

PALACE

"TOUCHDOWN." Paramount picturization of Francis Wallace's story, "Stadium," featuring Richard Arlen, Jack Oakie, Peggy Shannon and J. Farrell MacDonald. Directed by Norman McLeod. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Here's a picture that is likely to surprise you. It's not just another football affair by any manner of means. And as proof positive of that, we'll make affidavit, if you so desire, that there isn't a one-minute-to-go, hip-hurray touchdown for our side as the climax.

The story, and by this time, you must realize that there is a story and a most unusually good one, concerns Dan Curtis, who, having had a head-start in his fight from the bottom up by beginning as a coal-miner's son, finds it more imperative to keep on going up and up, than most. As an all-American football star, his success is sweet indeed, not because of the sport, but because of the vistas of success it opens in the business world as a coach after graduation. From a small school, he goes to a large one as coach, and there with the assistance of a bank roll and an amiable and not-too-squeamish former teammate, builds a great team as a stepping stone to a still larger school.

There's a girl to whom he tries to explain his twisted psychology which he doesn't understand himself, there's that girl's brother on his team, there are injured players he keeps playing, and there's his assistant who proves not quite as ruthless as he. All of these and other twists and turns of circumstances are knit firmly together to form an intensely interesting whole, full of suspense and not lacking in power. It is marred only by its unnecessary length. As for football, some of the sequences are excellent, others too speedy and jumbled.

Almost as surprising as the picture is the excellent piece of work done by Richard Arlen as the unsympathetic and yet somehow likable Dan. They've kept Arlen a nice young man with a nice young grin too long. Here he is both brutal and brisk, with a great deal of vigor and punch making a real person out of his sadly muddled Dan.

Mr. Paramount and this recent stepping-down of starring rank to the contrary, Jack Oakie, as Babe Barton, Dan's impulsive, ragamuffin assistant, does as nice and neat a job of earning himself a sizable share of applause as we've seen lately. We're tempted to say there's not enough of him, but we realize any more might dim the others and also that idea we were gloating about not so long ago. Anyhow, he's very swell.

J. Farrell MacDonald, the old dependable, who kept us from calling Oakie's "Babe" lovable because we were saving it for him (and, of course, it's more in keeping with his sober years), plays another football coach. And highest compliment, it is another. A superlatively good job and he must be learning the game.

Peggy Shannon, reading so intelligently, Regis Toomey, Charles Starrett, particularly, and George Barbier, all do nicely.

A Dogville comedy, "Trader Hound," shamelessly silly and lots of fun, and a newsreel complete a bargain bill.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

After ten years of continuous activity as supervising directress of the world's largest organization dedicated to the production of stage entertainment, Fanchon, of the famous firm of Fanchon & Marco, is leaving her West Coast studio this week for an extended tour of this country and Europe.

From the time a decade ago when she and her brother, Marco, signed contracts to produce concentrated musical comedies for a single theater in San Francisco, the Warfield, until today, this energetic young woman has turned out a tabloid revue every week. These revues, at the present time, are presented in 50 of the foremost motion-picture palaces scattered across the continent—including the Fox, in this city—under the general name of Fanchon & Marco Ideas. The Roxy Theater presentations in New York also are presented under Fanchon & Marco sponsorship.

Fanchon—they use only their first names, these two, for some reason—who has placed nearly 10,000 girls on the stage as Sunkist Beauties, plans to visit San Francisco, Denver, Omaha, Minneapolis, Chicago, Indianapolis and New York during her present tour. In each of these cities she will acquaint herself with local conditions in order to determine the trend next year's productions should follow.

In Paris, Berlin and London, Fanchon will confer with theater executives regarding the probability of presenting Fanchon & Marco Ideas abroad. She will also sign several famous continental acts on the dotted line to appear in America during 1932.

And she calls it a pleasure trip!

"The Greater Love," a play in two acts, will be presented by the unemployed of Washington for the unemployed of Washington in the Masonic Auditorium on the evening of Friday, December 18. It is being sponsored by the unemployment committee of the Washington Federation of Churches.

The play, to which reference has been made here before, is based on an incident in the life of the Biblical character, Joseph.

Today and tonight at the National Theater the many followers of Burton Holmes, as well as those movie fans who would like to see their favorite stars at play, will have a second opportunity to see "The Real Hollywood" when Mr. Holmes repeats this travelogue that opened his Washington season.

In this fascinating pictorial expose of Hollywood life and manners, Mr. Holmes brings to this so-called citadel of culture and commerce a fresh viewpoint as he draws back the curtain from hidden scenes and reveals the amusing and colorful daily life of the movie colony.

Mr. Holmes will show you intimate glimpses of Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Dolores Del Rio, Jean Harlow, Phillips Holmes, Edward Everett Horton, Billie Dove, Thomas Meighan, Laura La Plante, Lois Wilson, Leo Carrillo and Joe E. Brown. He will also bring you to the "lots," showing you the directors and scenes of pictures in the making; in fact, he takes you on a tour of the "Movie Capital" and its inside life that the average individual could not penetrate even if he had the time and means to travel to the California city.

The afternoon "tour" will begin at 2:30 and the evening at 8:30.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 Mr. Holmes concludes his season in Washington with the first presentation on any screen of the magnificent Colonial Exposition, which attracted such vast crowds to Paris during the past summer.

The Hollywood subject in my view, is the sanest and most genuinely informative exposition of the movie capital as it actually is that has ever been offered the public.

That high-strung Southern gentleman, Mr. Sam Galanty, Washington manager for Columbia Pictures Corporation, it is who flashes the word that Clara Bow, the famous "It" girl of the screen, sometimes known as the "Brooklyn Bonfire," the "Titian Torch," etcetera and this and that, has definitely and finally been signed by his company to be starred in a production which will be begun at once in Columbia's West Coast studio.

President Joe Brandt, of Columbia, says Mr. Galanty, made the announcement himself and is highly gratified that Miss Bow should have decided upon Columbia as the company under whose auspices she will make her return to the celluloids.

Details of the new production will be made public in due course.

It is always easy to applaud the closing of a show by the authorities as an heroic gesture on the side of virtue. There is, however, another side to the picture which is seldom, if ever, given any heed. That is, the hardship that may be worked upon players, and others affected, in circumstances over which they can have no possible control.

The closing of Mae West's "The Constant Sinner"—and far be it from me to hold any brief for so flagrantly offending an offering—for example, has resulted, as nearly as I am able to determine, in the sudden cessation of employment for a sum total of 90 individuals. This is quite a goodly number to be tossed out of jobs over night.

The sole mitigating circumstance in this instance seems to be that the play was scheduled to close here tonight regardless of the law's appraisal of its demerits or any subsequent action relating thereto.

And another thing that should not be lost sight of is that the booking of such attractions into its theater is beyond the control of the local management.

From a quarter century of reasonably close association with him, I am confident that Mr. L. Stoddard Taylor, manager of the Belasco, if he were permitted to follow his natural bent, would present only the beautiful things of the stage in his playhouse. Many of them he would find unappreciated by the public and therefore unprofitable, but he would take pride in presenting them, nevertheless, I am sure. It is a matter of small comfort to him, I imagine, that other plays not far from "The Constant Sinner's" stripe have been permitted to come and go unmolested.

And there have been a good many such through the years, make no mistake about that.

And I wonder how, and when, I happened to open THIS course of lectures—and me without even so much as a magic lantern slide!

Grounded Collier Refloated.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—The British collier Baron Glenconner, which founded on League Rock, near the entrance to Narragansett Bay in a thick fog last Saturday morning, was floated today. The vessel is laden with coal from Swansea, Wales.

Accused Principal's Wife Expires at Morgantown

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Sturgiss West, 48, wife of J. T. West, former principal of Morgantown High School, died here Wednesday night.

Mrs. West became seriously ill last week during the trial of her husband on charges of misconduct with a Morgantown school teacher. The jury in the case disagreed. Mr. and Mrs. West were married here in 1905. In addition to her husband and three children, Mrs. West is survived by three sisters.

Breathing Not Vital To Life, Court Says

Mother Given Legacy of Baby Because Its Heart Beat.

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—District Judge E. B. Chappell today ruled breathing was not necessary to denote life. His decision permitted Mrs. Henry I. Stuertz, whose husband was killed accidentally two years ago, to collect a $20,000 judgment.

Several months after the accident, a daughter was born to the woman. Hospital attendants said the baby's heart beat 10 to 20 minutes, but the child did not breathe.

Stuertz's parents told the court the child was born dead and that breath was necessary to denote life. They asserted they were entitled to half the judgment. The widow received half the estate in her own name, the other half going to the child. The mother as sole heir to the child under Judge Chappell's ruling also would receive the other half.

Schooner's Crew of 7 Rescued at Sea by Liner

Boston, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—The United Fruit Co. announced receipt of a radio report today that the captain and crew of 6 of the schooner Rio had been picked up at sea by the steamship Aztec of the company's European fleet and taken to Tela, Honduras.

The report said the men were residents of Grand Bank, Newfoundland. It contained no details of what had happened to the schooner. The men will be ulsced on the steamship San Bruno of the company's line Sunday and will arrive in Boston December 6.

Mrs. Wanamaker contended payments of $20,000 annually were "totally inadequate and insufficient."

Robbery Prisoner Is Former Sheriff

Six Texans Are Accused of Kidnaping and Plot to Loot Banks.

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Schuyler Marshall, jr., former sheriff of Dallas County, and five other men were charged today with robbery with firearms and kidnaping in connection with an alleged plot to rob two banks at Mansfield, Tex.

The accusations specifically concerned the kidnaping of Elbert Farr, engineer of the Mansfield Power Plant, last Friday night. Farr was taken 4 miles from Mansfield and released after he had been robbed of a shotgun and a pistol.

Officers acting on a tip were guarding the banks Friday night but no burglars showed up. The kidnaping of Farr was believed by officials to have fitted into plans to put lights in Mansfield out of commission in preparation for burglary attempts.

Hoover Asked to Help Persecuted Polish Jews

Cincinnati, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—President Hoover and Tytos Filipowicz, Polish Ambassador to the United States, were asked today by the Union of Orthodox Rabbis, in semiannual convention here, to use their influence to stop persecution of Jews in Poland.

David Sway, editor of the Jewish World, said the union sent one resolution to Ambassador Filipowicz which registered protest against renewed atrocities inflicted upon Jews in Poland and requested that he transmit the protest to the Polish government. Sway said the resolution sent to President Hoover called his attention to attacks against Jewish brethren in Poland and asked him to do his utmost to relieve the oppression.

Utilities Also Touch Bottom for Year; U. S. Issues Record Losses.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.)—Although there was no disturbing news of consequence, in either business or politics, the bond market today continued to breathe but feebly, and the averages of prominent railroad and utilities made new low records for the year.

The total sales were $13,892,000, which is the largest day's trading since November 9. All United States Government bonds closed lower and foreign issues had but few friends.

German obligations were especially weak, some of them registering as much as an 8-point loss. Recent expressions of Premier Laval of France that reparations payments should precede the settlement of private debts were believed by many to have contributed largely to the decline in the German loans.

South American issues were unsettled by the news that Brazil would be compelled to default in the payment of coupons due December 1 on Brazil 8s, 1941, and the 7s of 1952. The fiscal agents for Brazil in New York announced the republic would not be able to take care of this interest due to the delay in completing details of the government's plan for funding the service of its external debt.

Among other foreign loans that lost ground were British 5½s and Italian government 7s. The latter dropped 3½ points. Japanese government, municipal and utilities displayed considerable firmness, the government 6½s losing but a fraction, while Oriental Development 6s gained a point.

New lows were the rule throughout the railroad list. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, 1933, touched a bottom of 77⅛ for a net loss of 4⅞ points; St. Louis & San Francisco 4½s, Nickel Plate issues, and Chicago & Northwestern found new low ground. Great Northern 5½s dropped 5¼ points, and all the Missouri Pacific obligations were off.

Among the utilities Brooklyn Union Gas 5s, 1945, fell 4¼ points, American and Foreign Power 5s were down 2, while Public Service Electric & Gas 4s of 1971 and numerous others closed weak.

Industrial loans were somewhat mixed, although the minus signs predominated. A number of these obligations, however, displayed some inclination to resist selling pressure.

STOCK PRICES DROP ON HEAVIER SELLING

Copper Recovers After News of International Curb in Production.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—The securities markets today took up their decline in prices where they left off Wednesday for Thanksgiving holiday, and with few exceptions the trend of all major markets was downward.

The brightest ray of light that appeared in an otherwise drab stock market session came from the copper industry. The report from London that Belgian owners of rich Congo mines had agreed to curtail production was distinctly encouraging. It was greeted with enough enthusiasm to carry copper stocks against the general trend, and for a while this served to arrest selling in other divisions in the main list of stocks. But new selling appeared at the close and earlier gains from the day's extreme low points were largely erased.

An important contributing cause for the day's selling which swept over the commodity as well as securities markets was the weakness of sterling. The cable rate declined 7⅛ cents to $3.54½, and offerings were reported large in both London and Paris.

Wheat Also Declines.

Decline of 1¾ to 3¼ cents a bushel at Chicago for wheat futures, and a moderate loss of 40 to 60 cents a bale for cotton were regraded as due in part to the weakness of sterling, and in turn encouraged further selling of securities.

Premier Laval's statement that France would not consider the suggestion that Germany's private debts be given priority over her reparations debts created some concern in speculative quarters, but was not disturbing to leading bankers. According to banking viewpoint, the French premier's statement, made before the Chamber of Deputies, was designed mainly for "home consumption."

Only because of private banking advances of short-term credits to Germany, in their opinion, had Germany been able to pay reparations at all. The French, they stated, fully appreciate this and also realize that further payments will depend upon the success of Germany in obtaining necessary outside credit in order to thaw out her own frozen machinery.

Dealing Is Active.

While stock exchange sales totaled only 1,835,755 shares, which is substantially below normal business, today was the most active of the week. Temporary rallies developed occasionally, but failed to attract much following. As a result, stocks of practically all classes except coppers, gave ground under modest offerings and the railroad issues again went to new low prices. Losses of 2 to 5 points occurred in Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central, Southern Pacific and Pennsylvania, among others. Railroad preferred stocks joined in the decline in considerable volume today. Stocks of investment caliber like Atchison preferred and Chicago & Northwestern preferred lost 3 or more points.

United States Steel also yielded into new low ground, closing 2¾ points down. Other industrials which lost quite sharply included American Can, Eastman Kodak, Sears-Roebuck, American Telephone, Westinghouse and International Telephone.

The Federal Reserve report, deferred over the holiday until after the close of business today, showed an increase of $8,000,000 for the week in money in circulation, bringing the total to $5,479,000,000. Holiday needs primarily accounted for this small gain. Money rates, which had stiffened early in the week relaxed today. Although the call loan rate was again quoted at 2½ per cent, accommodation was reported in the "outside" market at 2 per cent.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Cotton was lower today under a little Southern selling combined with liquidation and local selling.

The decline extended to 6.02 for January, or 13 points net lower, and that position closed at 6.06, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 8 to 12 points.

The opening was barely steady, 7 to 9 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and selling by brokers with Liverpool, continental and Southern connections. There also seemed to be some selling for Wall street interests, but the decline brought in a considerable demand from the trade which included some buying believed to be for Japanese account. This checked the opening break, but buyers were supplied readily with a few points and the market worked lower during the middle of the day, with December selling off to 5.96 and May to 6.36 or about 11 to 14 points net lower. Later fluctuations were somewhat irregular as there was enough trade buying and covering to cause slight bulges, but closing quotations were within 3 to 4 points of the lowest.

No change was reported in the Southern spot situation. The demand was said to be comparatively slow but the basis firm, and while the South sold some here at the opening, there was very little pressure from that source later in the day. The decline in wheat and cleanings in the stock markets were most generally mentioned as the chief factors on the decline, while some thought the market might have been influenced by the weakness in sterling and that the talk of renewed agitation for export debentures or the equalization fee in Washington was having a somewhat unsettling effect on sentiment abroad.

Liverpool cables said that local buying in that market had been supplied by selling on lower sterling and weakness in Alexandria and reported an unsettled tone in the Manchester goods market with buyers cautious. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria were 1 to 2 points lower. General business here during the day was comparatively quiet. Exports today, 18,260, making 2,710,966 so far this season. Port receipts, 70,451. U. S. port stocks, 4,809,806.

CARNERA BEATS CAMPOLO BY SECOND-ROUND KNOCKOUT; GEORGETOWN AND DETROIT MEET ON WET FIELD TODAY

12,000 See Campolo Go Down for Nine Before Finish.

Toe-to-Toe Barrage Amazes Fans as Battle Starts.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, the Leaning Tower of Italy, bent down upon Victorio Campolo, almost as large and even taller heavyweight specimen from Argentina, and snuffed him out in surprising fashion tonight in the second round of a fifteen-round struggle.

Ballyhooed as a battle of giants such as never before has been staged in the history of the ring, Carnera, a small matter of 266½ pounds and a mere 6 feet 6 inches tall, bounced the South American and his 6 feet 7 inches and 224½ pounds to the canvas for a count of nine as soon as the second round had opened and then finished him with another volley of head punches.

It was a surprising but unconvincing display of punching power on the part of the vast Venetian, still the enigma of the heavyweights, for Campolo took the final count sitting down, gazing in melancholy fashion at the canvas, as if in deep meditation on some particular perplexing problem of life. The crowd of 12,000 roared as the giants mixed wildly in the first round, stared as Victorio reclined in the second, sighed and left the arena unmoved for the most part.

Rivals Offer Strange Sight.

It was a weird battle, probably the strangest sight in all the bizarre history of the heavyweights, as the gawky Gaucho from Argentina, rumored one of the stiffest of the heavyweight right-hand punchers, locked his left hand about Primo's neck in the first session, and smote the Italian upon the chin with his right as Carnera fondly unfolded Campolo's head with his right and massaged the South American's chin with lefts.

They were so high above the ringside spectators that there were cricks in necks before the first round was over and they so completely filled the 18-foot ring it was scarcely possible to look anywhere in the arena without one's eye falling upon one or the other.

The first round was hot and thunderous, full of punching, as the superdreadnaughts of the division lately created by William Muldon, high commissioner of the New York State Athletic Commission, thundered about the ring and raised the resin dust in clouds. There was an expression of grim determination upon the wide expanse of features of Carnera, much maligned because of his fungo hitting tour through the hinterlands last season, while Campolo seemed pained, and his big nose wiggled a bit in complaint as the huge Italian took his vaunted right-hand punches, grunted only a little, and proceeded to smite Victorio's peculiar features with short lefts and rights.

Campolo Sinks to Canvas.

The slenderness of Campolo, despite his slight height advantage, told in the second as Carnera, broad as a percheron, stumping around on legs that might have been cut from the stumps of oak trees, wrapped his left fist about the nape of Victorio's neck and belabored the Argentine's chin with short rights. Campolo sighed after a couple of dozen of those, and sank to the canvas.

Gunboat Smith, once quite a heavyweight himself, but a dwarf in this league, counted nine over Victorio and even touched ten as the dazed South American, looking very mournful but unmarked, showed little disposition to get up. Victorio stirred at nine and the Gunner gave him the benefit of the doubt, dusting off his gloves as Campolo came to his feet at nine and ninety-nine one-hundredths.

Again Carnera plowed into the wobbly Argentine, clouting him about the head with both hands, and before the round was two minutes old Victorio slumped down again, this time to take the full count, seated just outside of his own corner.

Tonight's defeat may mean the end of Campolo as a heavyweight campaigner, for he announced before the battle that he would quit this business of fist fighting if he failed to whip the huge Italian. In two previous engagements Campolo had been outpointed by Tommy Loughran and knocked out by Ernie Schaaf.

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

(Associated Press.)

ROUND ONE—Immediately they locked arms and pounded each other about the head with short rights. Campolo nailed the Italian giant with a left to the jaw and two short rights that spun Primo around. Two gigantic figures, they stood and hammered lefts and rights crudely to each other's head, holding and punching, and the referee, a pygmy, beside them, scarcely dared to separate them. Toe to toe, they stood and heaved broadsides, lefts and rights, into each other's head and the crowd roared at the fantastic spectacle. Campolo, taller, but more slender, seemed to weaken first, and he was holding at the bell.

ROUND TWO—Carnera tore into Campolo and floored him with a right and left. Campolo barely got up at the count of nine. Carnera smashed him with rights and lefts and Campolo held on desperately. Primo floored Campolo again with a head barrage and Campolo was counted out after 1 minute and 27 seconds of the second round.

YALE RATED 4-1 CHOICE TODAY

James' Return Buoys Tigers' Slim Hope of Winning.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Yale without Capt. Albie Booth, was a 4 to 1 favorite tonight to defeat Princeton with Jack James in the fifty-fifth renewal of a time-honored gridiron rivalry in the bowl tomorrow.

The Bulldogs have lost the services of the tiny Booth, who lies in New Haven Hospital stricken with pleurisy and threatened with pneumonia—his brilliant college football career ended by carelessness in his hour of glory after the defeat of Harvard last Saturday.

Instead of running for the showers after the game Albie dashed around congratulating his teammates and receiving the congratulations of others. Then he drove home to New Haven in the cool night air with the windows of his small sedan open. Wednesday he developed a severe cold and was sent to the hospital. Today doctors said he had pleurisy and took X-ray pictures repeatedly to guard against development of pneumonia.

Return of James Bolsters Tigers.

Princeton, pitifully weak all year, has been strengthened by return to the squad of James, a running half back many consider almost as good as Booth. James has been unable to play all year because of a foot injury.

But Yale remains a strong favorite among the betters. There is plenty of Yale money offered at 4 to 1 odds on the Elis. Booth and James notwithstanding, the odds appear justified by the past records of both teams. Yale has steadily improved its new style attack all season against stiff opposition and climaxed its schedule last week with a 3 to 0 victory over unbeaten Harvard. Princeton won its opener from Amherst and dropped games on successive Saturdays to Brown, Cornell, Navy, Michigan, Lehigh and Washington and Lee.

Princeton's Line Overmatched.

Of course, James wasn't there to give a spark to the Tiger attack, as Princeton followers point out, but it takes more than a speedy half back to provide the winning stimulus to a team with a tissue-paper line. Princeton's line is going up against a forward wall that was able to hold fresh Harvard for downs on its 7-yard line after an 83-yard run that might have demoralized a team of lesser caliber.

A colorful crowd of 30,000 to 40,000 is expected to parade to the bowl despite a threat of adverse weather and a ticket price of $5. Yale and Princeton always draw despite the past records of the teams. Yale holds the edge in victories, having won 29 to Princeton's 16. Nine ended in ties.

Australia Leading South Africa in Cricket

Brisbane, Australia, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Australia started its test cricket match with South Africa today by putting on 341 for six wickets, with Don Bradman, brilliant young batsman of the home squad, accounting for 200 runs, not out.

The Springboks had several chances to dismiss Bradman during his long run, but they lost their chances through spotty fielding. Bradman played despite the handicap of an injured leg, hurt on almost the first play after he went to the wickets when a ball from Bell hit him on the thigh. He played for some time in obvious distress, but after the lunch interval he came back to punish the South African bowlers severely.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Army, praised by the late Knute Rockne as "one opponent that never folds up," resumes its eighteen-year competition with Notre Dame at Yankee Stadium tomorrow.

And because of Army's unbroken record of giving Notre Dame its hardest fight of every football season—win or lose, and regardless of apparent inequalities in strength—the 1931 game retains ranking as New York's feature football treat of the year.

Rated strictly off the records, Army, beaten by Pitt and Harvard and tied by Yale, is not a worthy opponent for Notre Dame, whose only setback in three years of competition occurred last Saturday in a 16 to 14 battle with Southern California.

However, records mean nothing in Notre Dame-Army competition as was proven in 1929 when a reputedly weak cadet team held Notre Dame to a 6-to-0 score and again in 1930 when a point after touchdown provided the winning margin in the Westerner's 7 to 6 victory.

Betting Odds Show Drop to 7 to 5.

Snow and heavy footing today gave Army renewed hopes of victory and resulted in betting odds dropping to 7 to 5 on Notre Dame. The unfavorable weather also had a depressing effect on ticket prices. All of the 78,000 tickets for the game were sold weeks ago and the only ducats available today were in the hands of scalpers. These tickets have been offered throughout the week at prices ranging up to $100 per pair for locations between the two goal lines and $10 each for seats in the unprotected sections behind the goal lines. With a prospect of unfavorable weather, scalpers now are faced with difficulty in unloading tickets at more than the regular price of $4 each.

Notre Dame's squad arrived in New York today and appeared fit for a fray, which Coach "Hunk" Anderson and his men hope will mark the start of a new string of victories comparable with the three-year record started under Rockne in 1929 and broken by Southern California a week ago.

Believes Defeat Has Helped Ramblers.

"The defeat shattered our hopes of an unbeaten season," said Anderson, "but I don't think it will help Army. Our boys will fight all the harder now, and the absence of worry over keeping the winning streak unbroken should work to our advantage."

"Army is in top shape," said Maj. Ralph Sasse, head coach, "and has an equal chance of victory. This is the game we want to win above all others and you can depend on our players to give their best efforts."

Ohio Youth Succumbs To Football Injury

Sidney, Ohio, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—His back broken in a charity football game between two teams of Sidney High School alumni, Ralph Bauman, 20, died today.

The game was played last Saturday. Bauman was hurt in making a tackle. He was removed immediately to Wilson Memorial Hospital here, where he died.

New York, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—John Szymanski, 21-year-old Fordham University football tackler, who was injured in the game with Bucknell last Saturday, was pronounced out of danger today at Fordham Hospital.

Booth, Ill With Cold, Taken to Hospital

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Albie Booth, Yale's football captain, who is ill with a severe cold, spent a comfortable night, and his condition was reported good today.

As a safeguard against complications, Mr. Booth has been removed from the college infirmary to New Haven Hospital.

Sturdy Linemen in Battle Here Today

DRY GRIDIRON PLEASING TO WARNER

Stanford - Dartmouth Rated Even for Game Today.

BOSTON, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Stanford and Dartmouth will play their intersectional game at Harvard Stadium tomorrow in cloudy, cold weather, according to a forecast by the Boston Weather Bureau tonight.

The forecast contained the comforting prediction that the snow or rain expected during the night should cease tomorrow morning. Since the gridiron is under tarpaulin wraps chances seemed good that the teams would have dry footing.

Both head coaches, Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, of Stanford, and Jackson Cannell, of Dartmouth, were pleased with the prospects of dry weather. A wet ball undoubtedly would reduce the efficiency of Stanford's spinners, reverses and passes. It probably would handicap Dartmouth more, however, since passing is the hub of the Green attack.

Bets on the game—expected to draw a crowd of more than 40,000—continued to be placed at even money, for the gamblers could find no compelling evidences of the superiority of one or the other team. On the Pacific Coast a year ago Stanford beat Dartmouth, 14-7. They appear at least as evenly matched this year.

The season's records of the two teams bear resemblances, Stanford having lost to two major opponents, California and Southern California; Dartmouth having lost to Columbia and Harvard.

Washington Gun Club Handicap Due Today

One of the major trapshooting events of the year, the Washington Gun Club Handicap, will be shot off today on the club's traps adjoining the Pepco Power House. Visitors are invited to attend.

The handicap event, which will be at 100 targets, was inaugurated in 1923. It has been won twice by Miles Taylor, the first winner, and by H. H. Shelton, Dr. A. V. Parson and C. C. Fawsett. R. D. Morgan won it last year, when it was contested at 50 targets, with a count of 47. This year the 100 target rule will be in force again. Three trophies are at stake and the cream of the local talent is entered.

Bergman Praised For C. U. Success

Coach, Given Watch, Shifts Credit to Assistants and Players.

Home-coming activities at Catholic University came to a rousing close yesterday afternoon when, before the entire school and many old grads, Coach Arthur J. "Dutch" Bergman was lauded vociferously for his work in giving Catholic University its greatest grid machine in recent athletic history.

Bergman, introduced by "Jiggs" Donohue, Washington attorney, scouted his own part of the success of the 1931 Cardinal team, whose record was eight victories and one loss, as against eight losses and one win for the season before. Bergman shifted the credit to the minor coaches at the school, Forrest Cotton and George Vik, former Notre Dame players, and to the high morale of the team itself.

The speakers were introduced by Walter Costello, president of C. U.'s Washington alumni chapter. Father Sheehy, director of Catholic University's expansion program, was one of those making addresses.

Coach Bergman was presented with a white gold watch, and, when he arose to acknowledge the call of the toastmaster, brought a 10-minute ovation to C. U.'s big gymnasium.

TECH MEETS SAME FOES NEXT YEAR

Little Chance of Game With Gonzaga During 1932 Season.

THERE is little possibility that Tech and Gonzaga, leading high school grid teams in this city, will meet next year. Persistent attempts to bring the two together this year for charity, failed despite the fact that the hinter end of each team's schedule showed an arid spot so far as opponents were concerned.

Hap Hardell, Tech coach, made known 1932's schedule last night and stated that no change was contemplated in the routine which was followed this year. The Tech schedule once more will open with Baltimore Poly, in Baltimore, and Handley High of Winchester, Va., will be played the following day. Then Episcopal and Swavely will be met and the team will conclude its season with the high school series. There is a chance that one more game will be added, late in the season, but if so it doubtless will be with an out-of-town team.

Baltimore City College has asked for a Tech game but Tech refused. Several years ago Tech was on the B. C. C. list and was dropped.

Gonzaga believed it had a game with Tech this year. It is understood that when the 1930 game between the two was arranged, Gonzaga agreed to play if the verbal contract called for two games, the other, presumably this year. It came as something of a surprise to Gonzaga when its team was not on this year's schedule.

The 1930 Tech-Gonzaga game drew only a $65 profit for the winning team, Tech.

Gonzaga will suffer slightly less from graduation than will Tech. Off the champion Tech team will go Sachs, Oehman and Hatos, star backs, and Wohlfarth, Dye, Rhodes and Baxter, four all-High linemen. Gonzaga will lose only Lewis, Dunan and Eppard, linemen, retaining its best performers in Viau, the Mills twins and Keegin, backs.

Schaaf-Levinsky Bout Negotiations Dropped

Chicago, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—The proposed ten-round bout between Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, and King Levinsky, Chicago's reformed fish peddler, at the Chicago Stadium December 3, fell through tonight. As a result, the stadium canceled its date. Levinsky refused to match on the plea that he needed more time in which to prepare for it. Young Stribling was originally signed to meet Schaaf on that date, but the bout collapsed when Stribling injured an arm in meeting Piedro Corri ten days ago.

JOCKEY SUES OWNER FOR $150,000

Pegg Says Labrot 'Maliciously' Caused New York Ban.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Charles Pegg, 18-year-old apprentice jockey, entered suit here today against Sylvester Labrot, race horse owner, of Annapolis. Pegg, in the suit entered through his "best friend," M. John Cornwell, alleged that Labrot had him ruled off New York tracks through "falsely and maliciously" representing he had broken a contract.

The papers in the suit set forth that Dr. J. Fred Adams and Mr. Labrot bought his contract last winter at New Orleans, where Pegg was one of the leading riders.

Going to Belmont Park, Adams, he said, entered into an agreement for Pegg to ride for the Glen Riddle Farms. Then, the action said, Labrot wired the New York Jockey Club, alleging Pegg had broken a contract with him.

Despite Adams' efforts to show he had been half owner of the Pegg contract, Labrot gained the decision, the New York Jockey Club refused to allow him to ride, and he was damaged in the amount of $150,000, the suit alleged.

Adams formerly was trainer for the Labrot horses, the suit set forth.

Tulane Risking Hopes For Grid Title Today

New Orleans, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—The Southern Conference and possibly national championships will be in the balance tomorrow when Tulane's Green Wave engages its oldest enemy, Louisiana State University, in a "grudge" game at Tulane Stadium.

The Wave ruled a decided favorite, but there were strong possibilities of an upset. The invaders from the State capital frankly are "out for blood."

Jerry Dalrymple, Tulane's captain and all-American end, knows it is going to be the battle of the year for his team.

"Louisiana State University doesn't care who whips them all season as long as they think they can beat Tulane," he said.

Dalrymple, "Red" Dawson, first-string quarter back, and "Papa" Felts, star full back, have prepared for two weeks for this test.

Northwestern Players Unhurt as Lift Falls

Chicago, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—A radio broadcast which related that several members of the Northwestern University football team were passengers in a hotel elevator which fell tonight, had the football-minded of the Midwest in a high, but needless, state of excitement.

Of the eight players in the elevator, only George Potter, regular quarter back, suffered any kind of an injury. Potter suffered a leg bruise, which will not keep him from playing against Purdue for charity in Soldier Field tomorrow. The other men were Ken Meehan, regular left half back; Luke Fossier, Paul Auguston and Bill Melle, reserve backs. Paul Engebretsen and Bill Sutton, reserve line men, and Ed Jens, substitute end. The elevator dropped, according to an official of the hotel company, from between the first and second floors into the basement, but not rapidly enough to cause damage or serious injury.

By JACK ESPEY.

THE curtain will be rung down on the Capital's regular collegiate football season this afternoon when Georgetown University meets one of its old rivals, Detroit University, in Griffith Stadium, beginning at 2 o'clock. The game marks the close of the campaign for Detroit, but the Hilltoppers will remain active until December 12 when they will participate in the triple-header exhibition against Alabama's Rose Bowl champions for the benent of the unemployed.

The advent of rainy weather during the past 36 hours alters considerably the prospects the contest holds for the fans. Instead of a battle between two fast, tricky back fields and equally fast-charging lines, a duel in kicking and straight offensive football may be looked for.

Slippery underfooting makes virtually impossible any great display of speed this afternoon, and except for the early moments before the ball gathers a coating of the mud, little forward passing is anticipated. Despite conditions, however, either team or both may elect to throw the ball as they are known for their daring tactics.

Coaches Depressed By Weather.

The rival head coaches—Tommy Mills, of Georgetown, and Gus Dorais, of Detroit—cast sorrowful eyes at the bleak heavens yesterday as they sent their teams through final preparatory workouts. Both declared the weather will severely handicap their teams, with Dorais making the doleful prediction that "Detroit won't have a chance in this kind of weather."

Dorais intimated that Detroit had hoped to win on its speed alone. "We have been winning from heavier teams thus far because we could shake a fast back loose," said the Titans' mentor, "and tomorrow we will be up against a heavier team again, but with our speed being counteracted by the elements."

Mills was somewhat more cheerful and promised that Georgetown will give the invaders from the Ford city as hard a battle as they are looking for. "I think we can win," averred Mills, "if we show the same fight and determination that helped us through the last two games."

Mills to Utilize King's Kicking.

Mills announced a change in the line-up of Georgetown's back field, a change suited to the prospective need for kicking strength. Instead of Mickey Lione, he will send Dick King into the quarter back position in order that King's ability to boot 'em may be utilized. As an alternative, he may retain Lione at quarter and replace Leroy Bordeau at full back with Johnny Shimmins, who has responded splendidly in the past when called on for emergency kicking.

Detroit will have two able kickers in its starting line-up in Bob "Rocky" Parsaca, veteran half back, and Chris Schearer, quarter back. Either of this pair is dependable on punts, while Parsaca also is proficient on drop kicks and placements. Two field goals have been credited to Parsaca this season.

Nick Viskovitch, the strapping sophomore who has made good in a big way during the past three weeks, and Joe Alenty, hard running junior, will round out Georgetown's back field. Detroit's other starting backs are Pete Rajkovich, full back, and Louis Berg, half back, who, incidentally will be the tallest ball-carrier on the field. Berg's height is 6 feet 1½ inches.

Owing to the fact that conservative football will be the order of the day, both teams will place much reliance on their forward lines. Georgetown is looking hopefully to Capt. "Mush" Dubofsky, probably its most consistent lineman who plays at left guard, and to Ed Katalinas, left tackle, who has contributed mightily to the Blue and Gray's recent victories over West Virginia and Villanova. Other dependables in the Hilltop forward wall are Ray Hudson and Tommy Carolan, the ends.

Joe Beer, right tackle, is heralded as the featured performer in the Titans' line. Georgetown has heard plenty about his capabilities and will pay him close attention. Capt. John Hackett and Healey Sharkey, the Red and White ends, also are said to be outstanding.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

PROF. GAUSS, of Princeton, beat the gun the other day when he charged that virtually every college was subsidizing its football players. The eminent professor paused long enough in his generalities to cite cases where alumni were supporting certain blocking half backs and running guards without knowledge of the college by such processes as purchasing a 10-cent cigar at the counter where the star happened to be working and proffering a $10 bill with the advice to keep the change.

Such broadsides against the overemphasis on football are usually withheld until after the close of the season. The attacks against college football have been so regular in past years that they no longer contain the news value that can compete with the interest in the teams on the field from September through the middle of December.

Such attacks are usually reserved for the off-season in football for the same reason that the Antisaloon League and the W. C. T. U design their news releases for Monday mornings when they may receive notices that flatter their importance as a result of the comparative dullness of the news output on that particular day following the usual serenity of the Sabbath.

The reformers and football bluenoses would receive an object lesson if they inquired into the status of the present Georgetown University squad. On the team that takes the field today will be no less than a half dozen players, numbering many of the team's stars, who are working their way through college by waiting on tables at the Hilltop.

The acting captain of the Georgetown team and regarded as the outstanding player on the squad, "Mush" Dubofsky, is one of the lot who commands such friendly attention from affluent and overzealous alumni that he has found it expedient to wait on his fellow students at meal time or withdraw from college despite his football ability.

That the attacks against college football usually emanate from the members of the faculty does not serve to dignify their logic. It is true enough that college professors do not draw the high salaries commanded by football coaches, but as Westbrook Pegler points out, the football coaches and their teams, commanding as they do columns upon columns of valuable space in the papers, are the boss publicity men for the institutions of higher learning, attracting students to register so that there may be need of the faculties' services.

The sad experience of the "charity" game in Boston is told this morning in the news columns. It seems that the Holy Cross-Boston College game proceeds were to be devoted to the unemployment relief fund of the Hub City and that the net result was a $21,000 deficit.

According to the detailed expenses of the game which list items of $15,000 each to the contending colleges as guarantees and $15,000 more to Fenway Park where the game was to be staged, the "charity" angle is somewhat vague.

Too often in the annals of sports has the "charity" gag been worked at the expense of charity and the public. There was the case of a fight program in Chicago last summer when announcements were made that it would be a charity affair. Out of receipts approximately $15,000, charity netted a round $90. It was a bargain for the promoters who rented the use of the word for 90 bucks.

It is a pleasing reflection that the charity game to be played here on December 12 when the Alabama Rose Bowl team meets the varsities of Georgetown, George Washington and Catholic University, will not be forced to make such heavy concessions to "expenses."

George Washington University which is underwriting the game has guaranteed that the expense of assembling and bringing the Alabama players to Washington will not exceed $3,500. That amount has already been subscribed in the ticket sales and every dollar over that figure minus the incidental expenses of ticket selling, &c., will be devoted to the relief of the freezing and starving of the District of Columbia. Clark C. Griffith has generously donated the use of his stadium, a shining contrast to the $15,000 "take-out" of Fenway Park in the Boston charity game.

District of Columbia fans have responded to the ticket sales for the December 12 game in generous fashion, exceeding the demand for any other game in Washington football history at the same comparative date. Only three more days remain for the fans to take advantage of the 50-cent reduction in tickets which will remain in effect until Tuesday.

G. U.-Canisius Elevens Clash Here Next Year

Canisius College of Buffalo, N. Y., has been scheduled to meet Georgetown University in a football game in Griffith Stadium next October 8, it was learned yesterday. Canisius this season tied Loyola of Baltimore, 6 to 6, a week following Loyola's surprising tie with Western Maryland. The last mentioned also will play Georgetown next year, as will Detroit, Bucknell, West Virginia and New York University among others.

Boston Game for Charity Nets Charity $21,000 Loss

BOSTON, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Mayor James M. Curley today was informed that the Boston College-Holy Cross football game played at the Harvard Stadium yesterday for Boston's unemployed had resulted in a deficit of $21,000. A report on gross receipts of $75,000 was made by the Harvard A. A. which supervised the tickets.

Expenses of the game included Mayor Curley said, guarantees of $30,000 each to the two teams; $15,000 to the Boston Red Sox for rental of Fenway Park where the game was to have been played originally; $3,000 for operating the stadium, and $18,000 for printing, officials and advertising and incidentals, a total of $96,000.

Under the arrangements the teams were to receive the proceeds from 32,000 tickets sold which was the average attendance at the games during the past ten years. The crowd this year was much under normal.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the football game deficit it was revealed at city hall that midnight shows conducted in 66 theaters in Boston last Friday had netted $21,000 for the welfare work.

Purdue vs. Northwestern Holds Key to Big Ten Title

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Northwestern's Wildcats risk their strangle-hold on the Big Ten football championship all for the sake of charity tomorrow by engaging the dangerous Boilermakers from Purdue in the feature battle of the postseason show at Soldier Field.

Perched atop the standings now with five straight conference victories, as well as a great intersectional record, the Wildcats had everything to lose and nothing to win by their extra battle for charity. A victory would only reassure the conference of their undisputed right to the crown, whereas a defeat would scramble the entire race and give the football-minded something to argue about all winter.

Purdue, Ohio State and Michigan were ready to profit by a Northwestern defeat. Ohio State could gain a first place tie in that event by defeating Minnesota in their charity tussle at Minneapolis, while Michigan has to beat Wisconsin at Ann Arbor to get

FRIGATE BIRD SETS OWN PACE TO WIN IN BOWIE FEATURE

Polydorous Outruns Rubio, Fly Guy to Win Sixth.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 27.—The Foxcatcher Farm's Frigate Bird won the Wildwood Purse, which featured the program here today, after setting the pace for the entire trip. Jockey Long scored a double, having previously won the first race. John Goff's Quarter Deck was second, and Royal Ruffin third. The winner and the second horse are Man o' War's offspring, as also is Full Dress, which finished fourth.

Rain fell all day, and the small crowd was due to the influence of the first bad day of the Maryland racing season since the first of October.

Frigate Bird was the favorite and paid $5. He won by three lengths and was never extended. The time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:45 on a slow track.

Jockey M. Lewis surprised with Triple Threat, carrying the colors of J. E. Keyser, in the fourth race for 2-year-olds. Triple Threat raced Night Vintage into defeat in the stretch run, and won by 4 lengths. Night Vintage was second and Mea third. Night Vintage got away well after a long delay of the field at the gate in the rain, and seemed to be setting an easy pace when overhauled by the winner. The time was 1:45 4-5, a mile and 70 yards, and the winner paid $12.80.

Jimmie D Sets Own Pace in Third.

Jimmy D., F. Stevens up, won the third race, a gallop of 1 mile and three-sixteenths. The O. T. Goslin colt led all the way, winning by 2 lengths. Mrs. S. Bowden's Red Tam was second and L. R. Carbone's Era third. The time was slow, run in 2:05 1-5. Expiate, of the field group, was close up until the stretch was reached. There had been a big drop in the odds on the field, but the show bettors were disappointed, for none of the field horses landed in the money. The winner paid $10.30. Era to show was $13.80. Noine ran a bad race, as did Meek.

Gun Royal, ridden by W. Kelsey, won the second race by a length, going away. Benish Way, which had set the pace under Workman's urging, was second, and five lengths back of him Dunlin's Lad was third. The time was fast, 6 furlongs in 1:12 3-5. The winner found the track that suited him, and was in restraint to the sixteenth, and passed Benish Way without apparent effort in time to garner the purse for M. Stern, owner of the 7-year-old Wrack gelding. Gun Royal paid $9.80. He won by three lengths and was never extended. The time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:45 on a slow track.

Gloria Maris Scores In Opener.

Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' filly, Gloria Maris, daughter of Mars, went to the front in the first race soon after the start, winning by five lengths, Jockey Long being the pilot. David J. Ely's Galloping Duchess finished second, three lengths in front of the third. Adair Louise, and Leon Lass was fourth, after a bad start. The time was 1:13 2-5. The winner was favorite, paying $4.80.

M. M. Santos' Polydorus, at home in the going, won the sixth race easily, well ridden by Pat Remillard. Matadi, an outsider, was second and Rubio third. Polydorus went to the front soon after the start, was given a slight breathing speel in the stretch, but came again, to quickly regain the lead, and won by a length and a half, going away. Matadi was well up all the way. Mine Sweeper showed early speed. The time was 1:48 1-5. The winner paid $12.80.

Vowed Vengeance came forward with his long-delayed victory in the seventh race. M. Louis rushed him into a long lead, but it required all the jockey knew how to do to keep him in front at the end, for Kingbird, a 25-to-1 shot, was pressing him, and the B. Gooch horse only won by a head. Skid was third. Vowed Vengeance paid $15.90, while the place mutuel on Kingbird was $25.60.

Dick Morris, Favorite, Wins Jefferson Sprint

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Dick Morris, a development of last year's winter racing, carried his brilliant 3-year-old form into the 1931-32 winter season today, when he outclassed a field of sprinters in the 6-furlong feature at Jefferson Park.

With C. Landolt in the saddle, the Knebelkamp and Morris gelding stepped the 6 furlongs in 1:15 to defeat E. Warner's Hippias by two lengths with J. Poland's My Sweets third. As the favorite, Dick Morris paid the short price of $3.20 for $2.

Landolt got Dick Morris away on top and he stayed there throughout the trip, with My Sweets in closest pursuit. Hippias closed strong in the stretch, however, and just got up in time to take the place.

Eastern High Football Banquet on Dec. 10

The annual football banquet at Eastern High School will be held Thursday, December 10, where letters for the grid year will be distributed. School authorities are now enlisting the services of speakers, and the drama club of the institution is arranging for the entertainment.

The Circle T. Club, of Tech, will meet Wednesday night to set a date for Tech High's banquet.

GLORIA MARIS, stoutly ridden from the start, wore DEFERRED down when midway of the turn, drew clear entering the home stretch and came away at will thereafter. GALLOPING DUCHESS, a stout factor throughout, was easily best of the others. ADAIR LOUISE came courageously in the final drive. LEON LASS, under stout urging, raced forwardly for four furlongs and weakened thereafter. PRIVA was unable to reach the leaders at any stage. BLEAK went evenly. DEFERRED stopped badly. MAZYNIATA ran off for a mile while going to the post.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GUN ROYAL, $9.80, $5.90, $3.30; BENISH WAY, $5.50, $3.80; DUNLIN'S LAD, $3.20.

GUN ROYAL, going in the first flight, responded stoutly to punishment when straightened into the home stretch, came determinedly and wore BENISH WAY down in the closing sixteenth mile. BENISH WAY, at home in the going, drew clear under severe urging when approaching the home stretch, but faltered inside the final furlong. DUNLIN'S LAD worked his way up on the outside and was going gamely at the end. CHATOVER, hard ridden the entire trip, could not reach the leaders. BLACK WATCH was unable to reach contention at any stage. MY SIS had no excuses.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JIMMY D., $10.30, $5.20, $4.10; RED TAM, $11.80, $9.20; ERA, $13.30.

JIMMY D., having good speed, took command at once, was rated along while saving ground, shook off CYMBAL and, holding on resolutely when placed to punishment during the closing stages, held RED TAM safe. Latter entered into contention with a rush midway of the far turn, but hung after getting to the winner nearing the final furlong pole. ERA slipped through on the inside when leaving the back stretch and fought it out gamely when the final test came. PHANTOM CLOUD was not good enough when moving into contention. COLONEL CRUMP had no mishaps. CYMBAL tired. MEEK showed a dull effort. TONITO refused to break with his field and galloped along at a distance.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:40. Off at 2:48. Winner, J. E. Keyser's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRIPLE THREAT, $12.80, $6.10, $3.60; NIGHT VINTAGE, $4.50, $3.00; MEA, $3.10.

TRIPLE THREAT, going in his best form, was outrun for the first half mile, went to the leaders with good speed, wore NIGHT VINTAGE down when straightened into the home stretch and drew out decisively. NIGHT VINTAGE, away fast and clear and hurried to the front, was rated along while saving ground, but could not withstand the winner's effort when forced to work her way up on the outside after being slow to get into stride, finished fast in the closing stages. EL PUMA could not threaten the leaders. SANDWRACK lacked early speed and was unable to enter contention. PHANTOM ROCK went evenly. HIGHEST POINT and PENN quit. The saddle slipped on POPCORN and he was pulled up at the second turn.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,400; allowances. The Wildwood. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:16. Off at 3:18½. Winner, Foxcatcher Farm's b. g. (3), by Man o' War—Pampheta. Trained by F. M. Burch. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $225; third, $125; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:45.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRIGATE BIRD, $5.00, $3.60, $2.30; QUARTER DECK, $5.80, $2.90; ROYAL RUFFIN, $2.50.

FRIGATE BIRD, beginning quickly and having good speed, raced along under stiff restraint until approaching the home stretch, was shaken up and held QUARTER DECK perfectly safe. Latter, racing in his best form and following close up the entire trip, was under strong urging to stall off ROYAL RUFFIN. Latter, forced wide at the first turn and interfered with leaving the back stretch, recovered and closed willingly after making a wide turn into the home stretch. FULL DRESS was rushed hard for the first six furlongs. He tired badly. SUNEROS quit. ACCOTINK was overmatched.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:46. Winner, M. M. Sauts' b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLYDORUS, $12.80, $8.20, $5.00; MATADI, $15.20, $5.80; RUBIO, $4.80.

POLYDORUS, assuming command at once, drew clear when settled on the back stretch, saved ground wherever possible to secure firm footing and, holding on stoutly, outstayed MATADI. Latter, a strong factor from the beginning, made repeated challenges and fought it out courageously. RUBIO came with good energy when put to strong pressure. FLY GUY was making up ground gradually. BUBOLA was unable to reach contention. MINE SWEEPER weakened in the closing drive. INFERNO LAD stopped.

VOWED VENGEANCE sprinted into a good lead at once, was kept in the better footing, responded when put to a drive and just lasted long enough when nearing the finish. KING BIRD, prominent throughout, finished with splendid courage. SKID worked his way up on the outside and came with a determined effort in the closing issue. OUTPOST, slow to get going, improved his position on the outside and finished full of run. BERBER, blocked repeatedly during the running, swung to the outside for the final drive and finished with a belated rush.

In addition to the Dixie, all fifteen games of which will be rolled today on a trio of alleys, the second blocks of the Meyer Davis and Greater Washington Sweepstakes will be disposed of. All three events will bring a rich reward to their respective winners and the others on the prize list.

An entry list approaching two score is expected to compete in the Dixie, which will get under way at 10:30 a. m. on the Convention Hall drives. Sixty men are entered in the Greater Washington, which is also running for the first time, and 29 women are vying for the Meyer Davis purse.

Ray Barnes, of Baltimore, United States all-event champion of the N. D. P. B., reigns the favorite to be on top when the final game has been inscribed on the record books. Barnes is heading a delegation of well-known Baltimore duckpin stars to this city. Washington's chief hopes rest on the capable shoulders of Henry Hiser, ranked second on the national list, and "Hokie" Smith, the youngster who captured eighth place in the national listings. The pair have been traveling at a fast clip and unless they suffer a complete reversal of form are certain to be among the leading contenders. Among other local stars who have cast their bread on the waters and their entries in the box are Brad Mandley, "Red" Megaw, Joe Freschi, Tony Santini, Ollie Pacini, Earl McPhilomy, Joe Harrison, Jack Whalen, Eddie Espey, Paul Harrison and Astor Clarke. Clarke won the Campbell sweepstakes last season.

Entries have also been received from points south of Washington, Richmond in particular, and New England. The class of the field, and the resulting entrance fee, no doubt influenced many of the mediocre bowlers' decision to remain on the sidelines.

The situation in the Meyer Davis and Greater Washington events will be clarified a bit by tonight's proceedings, and those on top after the second round will have more than an even chance of remaining there.

Oscar Reichard, whose 200-pin handicap enabled him to get out in front of the Greater Washington parade last week, will probably know how Eliza, as related in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," felt when the bloodhounds were on her trail. Oscar has exactly 50 competitors to stave off if he is to win the grand prize, and all have received generous pin allowances in accordance with the rules governing the tournament. In fact, the officials handling the tournament were so generous some of the allotments may prove too great a barrier for the low-handicap men to overcome.

With Margaret Leaman leading the Meyer Davis, it is going to be tough sledding for the pretourney favorites at King Pin tonight. Lorraine Gulli, in particular, has her work cut out for her if she is to finish in the money. Lorraine was credited with a weak 304 set last week, just 47 pins less than Miss Leaman. Pauline Ford, Madeline Burke, Elsie Fischer and Peggy Babcock, comprising the quartet on the heels of the leader, all stand excellent chances of finishing on top.

Fans Follow Apaches To Baltimore Sunday

A delegation of Apache rooters will accompany the Little Indians to Baltimore tomorrow for the South Atlantic League clash with the Irvington Club, Manager Seymour Hall said last night. The Apaches will travel by bus, leaving Griffith Stadium promptly at 11:30 o'clock.

PURDUE LAST TEST FOR NORTHWESTERN

the same portion of the possible title division.

The weather worried Coach Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, tonight almost as much as the vaunted prowess of Purdue's big assortment of back field aces. A heavy fog, with intermittent rainfall, hung over Soldier Field all day today, and it was almost impossible to see clearly for 50 yards. The same weather was forecast for tomorrow's game.

The Wildcat coach intimated that he would send in his best defensive back field—Potter, Rentner, Meenan and Olson—at the start of the game, while the Boilermakers promised to shoot the works offensively in an attempt to get the jump like Minnesota and Indiana did.

Because of the poor weather ticket sales fell sharply and only 30,000 were expected to watch the battle.

GREEKS TAKE OPENER.

The Beta Phi Epsilon five, strong contenders in the Jewish Community Center League, opened their season last night at the Langley Gym by trouncing the Moseans, 39 to 10. Genderson was outstanding for the winners.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE formation of an interhigh school bowling league seemed certain yesterday when the board of faculty advisors unanimously voted to approve such a league and forwarded its recommendation to the board of principals for final disposition of the matter. The action of the advisory board culminates a movement initiated several weeks ago by John Blick, local bowling promoter, at the instance of several parents of boys interested in the game.

Whether or not the necessary approval will be forthcoming will not be known until the school heads meet the latter part of next week. Although under tentative plans the teams would compete only on Friday afternoons, it is thought in some quarters that the team members would spend time usually reserved for study at nights in brushing up on their form, and this, of course, would be defeating the primary purposes of the schools. This is believed to be the only objectionable feature of the league.

Those who voted for the league are Clifton Moore, Western; Ruppert, Sharitz, Business; Bert Coggins, Central; Thomas Holmes, Eastern, and John Paul Collins, also of Eastern and chairman of the board.

Three pins in the first game cost the Lucky Strike team a clean sweep over the Barnes Auto pin maulers in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike. The auto dealers took the first game by a score of 557-554, and then proceeded to lose the final pair by scores of 616-551, and 546-487. Carroll Daly smacked the headpin for a 145 game and set of 360. Benny Womersly was not so far behind with a game of 135 and George Isemann put his oar in for second high set of the evening, 353. Both of the latter men were in the Barnes line-up.

King's Palace succeeded where the Luckies failed and won its first tilt from Young and Simon with only five pins to spare. The department store crew improved with each succeeding game while their opponents dropped back a few pins to finish with scores of 519 in each of the last two games. The winners' scores were 528, 537 and 541. "Bullet Joe" Toomey, of King's Palace, turned in the high game of the evening, and just for company's sake, high set, 358. Lee Atwell led Young and Simon with his game of 122 and set of 331.

Ernie Norwig, of Patents No. 2, scampered off with the individual honors in the Department of Commerce circuit when he turned in a total of 361 for his trio of games. His team experienced little trouble in putting Foreign and Domestic Commerce under the hay in all three games. The scores were 520-496, 534-510, 538-521. Mines dropped the odd one to Standards after a tussle, and Coast Survey came from behind to win its tilt with Census.

Baker, of Accountants, and Johnston, of Valuation, were high men in the Interstate Commerce Commission loop at Arcadia. The former upset 139 pins for high game, and the latter kept pushing 'em over at a steady rate to hang up a set of 351. Accounting's 558 and Traffic's 1,560 took the team honors. The matches resulted in one-game victories for Engineers, Attorneys and Mails and Files, over Informal Cases, Land Section and Accounting, respectively. Shorten Procedure did just that with a clean sweep over Examiners.

A new record team game for the Washington Gaslight League was manufactured by the Fitting Department at Convention Hall last night. The Fitting team, after allowing the Ladies a 66-pin handicap in each of the three games, whitewashed their opponents and hung up the new mark of 588 while accomplishing the feat. Two other shutouts were recorded, Accounting dropped its set to Meter Shop, and Georgetown applied the brakes to Commercial. The other matches were decided by the odd game, and West Station topped the Officers, as Columbia Heights warded off Industrial. Teddy Dusteroff's 364 set was the best individual effort of the evening. High game honors were garnered by Corcoran with 144.

It's always rough weather when Building Contractors' League gets going at Arcadia. Last night several of the matches were postponed (too much white meat and dressing), but did that prevent the six teams that did roll from raising cain? Not by your Aunt Prissy! On the other hand the boys had quite an evening and when General Manager Fraser finally got the debris swept up Fuller Stone Plant, Minte Paint and Evans Plumbing were camped in first place. The Paint Dealers and Plumbers were only a game behind the Stone Plant gang up until last night. Each succeeded in losing two games, Minte to Smoot Sand, and Evans to D. C. Butcher, but Fuller Team went them one better and dropped all three to Southern Asbestos.

The victory enabled the latter team to clinch thirteenth in the standings. Buell, of Smoot Sand, was clocked for a game of 136 and set of 357. Driess, of the Asbestos quint, chopped enough wood to gain a 147 game and 345 set. George Honey is only human, after all, which he demonstrated by rolling 342 for the three.

Phoenix took the only match rolled in the Odd Fellows circuit, winning all three from Mount Nebo at Convention Hall. Fred Viehmeyer's 121 game and 345 set withstood all attempts of his rivals to win top honors.

John Schaffer, of Steiner-Baum, and Seidenberg, of Person & Crain, were the head men in the Jewelers League, at Columbia. Schaffer chalked up a high set of 340 and Seidenberg rolled the best game of the evening, 137. Pirrone's 540 game and Steiner-Baum's 1,539 set were the best of the team scores. Heller Plating took the odd one from Goldsmith, Kahn's odd-gamed a victory out of R. Harris Juniors, and Galt No. 2 completely shut out the Jewel Shop, Galt No. 1 stopped Pirrone, 2 to 1; Pearson & Crane applied the same treatment to Desio, and Castleberg eked out a one-game victory over Bluestein. Steiner-Baum took R. Harris for a ride and won all three, and Limon won the odd one from Art Metal.

All of the Ladies Quartermaster loop matches, at Columbia, were settled by the final games. Personnel downed Construction, Engineers toppled Real Estate and Supply found the Executives wanting. Personnel's 453 game and 1,334 set captured team honors. Miss Ross, of the same team, knocked down high game, 111, and Miss Hamm, of Construction, cashed in on high set with her 301.

In the men's section, Hamilton, of Depot, was the big gun with his 152 game and 341 set. His team scattered 551 pins for team game honors, and 1,546 for set. Supply and Power took all three from Construction and Engineers, respectively, while Transportation and Design walloped Mechanics and Depot for 2-1 victories.

Takoma-Silver Spring Court Squad Is Busy

Takoma-Silver Spring High School's basket ball team is not letting the Thanksgiving holidays interrupt their training for the impending season. The big squad, under the direction of Coach Bride, will play five games before the Christmas holidays.

The entire 1930-31 team is back in uniform again, and the reserves, notably Willy and Robertson, have shown promise.

CAPITAL CITY ELEVENS IN BATTLES

Brookland, Mercurys in Program's Feature Tomorrow.

ROY WOODRUFF'S Brookland eleven, which surprised its most loyal supporters by outplaying the powerful Fraters last week and gaining a scoreless tie with that team, will meet the champion Mercury team in the feature game of the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League tomorrow.

Only two other contests are listed in this division, one the all-Virginia tilt between the Fraters and Del Ray, at Alexandria, and the other a battle for the cellar position involving the Griffith-Blue Coals and St. Stephen's.

Mercury suffered its first defeat of the season at the hands of the Seaman Gunners last week and will be out for revenge when it clashes with the Brooklanders.

The Palace gridders are seeking their seventh consecutive victory in a tough neck of the woods when they go gunning for the scalp of the Meridians.

The schedule:

Ticket Sale for Alabama Charity Games Here Brisk

DESPITE the rainy weather, ticket sales for the unemployment benefit football game at Griffith Stadium on December 12 proceeded more briskly yesterday than any previous day this week. Clerks at Spalding's, 1338 G street northwest, and at the Stadium were kept busy all day filling orders for the pasteboards.

The game committee last night sought to remind the public that the special reduction on prices will hold good only three more days. Tickets purchased before next Wednesday will be 50 cents cheaper than the established prices, which are as follows: General admission, $1.50; reserved seats, $2.00, and box seats, $2.50.

Three local university elevens—George Washington, Catholic and Georgetown—will appear in the benefit against the University of Alabama, Rose Bowl champions of 1930. Each will play the Crimson Tide for a period of twenty minutes, divided in halves.

George Washington and Catholic have concluded their regularly scheduled games and Georgetown will do so today in its clash with Detroit in Griffith Stadium. All three will resume practice next week, however, while the Alabama squad, which includes eight members of the 1931 Crimson Tide varsity, will be organized at the same time. Frank S. Thomas, head coach of Alabama, and Hank Crisp, line coach, will have charge of the Alabamans' preparation.

Mohawks and Celtics Drill For Title Clash Tomorrow

THE championship of the South Atlantic Football League will be decided tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the turf at Griffith Stadium when the Celtics and the Mohawks, both bristling with former college players, clash in the most important game of the sandlot year. The last meeting between the two resulted in a spectacular 8-6 win for the Hawks.

Each team has won two and lost one.

Since then the Celtics have improved, trouncing the Apaches handily, and the Apaches beat the Mohawks last Sunday. In the Celtic back field tomorrow will be George Dwyer, former Georgetown quarter back; Joe Sweeney, Don McCann and "Admiral" Dewey Snitz Snyder, big former Maryland player, will carry the bulk of the Mohawks' ball running duties. The lines are big, shifty and about evenly matched.

Both teams will practice tonight. The Hawks will meet at their clubhouse at 7:30 o'clock for a meeting, there to proceed to the practice grounds. The Celts will drill at Seventeenth and B streets at the same time.

The respective managers, Buck Grier, of the Celts, and Patsy Donovan, will air their views on the game over WJSV at 6:20 p. m. today.

NAVY MEETS WOOSTER TODAY

Plebe Contest, Cross Country Run Also on Program.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.—Light signals and formation drills with brief periods of dummy scrimmaging marked the close of another week of practice sessions for Navy football players. Tomorrow the Tars will take on the eleven from Wooster College, of Ohio, in the curtain game as far as the local field is concerned.

No special preparations were made for this contest as the Ohioans are not expected to prove a very formidable foe, though reported to be fast and clever in the passing game.

The Navy plebes also will bring their gridiron schedule to a close tomorrow, meeting the eleven of Cook Academy, of Montaur Falls, N. Y. This prep school generally sends out a strong team and the Navy yearlings are anticipating a lively tussle.

COERCION IS BANNED BY COMMISSIONERS IN CHEST CAMPAIGN

Reichelderfer Tells Chiefs of Departments That Gifts Must Be Voluntary.

CLASSIFICATION BOARD NOT TO SEE DONOR LISTS

District Employes Told They May Cancel Subscriptions With No Risks to Jobs.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, yesterday made it clear to the sixty-odd District government department heads that they are to refrain from coercion entirely in soliciting pledges to the $1,000,000 unemployment relief drive for the Washington Community Chest. A special meeting of department heads had been called because of reports that pressure had been brought to bear on employes in certain divisions.

The commissioners will see to it that no employe will suffer any disciplinary action for failure to contribute to the campaign, Dr. Reichelderfer said, and any person who has already subscribed one or more days' pay is at liberty to withdraw the pledge with impunity.

Not to Affect Ratings.

It was again stated emphatically that no copy of the subscription list will go to the personnel classification board, although Maj. D. J. Donovan, District auditor, chairman of the campaign committee, is District personnel officer.

Dr. Reichelderfer pointed out, however, that legitimate arguments, such as the fact that District Government employes have neither been decreased in number nor pay, might be used. He predicted that no reduction in governmental salaries will be made by Congress at the approaching session. Banks, he said, will soon distribute some $8,000,000 in Christmas savings funds in the District, much of which will go to District employes.

Many May Not Give.

Neither the commissioners nor the general committee had any idea that donations would represent 100 per cent of the employes, Dr. Reichelderfer said, and he warned department heads from seeking such a record by levying additional subscriptions on employes who have already given.

Maj. Donovan said that the list of subscribers which will be sent the Community Chest will not contain information regarding salaries of donors. He also read a letter from Thomas E. Campbell, Civil Service Commissioner, stating that all subscriptions must be purely voluntary.

Luther Steward Stresses Some Dangers of Coercion

A "simple appeal to the heart," as opposed to coercive measures, is all that is needed in the matter of Community Chest donations, Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, said last night in an address over WMAL.

"Coercion, intimidation, plain and fancy 'blackjacking' can be expected to bring the same kind of response from the Federal employes that it does from any other intelligent citizen," he said.

"I feel sure, however, that there will not be much of the latter, and that where it occurs the matter can be adjusted. Certainly, the authorities have given every assurance that the task is largely in the hands of the Government workers themselves."

Police Relief Fund Collector Guilty

McKinnon Loses Appeal After $837 Shortage Is Revealed.

The District Commissioners yesterday upheld the findings of the Police Trial Board in the case of A. D. McKinnon, a private at the Detective Bureau, and ordered his dismissal, effective today. McKinnon had been convicted by the board on three counts in connection with a shortage of $837 in collections for the Metropolitan Police Relief Association.

Overriding an appeal, the Commissioners found that McKinnon had been guilty of willful disobedience of orders, neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer. The policeman was charged with failure to make proper accounting of dues collected by him for the months of March, April, May and June of this year. As a consequence, it was charged, there was a shortage of $837 in membership dues on June 8 last.

McKinnon entered the Police Department on August 26, 1925, and was originally assigned to the Sixth Precinct. His record contains several complaints of failure to pay debts.

Grand Jury to Get Stabbing Charges

Charles Boling Pleads Razor Was Wielded in Self-Defense in Room.

Charles Boling, 812 Twelfth street northwest, was ordered held for action of the grand jury when he was arraigned in Police Court on a warrant charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Norman Franklin, who also lives at the Twelfth street address, alleges that he was stabbed by Boling, who used a razor for the purpose, he said. The alleged assault occurred November 2. Boling, through his attorney, John P. Mullen, claimed that he assaulted Franklin in self-defense when the latter broke into his room.

Franklin was a patient in Emergency Hospital for several weeks. Doctors estimated that it took "three feet of thread to sew him up."

Stolen Automobile Found in Creek.

An automobile reported stolen Thursday night by Sylvan Oppenheimer, of 3120 R street northwest, from Thirty-second and R streets northwest, was found yesterday in the middle of Rock Creek under the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge. The automobile was not badly damaged and was recovered by police with the aid of a towing company.

Speeding Charges On Envoy Dropped

Turkish Diplomat Nabbed at 52 Miles an Hour, Policeman Said.

A charge of speeding at 52 miles an hour, placed against Vahdi Sabit Bey, said to be one of the secretaries at the Turkish Embassy, who gave his address as 1708 Massashusetts avenue northwest, went for naught in Police Court yesterday when Frank Adams, assistant United States attorney, refused to issue a warrant for his arrest on the grounds of diplomatic immunity.

Sabit was arrested by Park Policeman B. J. Beckman, who released him when he promised to appear in court yesterday. Court attaches droned the name in vain and then Beckman went to get the warrant.

Only move now possible is for a complaint to be registered with the State Department, as local officials are powerless to enforce regulations against diplomats. Sabit was arrested in Rock Creek Park. He gave his age as 32 years.

KRUCKMAN RESIGNS BICENTENNIAL POST

Havenner Delays Acceptance; Act Is Result of Publicity Dispute.

Arnold Kruckman, director of the District Bicentennial Commission, yesterday sent his resignation to Dr. George C. Havenner, executive vice chairman of the commission.

"I have not accepted the resignation yet," Dr. Havenner said.

The resignation of Mr. Kruckman was received by Dr. Havenner after the vice chairman had denied a story released to the press by Mr. Kruckman and George Gerhard, of the United Artists, New York, in which it was said D. W. Griffith, movie director, would supervise a four-day pageant to be held on the Monument Grounds in connection with the bicentennial.

Dr. Havenner stated he had never been in contact with Mr. Griffith and so far as he knows no arrangements had been made with Mr. Griffith to direct the pageant scheduled to take place next June.

In addition, Dr. Havenner said, Percy Burrell, director of plays and pageants for the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, and Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, in charge of plays and pageants for the District Bicentennial Commission, are unaware of any arrangements with Mr. Griffith.

In the press release it was said, "The famed director has just formally accepted the invitation of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission appointed by Congress." The press story also mentions Kruckman as the "director appointed by Congress to conduct the celebration."

He was arrested when the girl furnished police with the number of the taxicab. Miss Ewing said Hanna volunteered to take her to a section of the city where she was supposed to solicit donations for her organization.

Santa Claus Lane Opening Delayed

Advent of Winter Causes Change of Columbia Heights Plans.

Advent of winter, paradoxically enough, ruined opening of Santa Claus Lane in Columbia Heights last night. Business men of the section had counted on winter weather for the first night of their Christmas display but thought the elements were overdoing things a bit. A hasty conference was called yesterday morning and it was decided to delay the official opening until next Friday.

Part of the festivities were observed last night, however, the lane was unofficially lighted when William F. Dismer threw a switch making Fourteenth street northwest from Fairmont street to Meridian place blaze with multicolored lights. Lights will be on each night until Friday when they will be officially dedicated by District officials.

The local amplifying station, "The Sky Voice of Santa Claus Lane," was also inaugurated last night. Dr. Harvey Baker Smith, pastor of Columbia Heights Christian Church, will speak over the amplifying system tonight.

Sergeant Stirs Courtroom By Refusal to Remove Hat

The majesty of the courtroom yielded to the majesty of military law yesterday in Police Court, when a sergeant from Fort Myer refused to take his hat off as he came into court to take over a prisoner, to be tried by military authorities.

A score of court bailiffs shouted at the doughty sergeant to remove his headpiece and he replied to their entreaties with a complete indifference. Finally the shouting and the tumult aroused Judge Isaac R. Hitt from another hearing in the same room, and he inquired about the disturbance.

Upon being informed by the sergeant that it was against military regulations for him to remove his headgear so long as he had his side arms on, the judge permitted him to keep his hat where it belonged. The sergeant quickly grasped his prisoner by the arm and left the courtroom The prisoner, Albert H. Parkins, 45, arrested for a minor liquor law violation, was taken to Fort Myer to be tried by court-martial.

World's Largest Painting Bought by Capital Group

"The Pantheon de la Guerre," a historic painting of the battlefields of France, with 6,000 recognizable life-size figures of allies' leaders, has been purchased in New York from its Parisian owners by a group of Washingtonians, and will be exhibited at the George Washington Bicentennial next year. Elihu Root represented the new owners in the transaction, but no price has been announced.

The picture, which is the largest canvas ever painted, is the work of more than 80 artists commissioned by the French government to paint a graphic story of the war as it progressed, regardless of the outcome. It is 429 feet long and 52 feet high.

The picture and 240 smaller studies, made by the same artists at the same time, have arrived in New York on the after deck of the Paris, and is the largest single package ever to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

Charged with destroying private property, making threats and being drunk and disorderly, Aloysius R. Murphy, 40 years old, of 2140 Twenty-second street northwest, and Arthur Williams, 47 years old, of Mount Rainier, Md., were given suspended sentences yesterday when they entered pleas of guilty in Police Court.

They were charged with having entered the home of the parents of Edith Riley, who were allegedly kept in a closet four years, several days ago with an avowed intention of attacking the girl's parents. The Rileys, living at 1110 Rhode Island avenue northwest, were in the house at the time, but they escaped injury.

Williams is an uncle of Edith Riley.

Police were summoned to the place and both men were arrested. Judge Isaac R. Hitt suspended the execution of sentence pending good behavior of the two men.

Edith, now undergoing an intensive study at the hands of psychiatrists and physicians at Gallinger Hospital, is the girl who is alleged to have been incarcerated in a small closet at the Riley home. Her stepmother and father are now under indictment for cruelty.

Chest Drops Plan to Unite Relief Work of Veterans

The American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans of the World War will continue as independent units in the Community Chest.

Plans for a central bureau of veterans' relief, combining the relief functions of the two, were tabled yesterday following a conference of the executive committee of the Community Chest with representatives of the various veterans' organizations.

The proposed bureau was unacceptable to the American Legion, which expressed its desire to maintain individual identity in its relief work, Chest officials announced.

Later the executive committee of the Chest voted to continue the two as separate members in 1932 on the same basis as for the last three years.

Because of the rain the announced arrival of the youngsters in an old stage coach loaned by the Evans estate had to be omitted, although the coach and its four horses were on hand.

Hook and ladder apparatus from No 23 engine responded to the distress call and, using an extension ladder, a fireman ascended to the second story apartment and extricated a jammed key from the door and freed Betty.

TRAFFIC CASUALTIES INCREASE THIS YEAR, BUT ACCIDENTS FALL

Washington Still Fourth in Safety Standing Among Large Cities.

66 HAVE BEEN KILLED IN FIRST TEN MONTHS

Van Duzer Urges Reduction of Lights on K Street Northeast.

Although there has been a slight decrease in the number of traffic accidents in the District of Columbia during the first ten months this year, as compared with the same period in 1930, this year's accidents have shown a substantial increase in the number of persons injured or killed.

Despite this condition, however, Washington still ranks fourth from the top in point of safe cities, being led by Baltimore, Boston and San Francisco.

During the period in 1931, ended October 31, there were 7,135 traffic accidents in the Capital, according to statistics compiled by M. O. Eldredge, assistant director of traffic. This compares with 7,191 accidents in the same period last year.

3,041 Hurt This Year.

But where the 7,191 accidents in the first ten months of 1930 involved injuries to 2,696 persons and the death of 53, the 7,135 accidents thus far this year have brought death to 66 persons, while 3,041 were injured. These figures, it is explained, apply only to accidents which happened within the boundaries of the District, and do not include persons injured in nearby Maryland or Virginia and brought to the District for hospital treatment.

After a lengthy study of the traffic situation on K street northeast, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer has recommended to the traffic advisory council that a number of the traffic lights on K street between First and Thirteenth streets be removed.

K Street Vehicle Count.

Mr. Van Duzer pointed out that investigation showed the traffic flow along K street northeast to average only about 375 vehicles hourly, whereas in his opinion traffic lights are unnecessary when the flow is less than 1,000 per hour. He would, however, retain the lights at the intersection of Fifth, Eighth and Thirteenth streets, where special traffic conditions are to be found.

Studies of similar nature also are being made in other sections of the city with a view to possible reduction of the number of traffic lights in various sections where the flow of traffic is found not heavy enough to require their operation.

Sewer Contract Awarded.

The District Commissioners yesterday awarded to the Peter D'Adamo Construction Co. the contract for construction of the Bradbury Heights sanitary sewer, in the vicinity of Southern avenue and Burns street southeast, on his low bid of $3,419.80.
